Child Labor Action Asked In New York By President

Plan Is 'Menace,' Bishop Declares

Labor Developments.

President Roosevelt appealed to the Legislature of New York, his home State, to ratify the Federal child labor amendment, pending since 1924.

Appeals for Action.

By the Associated Press.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 22.—President Roosevelt appealed today to the Legislature of his home State to ratify the Federal child labor amendment, pending since 1924.

Forwarded to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, a telegram from the President was read at a public hearing on the proposal before the Republican-controlled Assembly judiciary committee.

"The measure has passed the Senate," the President said, "and I sincerely trust the Assembly will take similar action as quickly as possible. I hope very much my own home State will be prompt in ratification."

Immediately thereafter, New York City's fusion mayor, Fiorello H. La Guardia, appealed for immediate ratification.

The President's telegram and the appeal by La Guardia featured a hearing at which the proposed amendment was assailed by a Roman Catholic bishop as "an unwarranted invasion of parental rights" and its ratification urged by organized labor "on humanitarian grounds."

Bishop Edmund F. Gibbons, of the Albany Roman Catholic Diocese, termed the proposal "a menace to the real welfare of millions of children throughout the entire Nation."

"Give us a measure which, while aiming to reform social evils and correct economic injustices, does not by its broadness and excess of power lead to far greater evils, and we will be for it to a man," he declared.

George S. Meany, president of the State Federation of Labor, stressed the "nonpartisan character" of the proposed amendment and said that "no argument is necessary to sustain the need for this amendment on humanitarian grounds."

State Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews renewed the State labor department's appeal for ratification, arguing that "national common standard would be a gain to all States" and solve the question of interstate competition.

United States Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), and Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), sent statements to the public hearing favoring ratification.

$10,000 in Jewels Taken by Burglar At Flather Home

Jewelry valued at $10,000 was stolen from the home of William J. Flather, jr., prominent investment banker, last night by a thief who climbed a ladder to a second floor window.

The Flathers were downstairs in their house at 4000 Nebraska avenue northwest when Mrs. Flather heard a noise above. She went upstairs and found a window open in a bedroom. Investigation disclosed that the jewelry was missing.

Outside the window was found a ladder. A screwdriver, evidently used in forcing the window, was found lying on the windowsill.

Wrecked Plane, Fished From Sea, Was Navy Discard

Cape May, N. J., Feb. 22 (AP).—"Partial" identification of a wreck of an airplane fished out of the Atlantic Ocean off Cape May as that in which two Navy fliers crashed off Norfolk, Va., in August, 1934, was made today by a Coast Guardsman who witnessed the crackup.

The identification indicated the "mystery plane" was one which was sunk more than two years ago because it was not considered worth salvaging. The two fliers were rescued.

Mother of Seven Killed; Slayer Commits Suicide

Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press)—Mrs. Bernard Mertes, mother of seven children, was shot to death on the doorstep of a neighbor's home last night by Robert MacPherson, who afterward killed himself, police declared today.

Veteran Editor Dies

Was Considered One of 'Elder Statesmen' of U. S. Journalism.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 22.—Rollo Ogden, editor of the New York Times, died at his home today of a pulmonary congestion at the age of 81.

His death closed a distinguished newspaper career of almost half a century which had earned him a place as one of the "elder statesmen" of American journalism.

Editor of the New York Evening Post for 29 years and of the Times for the last 15 years, Mr. Ogden remained in active command of his duties until last Monday, when he caught a cold.

His alertness, vigor and freshness of viewpoint despite his age had evoked wide admiration. In recent years when eye trouble developed, it was necessary to read to him much of the material which he considered.

Born in Sand Lake, Rensselaer County, N. Y., in 1856, the son of a Presbyterian clergyman, Mr. Ogden was graduated from Williams College and served in the ministry for seven years, retiring in 1859 to take up literary work.

Joined Post in 1891.

He joined the Post in 1891 and became editor in 1903. Under his administration, the paper's editorial policy was liberal and progressive, opposing Republican protectionist policies, assailing President Theodore Roosevelt's early activities in Panama, and advocating woman's suffrage, international co-operation for peace, and defense of Negro rights.

Mr. Ogden joined the Times in 1920 and succeeded Charles Ransom Miller as editor on his death in 1922. Under him, the Times continued its opposition to Tammany Hall, urged United States membership in the World Court, and sounded warnings during the 1928 economic boom.

Among Mr. Ogden's writings outside newspapers were the biography of the historian, William H. Prescott, "The Life and Letters of Edward Lawrence Godkin," and a translation of the Spanish "Maria, a South American Romance."

While in the ministry, he was assistant pastor of the Old Stone Church in Cleveland, Ohio, a member of the staff of the Presbyterian Mission Board's Theological School in Mexico City, and pastor of the Case Avenue Presbyterian Church in Cleveland from 1883 to 1887.

At Mr. Ogden's bedside in his Hotel Algonquin apartment when he died were his son, Nelson Ogden, Philadelphia engineer, and his daughter, Mrs. John M. Lindley, of Wellesley Hills, Mass.

His wife, the former Susan Mitchell, of Morristown, N. J., whom he married in 1881, died in 1935.

'Cheek Pinchers' Beaten.

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Four young men who allegedly "pinched the cheeks" of a young woman passenger in a subway train and annoyed her by making "coy remarks" were in jail today—bruised and disheveled after being belabored by other passengers.

Loyal Troops Retake Vital Madrid Road

Leftists Use Tanks and Planes; Insurgents Bottled in Oviedo.

By the Associated Press

Madrid, Feb. 22.—Surging government battalions regained control of the capital's lifeline to the east today, commanders announced, pushing back Fascist legions that seized the Valencia highway in a bitter battle on the Jarama River sector, the "Marne of Madrid."

A terrific offensive was waged near the towns of San Martin de la Vega and La Maranosa in which the government militiamen, fighting to loosen Gen. Francisco Franco's tightening stranglehold on the capital, were reported to have shoved the insurgents off the eastern highway and rallied their forces to keep the initiative.

Tanks, artillery and airplanes, bolstering waves of government infantrymen, fought the insurgents down the Jarama Valley that leads to Madrid's trunk highways to the Socialist eastern provinces, the Valencia and Guadalajara roads.

Decisive Battle Seen.

(Insurgent commanders earlier reported seizure of 4½ miles of the Valencia road, declaring they had shut another exit to the besieged capital and were driving toward the only remaining egress, the road northeast to Guadalajara.)

Gen. Jose Miaja, defense commander, declared the bloody combat raging in the Jarama Valley may well be the decisive battle of the civil war.

Leftists Assault Oviedo.

Balboa, Spain, Feb. 22 (AP).—A bloody struggle raged tonight in the streets of Oviedo, "Alcazar" of the Asturian minelands.

Paced by reckless dynamitors, brawny miners who light dynamite fuses from their dangling cigarettes and then throw them, 10,000 government militiamen were said by President Juan Antonio Aguirre of the Basque regional regime to have seized eight streets east of the Oviedo north station.

President Aguirre said the plight of the decimated insurgent band, bottled up inside Oviedo for three months, was "critical."

Other government troops pushed an offensive southward on Leon, 55 miles away, to prevent help from reaching the Oviedo insurgents. The Basque Asturian Militia cut the road to the insurgent base at Grado, West of Oviedo, for a second time. They occupied Mounts Escamplero and Otero, seizing much insurgent ordnance at the latter salient. The village of Pando, between Oviedo and Grado, also was captured.

Flames Spreading.

Government fighters approached within 1,500 yards of Grado itself.

The Oviedo bullring, a reservoir and an asylum were captured by the government militiamen. Government guns and planes made an inferno of Pelayo Barracks, chief insurgent fortress in the "martyred city" of the Asturian Plain. The flames were reported spreading.

On the Leon drive, the government said it had blown up 70 yards of railroad at Matallana, disrupting the main insurgent line of communication.

Blockade Plans Rushed.

London, Feb. 22 (AP).—Six European powers reached virtually complete agreement tonight on plans to clamp a naval blockade on all Spanish coasts March 6. A sub-committee of the 27-nation neutrality committee in a three-hour meeting put all but the last touches on the program to halt the influx of men and munitions to the Spanish civil war, supplementing the volunteer ban put into effect last Saturday.

Great Britain and Portugal, however, were still disagreed over the number of British observers to be placed along the Hispano-Portuguese frontier.

Representative Dies

REP. JAMES P. BUCHANAN.

Rep. Buchanan, Appropriations Chairman, Dies

Roosevelt's Financial Aide Piloted Ten Billions in New Deal Grants.

Representative James P. Buchanan, diminutive Texan Democrat and chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, died just before 11 o'clock last night at Naval Hospital. He was 69.

More than a week ago Buchanan went to the Naval Hospital to rest. It was a heart ailment that brought his death.

As chairman of the House Appropriations Committee Buchanan was one of President Roosevelt's chief lieutenants in budgetary and appropriations matters. More than $10,000,000,000 in New Deal appropriations were guided through the House by him.

In January, 1935, Chairman Buchanan spent three weeks at the hospital when his heart was troubling him. Apparently well again, he returned to his tasks. When the present Congress met, he told friends that he was more tired and nervous than usual, but he continued his work until he was forced to go to the hospital a week ago.

Mr. Buchanan will be succeeded as chairman by the oldest member of the House, Representative Taylor (Democrat), of Colorado, who will be 80 his next birthday.

Only nine members of the House were Buchanan's seniors there. He was first elected April 5, 1913, to succeed Albert Sidney Burleson, whom President Woodrow Wilson appointed Postmaster General. The Tenth Texas District sent him back in each election thereafter.

Succeeded Byrns.

When the late Speaker Joseph W. Byrns relinquished his post as chairman of the Appropriations Committee in March, 1933, to become Democratic floor leader, Buchanan took over the chairmanship.

Buchanan is survived by his widow and a son, James P. Buchanan, jr., both of whom were at his bedside when he died.

Buchanan was not noted as an orator. His soft voice sometimes failed to carry across the House Chamber. Although he was a strong advocate of Government economy, it was he who forced through the $4,880,000,000 work-relief program in 1935 because he thought it would take Americans off the "dole."

The chairman often broke with bureau and department heads during committee sessions at which estimates were analyzed. He often differed with them and slashed many items.

When the Representative relaxed, which occurred infrequently, it was in one of two forms. Either Buchanan lost himself in a "Western thriller" or he engaged in a late night discussion with cronies in the lobby of a Capitol Hill hotel with the subject usually Government problems.

Buchanan was born in South Carolina in 1867. He was the son of a wealthy plantation owner, who believed the South would win the Civil War. After the war the father returned to his plantation, but when he learned he was accused by some of being a spy, he decided to leave the State.

U. of Texas Graduate.

The father went West by one route and the mother and her two children by another. When Buchanan was 8 years old he was picking cotton on rented land in Texas.

The chairman was graduated from the University of Texas with a law degree. He became county attorney of Washington County, served in the State Legislature and then came to Capitol Hill.

Advised of Buchanan's death, Speaker Bankhead said he was "distressed and grieved that such a useful and courageous man has passed."

Representative Rayburn (Democrat), House majority leader, said: "He was a man of fine ability and rendered great service to his State and country."

"He is a martyr to his work," commented Representative Taylor.

"He killed himself by taking on entirely too much work. He was a noble character, one of the best chairmen our committee ever had. None ever exceeded him in diligence, work and energy."

Woman Explorer Quits Hospital After Crash

Los Angeles, Feb. 22 (AP).—In a wheelchair, Mrs Osa Johnson, explorer and big game photographer, will board a train tomorrow en route to her childhood home, Chanute, Kans. She has been in a hospital since the January 12 transport plane crash near here which killed her noted explorer husband, Martin Johnson. She received a leg fracture and other injuries.

Washington Tribute Paid By Roosevelt

President Puts Wreath on Tomb as Nation Marks Birthday.

Holiday Is Celebrated Over U. S. With Talks and Exercises.

Leading the national observance of the 205th birthday anniversary of George Washington, President Roosevelt motored to Mount Vernon late yesterday to place a wreath at the bier of the First President and to offer silent tribute in the tomb.

Accompanied only by his military and naval aides, Secret Service men and correspondents, the President was cheered by thousands along the 18-mile route and by the large throng that witnessed the brief and simple ceremonies at the shrine.

Earlier in the day Mr. Roosevelt had sent a floral tribute to be placed at the base of the Washington Monument, on whose plaza the flags of 48 States waved in a stiff breeze.

Roosevelt Stands Silent.

With Government offices, banks, schools and libraries closed all day and the department stores on a half-holiday schedule, the holiday was traditionally celebrated in Congress, on radio broadcasts, at special exercises in Memorial Continental Hall and with numerous other gatherings by patriotic organizations.

At the tomb of George and Martha Washington, President Roosevelt made no speech. Driven to the entrance, he stood for a few minutes in silence within the mausoleum, emerging to face a battery of cameramen. Then returning to his open car, he was driven back to the White House.

Oratory was prominent in the other celebrations. Addressing some 800 members of the D. A. R. and allied groups in Memorial Continental Hall, R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State, eulogized the Father of His Country as one than whom no one in world history has been more universaly acclaimed.

"World Knows Not His Peer."

The words written by Joseph of Exeter in describing King Alfred are applicable to Washington, Mr. Moore said. They are:

"The old world knows not his peer, nor will the future show us his equal; he alone towers over others, better than the past ones and greater than those who are to be."

More than all his contemporaries combined, said Moore, Washington was responsible for the colonies winning independence. The speaker stressed the parts played by Mount Vernon and Alexandria in the establishment and early development of the young nation.

Strong Central Government.

The Assistant Secretary portrayed Washington as a believer in a strong central government and as one who, while approving the Constitution, "did not deny that it was in some respects unsatisfactory to him."

"The commentators," said Mr. Moore, "are practically in accord in the opinion that the central government for which it provided was vested with less power than Washington conceived it should possess. He stood for the integrity of the States, but being more far-sighted than anyone of his time, he apparently foresaw there would develop conditions under which the theory of States' rights might be unduly exploited, to the disadvantage of the country as a whole."

The program in Memorial Continental Hall was sponsored jointly by the Sons of the Revolution, Daughters of the American Revolution, Sons of the American Revolution and Children of the American Revolution. Dr. Thomas Edward Green, president of the first group, presided.

Senate Blocks Efforts To Delay Court Action; Hearing Set March 9

Lengthy Debates, Oratory Expected

Passage of Subsidiary Bill May Modify Plan, Leaders Hope.

By Robert C. Albright.

Open hearings on the Administration's judiciary program, the first forward move in the tempest of Supreme Court controversy, yesterday were scheduled for March 9, as the Senate set the stage for initial action on the plan to enlarge the bench by six justices.

Date was fixed by the Senate Judiciary Committee, after rejecting proposals to delay consideration for another fortnight. Prolonged hearings and a storm of contention from opposing witnesses were forecast. It was privately predicted the bill would not reach a Senate vote for two or three months.

A strategical forerunner of the court enlargement plan, providing full pay voluntary retirement of justices at 70, meanwhile was favorably reported by the Senate committee, and Senate action is expected later this week. The retirement bill already has passed the House.

Tactful Invitation.

Looming larger as a tactical implement for solving the Constitutional dilemma, the voluntary retirement measure was seen as an implied invitation for some of the older justices to retire with full privileges. Privately, several Democratic regulars, anxious to avoid a direct break with the President, voiced the view that retirement of two or three justices might either modify or sidetrack the President's more drastic plan.

Other developments:

Judiciary proposals, as related to the Administration's crop-control plans, were discussed by the President with Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and 11 farm leaders. In the group was Edward A. O'Neal, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who declined to commit his organization without a referendum on the court changes.

Over radio's ether, Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, broadcast a defense of the President's court enlargement plans, while Senator Edward Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, called it an "insidious attack" on the Federal judiciary, and appealed for an "independent court."

Calling on its members to write indorsements to Congress, labor's Non-Partisan League charged in a circular that "the heavy artillery of the economic despots has gone into action against the President's plan—just as it did during the election campaign."

M. W. Thatcher, Washington representative of the Farmers National Grain Corporation and chairman of the Wheat Conservation Conference, declared "the organized farmers of this Nation have unmistakably and emphatically registered their determination to support President Roosevelt in his effort to provide them and all the common people with a Supreme Court capable of co-operating with the legislative and executive branches.

First Witness.

Following the Judiciary Committee move for hearings beginning March 9, Chairman Henry F. Ashurst said Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, principal author of the President's plan, probably will be the first witness. Supporting witnesses probably will be called first. Some half-dozen persons already have asked to testify for the plan, and at least five plan to testify against it, Ashurst said.

The Judiciary Committiee chairman said he would not oppose testimony by the Supreme Court justices themselves, if they "want to be heard." Senator Frederick Van Nuys (Democrat), Indiana, who recently favored "inviting" the justices to testify, indicated yesterday he thought it might be well for them to make their wishes known before asking them to testify on the plan to increase their number.

Despite opening of hearings in two weeks, leaders do not expect a Senate vote before May at the earliest. They are claiming from 50 to 53 votes on the ultimate showdown, while the opposition insists it can count on at least 40 votes and additional recruits from the noncommitted. While they say that number could "talk the bill to death," they are making no immediate plans for a filibuster.

Speaker Bankhead and other House leaders apparently are anxious for the Senate to act first, al-

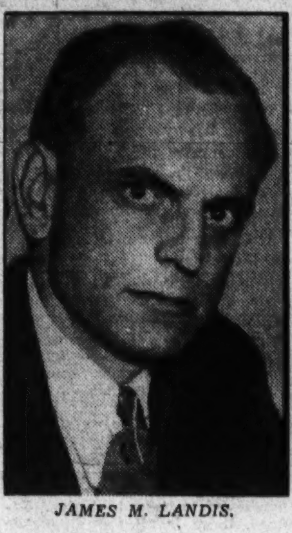
Address Bar Association



JAMES M. LANDIS.

SENATOR A. W. BARKLEY.

The great Chief Justice John Marshall, were he alive today, would uphold the New Deal program of social and economic reforms, Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, declared last night.

The Kentuckian, who has lined up behind President Roosevelt's bill to enlarge the Supreme Court, was the principal speaker at the seventh annual banquet of the Federal Bar Association in the Mayflower Hotel.

James M. Landis, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, joined Senator Barkley in appealing for an enlightened and progressive interpretation of the Constitution. He did not mention the controversy over the Supreme Court.

Laid Government's Foundation.

Senator Barkley, sketching John Marshall's career from his soldier days at Valley Forge to his long career as chief justice, credited him with laying the foundations for a strong Federal Government.

"He projected his mind into the future," Barkley said, "and by his wise decisions cleared the way for handling problems that he knew would arise."

Barkley granted that Marshall, apostle of a strong Federal Government, quarreled with Thomas Jefferson and other powerful figures of the day, but he pointed out that Jefferson's views on the Constitution underwent many changes.

Jefferson's Later Views.

"I prefer to follow Jefferson," he said, "who, after the maturity of years, held that the Constitution should be an instrument for the guidance of the living, and that a past generation had no more right to bind and fetter the present generation than we have to bind and fetter those who come after us."

In contrast to that view and of Marshall's view, Barkley said, the Federal courts recently "have sought to find technical and obstructive ways to prevent the exercise the powers of the National Government."

"John Marshall made the Constitution a living, breathing thing. He made it a workable instrument of government instead of a dead letter without power or meaning.

"Therefore I venture to prophesy that if John Marshall were living

Accused Policeman Declares Prisoner Grabbed Him Around Neck.

By the Associated Press.

Somerset, Pa., Feb. 22.—A strapping young State policeman testified today he acted in self-defense, denying the State's charge that he beat to death 64-year-old Frank C. Monaghan during a "third degree."

Twenty-five-year-old Stacy Gunderman calmly played the leading role in the courtroom drama of the thirteenth day of his trial as the first of seven law officers indicted on murder charges.

He said Monaghan attacked him from the rear while he was alone with the prisoner questioning him about the cutting of Detective John C. Wall last September 12.

Then he described how he threw the Uniontown hotel keeper over his head, jumped on him and struck him in the face.

In climax, Gunderman demonstrated by throwing a brother trooper over his shoulder, knocking the wind out of him as he struck a gymnasium mat.

Spectators jumped to their chairs to watch Gunderman hurl Sergt. James Pierce into the air with a jiu-jitsu hold. Pierce came down with a thud, lay still for a moment and was laid out of the room for air.

The curly-haired defendant explained he wouldn't have been so rough with Monaghan if he hadn't been "nervous and excited."

He told this story of how the older man died:

"He jumped on my back. I threw

Death was no stranger to Charles G. Sonntag, 64-year-old South Carolinian, who will get a hero's burial in Arlington National Cemetery tomorrow.

He courted it deliberately during the Spanish-American War when he voluntarily submitted himself to the bite of the yellow fever-bearing mosquito to further efforts to stamp out the dread disease.

He died Friday in his farm home in the Sandy Run section of Calhoun County. His body arrived at Arlington yesterday and was placed in a receiving vault to await burial with full military honors.

Under the leadership of the late Dr. Walter Reed, Sonntag, a native of Charleston and a member of the Army Medical Corps during the Spanish-American War, was one of that heroic band of men who volunteered to be bitten by mosquitoes during the campaign waged against yellow fever.

"Yellow Jack" the American soldiers called it, but it was a respectful familiarity It had killed thousands more soldiers in the war than Spanish bullets had killed. Every summer for 200 years it had struck relentlessly until the tropics were devastated by this panic-making plague. By tens and by hundreds and by hundreds of hundreds overnight people began to turn yellow, to hiccup, to die horribly. In one city alone—in Rio de Janeiro—the mortality rate in 1898 stood at 94.5 per cent. And yet there was no known prevention for it, no cure, no cause. It struck suddenly, inexorably. When it came, you fled town at once or you got it.

In 1899, the idea was still prevalent that the disease was transmitted by fomites in the bedding, clothing, etc., of patients suffering from the yellow plague. The theory that the disease was carried by mosquitoes was either scouted or laughed at.

It was as chairman of a commission then that Dr. Walter Reed was sent down to Cuba by the Army in 1900 to investigate the fever's cause and method of tranmission. And since the disease was not taken by animals, Dr. Reed had the unpleasant task of asking for volunteers to take the role of guinea pigs.

Nine volunteered and Sonntag was one of them. Two special huts were built for them and carefully screened. One was clean, open and attractive. Into it went Sonntag and three others to be bitten by poisoned mosquitoes and to wait. The other hut had two windows on the lee side, solid walls and one door. Under the sweltering Cuban sun a stove burned inside it and pails of water kept the air saturated. Six men entered there to stay. For bedding they had sheets and blankets taken off the beds of yellow fever victims, filthy with sweat and black vomit and the discharges of dying men. Towels soaked in poisoned blood were used by them for pillow cases and they slept in pajamas taken from the corpses.

But there were no mosquitoes inside the second hut. And the yellow fever did not strike down the men in the filthy booth. But it visited the three in the clean one. And Sonntag was one of them.

"Charles survived somehow," his brother, Otto, said yesterday when interviewed at his home at 906 Delafield place. Himself a veteran, Otto served 39½ years on the District police force, retiring in 1929. "But he was a sick man for a long time," he continued, "and in my opinion he never quite got over it. The fever affected his mind a little; it bent him over until he looked like a hunchback."

The fever-stricken man recovered and he lived to see his Government award him a special medal commemorative of his service beyond the call of duty.

"It was a huge gold medal and it weighed half a pound," Otto said. "Later they granted him a pension of $125 a month."

Washington's Disputed Words On Foreign Policy Stir Senate

By Sidney Olson.

Whether George Washington meant something that he never said, or whether he couldn't possibly have meant what he didn't say (are you still here?) was the weighty question that occupied the Senate of the United States for two hours yesterday.

It all began with an editorial in The Washington Post of January 12, 1934, which attributed to George Washington a statement, often ascribed to him in histories, that he looked with favor on American participation in international consultations.

The long-maned Lion of Idaho, Senator William E. Borah, was aroused by the statement, which seemed to splash historical ice water on his favorite contention—that the Founding Fathers never would have stood for American entry into the League of Nations or the World Court.

Plunging into the Library of Congress and into a mass of correspondence with scholars, Senator Borah found no trace of such a quotation in Washington's writings. On February 22, 1935, he stood up in the Senate and blasted The Post editorial and the quotation, terming the latter a "crude, clumsy, impudent forgery" and declaring it to have been "forged for a purpose; to plant in our historic literature a view contrary to all views expressed and opinions entertained by the Father of Our Country."

The Post, apologizing to the Senator, recounted its reliance on historians for the quotation, and added: "And the fact that we prompted his (Borah's) investigations remains as a certain compensation for having unwittingly made a link in a chain of mis-statement of very curious and thought-provoking origin."

The academician's interest in sources, the professor's interest in accuracy, and a personal interest in neutrality were simultaneously aroused in Senator Elbert D. Thomas (Democrat), Utah, who is himself a recognized scholar, a for-

New Coal Bill Given to House For Early Vote

Supported by Mine Workers; Seeks Stabilization of Industry.

By William V. Nessly.

Actively backed by the United Mine Workers of America, the revised Guffey-Vinson coal control bill was reported favorably yesterday by the House Ways and Means Committee and plans were made for quick House consideration. The committee vote was 19 to 6.

There was evident an intention to press for final action on the measure in both houses while the United Mine Workers' scale committee is conducting its current negotiations with operators for a new wage and hour contract effective April 1.

Lacking the labor provisions which were an important part of the old act invalidated by the Supreme Court, the bill is intended to stabilize the bituminous coal industry. Labor's attitude toward the measure is that if trade practices in the industry are stabilized and all coal producers are placed on an equality, with satisfactory prices maintained, the miners will be in a position to deal with all producers on a standardized basis.

The Ways and Means Committee went farther in the way of strengthening enforcement clauses than was the case in the old act. The "compliance" tax which would be levied on producers who failed to observe the provisions of the act was increased from 13½ to 19½ per cent, though the excise tax levied on all producers to pay administrative expenses was reduced from 1½ per cent to one-half of 1 per cent on the mine sale price of coal.

Provides 23 Boards.

The bill provides 23 district price-fixing boards with authority to fix minimum coal prices in their areas. The National Bituminous Coal Commission would have power to review the minimum prices and also to fix maximum prices in the interest of consumers.

The only labor provision in the bill is a statement that miners have the right to bargain collectively. Labor clauses of the old Guffey coal act provided the grounds on which the Supreme Court invalidated that act. The court decision, however, did not rule against the price-fixing provisions.

"Captive" Mines Exempt.

"Captive" mines, those operated by corporations for production of their own coal, which will not be in competition with the product of other mines, are exempt from provisions of the act. Steel companies operate numerous "captive" mines. However, Chairman Charles F. Hosford, jr., of the coal commission, said a subsidiary corporation operating a coal mine would not be exempt, the exemption applying only where the producing and consuming company have the same corporate identity. C. E. Smith, member of the commission, told the Associated Press that under this provision the Bethlehem Mines Corporation, subsidiary of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, would be subject to the act.

House consideration of the act this week was seen as a possibility, while a subcommittee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, under Chairman Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia, is expected to begin consideration of the measure today or tomorrow.

It is estimated $4,000,000 will be realized for administrative expenses under the excise tax one one-half of 1 per cent.

The act has Administration support.

Its passage, it is conceded, would materially strengthen the hands of the miners in their wage negotiations now under way in New York. The union asserts that if the Government maintains high prices for coal, the miners' organization is sufficiently strong to force concessions on wages and hours from the producers.

Ask Longer Week.

The only communication received from the operators in advance of present negotiations called for a longer work week at the same pay as at present because of the "unsatisfactory" competitive position of the industry in relation to other fuels, oil and gas especially. The operators proposed to increase the work week from the present 35 hours to 40 hours. The miners, in return, called for shortening the work week to 30 hours, the same pay weekly as the present contract provides. There the negotiations are deadlocked.

Veteran Gets 2 Years.

Windsor, Ontario, Feb. 22 (AP).—Maj. Ralph Sheppard, former Windsor attorney and army veteran of four years' war service overseas, pleaded guilty to embezzlement of $9,500 from a client today and was sentenced to two years, less one day, in the Ontario Reformatory. Sheppard, sought since 1931, surrendered recently.

Lawyer's Attack Upon Criticism of Court Change Plan Opens Worthy Field for Explorations.

By Franklyn Waltman

WALTMAN.

Marshall H. Lynn, of the local bar, writes to suggest that this column has been unfair to the Roosevelt Administration in contending that in order to bolster a specious argument on behalf of the necessity of the President's plan for revamping the Supreme Court, Mr. Roosevelt and Attorney General Cummings have deliberately overlooked the possibility of ratifying constitutional amendments by State conventions.

Mr. Lynn asks whether State legislatures would have to set up the machinery for the holding of such State conventions and whether clearly it is not as easy for 13 legislatures to block ratification of a constitutional amendment because of this necessity as it is for them to refuse ratification to amendments submitted to them.

These are pertinent questions and open a field well worth exploring. Too little attention has been paid to the State convention method of ratifying constitutional amendments, not only now but throughout the Nation's history. Obviously, this method is far more democratic and results in a more accurate reflection of popular sentiment than the method of ratification by State legislatures.

The first and only amendment to the Constitution submitted for ratification by State conventions was the twenty-first or prohibition repeal amendment in 1933. When that amendment was in the final stages of debate in the Senate, on February 15, 1933, a lengthy discussion took place as to the very point raised by Mr. Lynn. Some Senators contended, and others denied, that Congress had the power to prescribe the date and manner for election of delegates to State conventions and the date for such meetings.

In behalf of ratification by State Legislatures the plea was made that a large number of these bodies might fail to provide machinery for the State conventions and that, anyway, it would take longer by the State convention method than by State Legislatures. This argument did not prevail and by the crushing vote of 45 to 15 the Senate provided for ratification by State conventions and the House approved this method.

Prior to 1933 there existed no legislation on the subject of conventions in the States for ratification of amendments to the Federal Constitution. It happened—as is true today—that when Congress submitted the proposed amendment on February 20, 1933, there were 42 State Legislatures in session.

Jouett Shouse, then president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, with the help of Joseph H. Choate, jr., chairman of the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers for the Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, undertook in the latter part of January, 1933, to get as many of the State Legislatures as possible to adopt measures for the creation of State conventions. Choate drafted a model bill, which was sent to leaders in the wet fight in the various States.

During 1933, 43 States enacted statutes providing for a State convention to act on the repeal amendment. Wyoming acted on February 18, the only State to do so in advance of submission of the amendment. Twenty States passed statutes during March, or practically within one month of submission. Eleven more acted in April and six in May. Five others, in special sessions, acted during the summer months.

Now the important fact is that an incomplete check of these State statutes shows that 14 out of 35 of the State Legislatures enacted permanent legislation providing for the holding of elections and calling for State conventions "whenever the Congress of the United States shall propose an amendment to the Constitution of the United States and shall propose that it be ratified by conventions in the several States." The other 21 State Legislatures provided conventions specifically to act on the repeal amendment, except North Carolina, which submitted the question of whether a convention should be held to the voters at the election in November 1933.

Of the 43 statutes thus passed, 39 provided for conventions to be held during 1933. Thirty-seven ratified the amendment. South Carolina rejected it and in North Carolina the voters rejected the plan for a convention. As is well known, the repeal amendment was ratified by the thirty-sixth State December 5, 1933, thus making it effective in 9 months and 13 days after its submission.

What happened in 1933 in regard to ratification of the twenty-first amendment is sufficient answer to anyone who undertakes to assail the efficacy of the State convention method of ratifying Constitutional amendments. It is argued, however, that the people of this country favored that amendment and that therefore what happened was exceptional. constitutional amendments. It is begging the question. No amendment can or should be ratified that the people do not favor.

And yet the fight over the twenty-first amendment was far from being one-sided. The drys, lead by the Anti-Saloon League and allied prohibition organizations, made a last-ditch fight and did everything within their power to block ratification. They brought seven court actions challenging validity of the laws creating the conventions—losing all of these fights.

The strength of the wets in that fight was their ability to appeal to members of legislatures to let the people vote on the issue—and few State legislators had the hardihood to resist that plea. Indeed, there is all the difference in the world in a State Legislature rejecting an amendment to the Constitution and refusing to create a convention to act on it. A legislator in good conscience—and even anxiously—might vote for the latter legislation, even though he opposed the amendment.

President Roosevelt first decided that something would have to be done about his impasse with the Supreme Court in May, 1935. He decided on his Supreme Court packing plan the day after Christmas. Surely from May, 1935, to January 1, 1937, such legally astute minds as that of the Attorney General, the Solicitor General and the President's other assistants could have drafted a suitable constitutional amendment to meet whatever deficiencies the Supreme Court held existed in that document in light of what the President wishes to do.

Mr. Roosevelt on January 6, in his annual message to Congress, could have proposed that amendment. At the same time he could have called on the Governors of the States which lack permanent legislation providing for State conventions to remedy that deficiency. By this time Congress, if his proposal had been a reasonable one—perhaps if it had been unreasonable—would have been submitted the amendment and it would be on its way to ratification.

Let it be remembered that today at least 14 States have established means for ratifying constitutional amendments by conventions—and thus the President enjoys a handicap not possessed by the wets in 1933. And he possesses far greater prestige and influence than did the Shouses, Raskobs, Choates and others who were successful in the fight over prohibition repeal.

And let it be further remembered that one or both houses of 34 State Legislatures in the two weeks after the submission of the President's court revamping plan have concerned themselves with that proposal, although under no obligation to take cognizance of it. Both houses in 12 Legislatures have expressed themselves on the President's proposal, while one house in 12 other Legislatures have taken similar action.

The Roosevelt plea that action cannot be obtained from State Legislatures has no more foundation than the President's contention that aged judges have caused widespread congestion of Federal court dockets.

Open Hearings On Court Plan Start March 9

Senate Judiciary Committee Rejects Proposals to Delay Project.

though House Majority Whip Patrick Boland, in advance of a poll of the chamber, flatly predicted the bill would pass the House.

There was no record vote in the Senate Judiciary Committee on the March 9 hearing date, but two suggestions for alternative dates—March 21 by Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, and March 15, by Senator King (Democrat), of Utah—were rejected.

Once again, Senator Van Nuys served notice he will move to "split" the President's bill into two parts, segregating the court enlargement proposals from procedural reforms, when the bill reaches a committee vote.

Approved, 13 to 5.

The Supreme Court retirement bill, sponsored by Chairman Hatton W. Sumners, of the House Judiciary Committee, and Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, was approved by a 13-to-5 vote, after two amendments and a motion to postpone action had been voted down.

The vote on this measure, which will give Supreme Court justices the same privileges as other Federal judges in retiring with full pay at 70, was:

May Be Called Back.

The bill as now drafted would permit justices to be called back after retirement for duty in the circuits, and Senator Borah moved to strike out this feature. His amendment was defeated 13 to 5, with only the Idahoan, Burke, Pittman, Steiwer and King voting for it.

Senator Pittman offered another amendment permitting a retired justice, with his consent, to be called back for duty on the court on vote of two-thirds of the justices. This was defeated 11 to 2, only Pittman and Burke voting for it.

Senator King moved to postpone a vote on the retirement bill until next week, but his motion was rejected 11 to 7. Voting for postponement were King, Burke, Pittman, Van Nuys, Austin, Borah and Steiwer.

As the committee adjourned, Chairman Ashurst again insisted he was not "worried" over the outcome, and said there would be no hurry to get it before the Senate.

At the other end of the Avenue, President Roosevelt was conferring with Secretary Wallace and several heads of farm organizations. O'Neal, of the Farm Bureau Federation, said afterward the court issue came up "incidentally" and the visitors were not urged to support the President's bill.

The National Grange, another farm organization, already has announced its opposition, but O'Neal said he would not commit his own group without a referendum. He said some units in the federation were in favor and some were against.

All for Farm Control.

The Farm Bureau Federation head said the court was mentioned at the conference as one of the things that must be kept in mind in drafting the Administration's farm program. He said all of those present were "1,000 per cent" for the farm control program invalidated by the Supreme Court.

L. C. Trousdale, of Houston, Tex., American Rice Growers Association, said his group was on record in support of the Administration's court bill. Others represented said their groups were not yet committed.

In announcing for the President's program, Thatcher, of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, who did not attend the White House conference, said farmers in many States will hold special State conventions "where their delegates will consider this battle to unpack the court."

Farmers Will Meet.

"The President's program is moderate, effective and wise, as a temporary correction, but could ultimately prove to lose much of its value unless suplemented by effective amendments to the Constitution," Thatcher said. "The farmers of our country ask only for a fair deal."

Speaking yesterday before the Women's National Republican Club in New York, Senator H. Styles Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, said the court issue had narrowed down to "whether or not we should destroy the independence of the Supreme Court."

Representative Charles A. Halleck (Republican) of Indiana, addressing the Martha Washington Women's Club of Erie County, N. Y., said "the President's proposal strikes dangerously at the independence of the judiciary, which is the very cornerstone of free, representative government."

In the House, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican), of Massachusetts, introduced a bill to require all appointees to the Supreme Court to be American-born citizens.

Labor's Nonpartisan League's circular to its members yesterday, in support of the President's plan, stated in part:

"Write or wire your Senators and your Congressmen—especially your Senators—that you favor the Presidents' program for judicial reform and urge them to support the bills embodying that program."

PALL MALL
THE MODERN BLEND

Is your first cigarette of the day the best?

The flavour of fine tobacco does not cloy. We believe it is sweetening, artificial flavouring and medication which leave the after-taste that becomes heavy as it accumulates during the day.

The Modern Blend of PALL MALL is the only cigarette of domestic and Oriental tobaccos which bids for your favour with straight tobacco flavour. You will enjoy their clean and pleasing taste, their rich aroma and the absence of after-taste when the day is done.

Bar Association Again Target For Bone Blast

Law Guild Selects Temporary President as Parley Comes to End.

In a parting salvo as the National Laywers Guild wound up a three-day meeting here yesterday with election of officers, Senator Homer T. Bone, Washington Democrat, again attacked the American Bar Association as being "stupid and anti-social."

While the cross-fire between Bone and the Bar Association was taking place outside the Hotel Washington, the Guild lawyers inside elected Judge John P. Devaney, former chief justice of the Supreme Court of Minnesota, president for a temporary term of six weeks. They at the same time named an impressive list of members of their Executive Board which includes many judges and statesmen, with Frank P. Walsh, of New York, as chairman. The Guild is attempting to get Prof. Lloyd Garrison of the University of Wisconsin as permanent president, with a referendum election next month.

Senator Bone was retaliating to a statement of Frederick H. Stinchfield, president of the American Bar Association, who sprang to the defense of his group after Bone fired an opening blast at them Saturday.

Pecora Applauds Bone.

Ferdinand Pecora, judge on the Supreme Court of New York, took opportunity to applaud Bone, remarking that "Stinchfield has laid himself wide open. Bone ought to pulverize Stinchfield's statement. The Bar Association is taking unto itself credit that rightfully belongs to individual lawyers who lived and died long before the American Bar Association existed."

The battle between the two groups began when Bone attacked the older association for "never fighting for human rights as against property rights." Stinchfield then replied by reciting the good works of the American Bar Association and remarking that Bone was embracing such lawyers as "Jefferson, Madison, Lincoln, Cleveland and Wilson."

Newly-elected President Devaney attempted to conciliate the feud between the two lawyer groups. Said he:

"We will not do anything to harm the American Bar Association. I myself will continue as a member of it. We represent a different point of view. We are not a leftist group. We are Americans, we are sane, and out to do sensible things."

George T. Davis, liberal lawyer from San Francisco, went on the radio last evening to explain the purposes of the Guild. He again picked up the battle-ax by saying the American Bar Association does not represent the lawyers of America since it has only 29,000 members out of 175,000 lawyers in the country. Said he:

"The tragedy of the situation is that the only organization existing today which purports to represent even that group of 30,000 is dominated by the spokesmen of the large financial interests and monopolies in our land. In other words the organization is dominated by special privilege and vested interests."

He told the audience that the Lawyers' Guild wholeheartedly backs the President's program for the reorganization of the Federal courts, including the Supreme Court. The Guild advocates legal aid to the poor by the government attorneys selected on civil service basis, he said, and favors "more certain social security for the men and women of our country."

Bone Issues Statement.

Senator Bone issued the following statement after Stinchfield's reply:

"Mr. Stinchfield attempted an answer in the press this morning. I am sure he does not understand the meaning of the words 'human rights' and certainly he must be ignorant of the word 'battle' when used for other than private interests.

"Mr. Stinchfield, after trying to carry himself on the shoulders of Jefferson and Madison, says that his association has indorsed legal aid societies, written codes of legal ethics and aided in the writing of books. I want to put an end to this specious defense by asking one simple question: "What did your organization do, Mr. Stinchfield, on the child labor amendment?' And don't tell me that doesn't concern human rights.

"And tell me where did the American Bar Association stand on minimum wage, social security, and all of the new social legislation demanded by this generation. If you answer on these subjects. I'll be glad to define further what I meant and ask some more questions."

"I have said the National Lawyers' Guild has been born out of the stupid anti-social behavior of the American Bar Association. Put the resolutions of the American Bar Association for the past ten years in reverse and you have in essence the program of the great liberal National Lawyers' Guild."

In the elections four regional vice presidents representing different geographical sections of the country were chosen. They are George K. Bowden, of Illinois; George T. Davis, of California; Thomas C. Eagean, from Pensylvania, and Paul Kern, of New York.

Other members of the newly formed executive board, in addition to Walsh, are Burr Tracy Ansell, Washington, D. C.; James P. Aylward, Missouri member of Democratic National Committee; Gov. Elmer Benson of Minnesota; S. John Block, New York; Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa, former United States Senator; Prof Michael N. Chanalis, New Jersey, member of faculty, University of Newark; Dr. Felix S. Cohen, member of board of appeals, Interior Department; Representative Henry Ellenbogen, Pennsylvania; Prof. Abraham Fortas, Connecticut, member of faculty, Yale Law School; Osmond K. Fraenkel, New York; Jerome Frank, New York; Prof. Alexander Hamilton Frey, member of faculty, University of Pennsylvania; Prof. Walter Gelhorn, New York, member of faculty, Columbia Law School; Isaac Heller, Louisiana; Charles Houston, Nevada, counsel for National Association for Advancement of Colored People; Henry T. Hunt, counsel, PWA.

Gov. Philip F. La Follette, Wisconsin; Edward Lamb, Ohio; Irving J. Levy, Washington, D. C., Louis F. McCabe, Pennsylvania; Prof. Albert McGruder, Massachusetts, assistant dean, Harvard Law School; Representative Maury Maverick, Texas, Member of Congress; Representative Frank Messer, Iowa, counsel State tax commission; Philip Nichols, jr., Massachusetts; Charlton Ogburn, counsel, American Federation of Labor; Isadore Polier, New York; Lee Pressman, New York, counsel, Committee for Industrial Organization; Hon. Williams Lauds YouthCongress At Last Session

Director of National Unit Asserts Efforts Have Brought Results.

Aubrey Williams, director of the National Youth Administration, yesterday told a meeting of the National Council of the American Youth Congress that the organization's efforts "have yielded good results" and are bound to yield more. The session, held at the Central Y. M. C. A., was the final meeting in the Congress' three-day Pilgrimage to Washington to press for passage of the American youth act.

"I am glad you exist as such an organization and I glory in the high, unequivocal grounds that you have taken on very important problems confronting you and likewise confronting this country," Williams told the 350 delegates. "I think," he continued, "that your whole position is calling the attention of this country to the greater need of youth is a very fine thing. I wish you all power and great expansion and great success."

Other Speakers Heard.

Wililams was one of several speakers who addressed the conference. Others included Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union and Secretary of the C. I. O.; Katherine Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, and Representative Thomas R. Amlie, of Wisconsin, sponsor of the American youth act.

During the morning and afternoon sessions the delegates heard reports dealing with industrial organization, with crime and juvenile delinquency and with the organization's future. Resolutions were adopted, one indorsing President Roosevelt's Supreme Court proposal and another condemning Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, of New Jersey, and a member of the Congress' Advisory Committee, for his stand toward organized labor.

The delegates unanimously adopted a resolution deploring the action of the cafeteria located in the Y. M. C. A. building in refusing to serve two colored delegates.

Following adjournment of the final session, leaders announced that two of its members, William W. Hinckley and Abbott Simon, will appear in Police Court this morning at 9:30 to face charges of disorderly conduct growing out of a "sit-down" strike staged during the Congress' Saturday parade along South Executive avenue.

Youth Group Assailed.

Thirty-six members of the Y. M. C. A., at which the American Youth Congress held it meetings, yesterday signed a petition labeling the group as having opinions that "are un-American and un-Christian and opposed to the higher ideals of a true American."

The resolution read in part:

"We earnestly recommend that any organization thoroughly investigate the affiliations and membership of such a group before allowing meetings.

"We further implore all Congressmen and high officials to disregard totally any requests from the above mentioned group as being the wishes of a minority group whose desire it is to secure all the benefits of a prosperous America by decree, rather than by earnest endeavor on their part.

"We recommend for the benefit of any organization which would further the cause of American youth to exclude from membership those who hold the opinion expressed by many of the members of the American Youth Congress: 'I would not take up arms to defend the United States against foreign invasion but would readily fight to establish a socialistic system.'"

Coroner's Jury Holds Attacker Of Slain Girl, 16

Parole System Condemned at Inquest Into Killing of Pa. Student.

Coatesville, Pa., Feb. 22 (AP).—A coroner's jury found tonight that 16-year-old Helen Moyer "was deliberately murdered by Alexander Meyer" and recommended that the husky farm youth be held for the grand jury on a charge of murder in the first degree. The jury was out three minutes.

The six jurors incorporated in their verdict "condemnation of the parole system which permits convicts of the Meyer type to be at large."

Meyer, who was arrested Saturday on a charge of killing the high school girl by striking her with his truck on a highway near her Modena home, served a term in a reformatory three years ago for wounding two Philadelphia girls with pistol shots. He was paroled 14 months ago.

Meyer Not Present.

Meyer was not present at the inquest, which was held in a small, crowded room in the Coatesville City Hall. Crowds of curious thronged corridors and stairways of the building.

Assistant District Attorney Philip J. Reilly did not produce a statement he said Meyer signed yesterday asserting that he deliberately ran down the girl with his truck and then attacked her.

Earlier today District Attorney Raymond Reid postponed plans to have Meyer re-enact the killing, because he felt it might be "dangerous" for him to be taken to the vicinity of Modena, the girl's home community 3 miles to the south.

Used Dynamite.

Helen's unclothed body, with the left leg dismembered below the knee, was removed from an abandoned well Saturday a few hours after Meyer's arrest. The body lay under water, rock and dirt dislodged by two sticks of dynamite which Meyer said he had exploded to better conceal it.

Bandit Holds Up Ice Cream Store

An armed colored man held up a High Ice Cream Store at 1922 Nichols avenue southeast yesterday morning and escaped with about $4.

Mrs. Jean Sweeney, manager of the store, told police the man entered with his hand in his pocket as if he held a gun, grabbed her wrist and demanded the money. He scooped the money from the cash drawer and fled.

Meanwhile, police plan to stage a line-up tonight at which will be paraded holdup suspects seized during the past week. Efforts will be made by holdup victims to identify their assailants.

Soviet Mystery Plane Damaged in Crating

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—A carefully guarded warplane, flown here from the West Coast for export to Russia, was damaged today when a chain being used to hoist it into a crate at Floyd Bennett Field snapped. Field attaches said the accident would prevent shipment of the plane, a Vultee attack-bomber, on the steamship Scanstates, which sails Thursday.

Considerable mystery surrounded the heavily armed and armored craft since its arrival here last week.

Carrying five machine guns and racks for 1,135 pounds of bombs, it was to be followed this week by a second plane of the same type, consigned to the Amtorg Trading Corporation for shipment to Russia.

Naval Academy Board Will Meet on April 26

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 22 (AP).—Members of the board of visitors to inspect the Naval Academy from April 26-29, will attend athletic contests, see midshipmen at parade and drills and be guests at social events under a program prepared today by Rear Admiral David Foote Sellers, superintendent of the academy.

The board, appointed by President Roosevelt, Vice President Garner, and Speaker Bankhead of the House of Representatives, will assemble at the Officers' Club at the Academy at 11 a. m., April 26.

Pope Pius Believed On Way to Recovery

Vatican City, Feb. 22 (AP).—The Pope's chamberlain today removed from the Vatican anteroom a register in which visitors have inscribed their hopes for the pontiff's recovery, indicating the Pope is believed definitely convalescent.

TAKE WEIGHT OFF TIRED FEET

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

If your feet and ankles feel tired and ache all over—because you are carrying too much fat—do something about it. Try the treatment that has helped millions to reduce excess weight.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right.

All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks — and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out in this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same method used by doctors. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get a box of Marmola today from your druggist. (Adv.)

Calling All Bazooka Players; Post Contest Awards Listed

Calvin and Alvin Klassan waste no time in getting prepared for the big Bob Burns-Washington Post bazooka contest March 6. They are the first twins to enter.

$25 First Prize Offered and Many Smaller Cash Ones for Duo, Trio and Quartet Numbers on Burns Instrument.

Here is a picture that should stir every boy and girl to immediate action—that is, every youngster who has his eyes on one of the cash and merchandise prizes in the big Bob Burns-Washington Post Bazooka Contest, to be held at one of the downtown theaters Saturday morning, March 6.

You can tell by the expression on the faces of Calvin and Alvin Klassan, twin members of the Boys Club at 472 I street southwest, that this bazooka contest is serious business.

To the right is C. J. Brown, jr., bandmaster of the Metropolitan Police Club's 65-piece band. No boy or girl entering the contest should be alarmed at the help Bandmaster Brown is giving Calvin and Alvin, however, because anybody can play a bazooka. It's just as easy as whistling or singing.

The prizes in the big contest will go to the young bazooka players who do the best playing in groups or solos. Unusual effects will count some, of course. Maybe an imitation of a trombone or a "hot" trumpet will win a prize. On the other hand, just plain playing will count just as much.

Our guess would be that Calvin and Alvin will enter as a duet. Or maybe they will get two other members of the club and form a quartet. And it is almost certain that Bandmaster Brown will coach a band for the contest. Two dozen members of the I street club already are equipped with bazookas.

Don't delay, boys and girls. Get a bazooka today (from your favorite store) and be ready for the contest March 6.

Here's an idea of some of the merchandise prizes you can win: cameras, baseball gloves, bats and big league balls; rain capes, pen and pencil sets, lanterns, flash lights, harmonicas, pen lights, tennis racquets, polo shirts, jackets, school sets and sweaters.

For the best band or orchestra, a first prize of $25 in cash will be given. Smaller cash prizes for the best duo, trio and quartet.

Gunman Placed in Bare Cell After Love Tryst in Jail 'Suite'

By the United Press.

Detroit, Feb. 22.—Memories of luxury and romance coursed through the mind of Dayton Dean tonight as the pudgy triggerman of the Black Legion sat moodily in a bare cell to which he was banished after police found him entertaining a 17-year-old Southern girl in his "de luxe" jail apartment.

Both cell and girl disappeared Saturday night when searchers found slender, 17-year-old Lucille Turner, of Asheville, N. C., hiding behind the shower curtain in Dean's "suite." She had been there, Dean said blandly, "for three or four hours."

Police, not amused by disclosure of the romance that blossomed behind their backs, pursued a quiet investigation into the evening call and how it was made possible.

Miss Turner, inmate of the women's detention cells on the eighth floor of police headquarters, made their task more difficult by offering conflicting versions of the jail cell romance.

She told first how she had climbed through a window and up one story by means of the protective grillwork that line seach window of the cell blocks. She had, she said, responded to Dean's vocal invitation to "come up and see me some time."

On the ninth floor, the girl said, she crawled through another window and found herself in Dean's room.

Later she confounded authorities with her tale of having used the prisoners' elevator to ascend from the eighth floor to the ninth—a story she subsequently denied in returning to the first version.

Shortly after 7:30 o'clock Saturday night Lucille was reported missing from the eighth floor. Search of all cells revealed no trace. Dean, said Lucille had hid behind the shower curtain each time the guard approached.

Empty soft drink bottles and glasses testified to a "party" in the luxury cell which included, besides the bed and shower, two tables and chairs, a radio, plenty of reading matter and food.

16 Rail Unions Plan Demands For Pay Raises

Chiefs of 5 'Brotherhoods' Vote to Push Action on 20 Pct. Increase.

By the Associated Press.

Spokesmen for 16 railway brotherhoods, claiming a membership of 800,000 "non-operating" railroad workers, shaped a request for a pay increase yesterday.

They discussed the move at Chicago—where the heads of the five "operating" brotherhoods, representing the 500,000 men who man the Nation's trains, recently approved a demand for a 20 per cent wage hike.

At the same time, employe and employer alike studied the United Automobile Workers' announced plan to ask the Chrysler Corporation for recognition as sole bargaining agency for its 77,000 employes in 9 cities. A similar move by the union led to the widespread strike in the plants of the General Motors Corporation. Grievances left unsettled when that dispute was terminated were under discussion by representatives of both sides at Detroit.

Hoffman Warns Unions.

Gov. Harold Hoffman, of New Jersey, coupled a warning that he would not tolerate "sit-down" strikes with an attack on the Committee for Industrial Organization—the spearhead of unionization drives in the automotive, steel and oil industries.

The C. I. O., he charged in a radio address, claimed "governmental blessing as it seizes private property, defies the law and denies the authority of the remaining 98 per cent of our people."

At Detroit, President Walter Fry, of the Fry Products Co. continued his "sit down" demonstration in protest against the "sit down" strike of his 188 employes through the fourth day. The "boss sit-downer" refused to dicker with a United Automobile Workers organizer on the ground he was a total stranger.

Refuse to Confer.

Refusal of officials of the Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation at North Chicago, Ill., to deal with C. I. O. chieftains left the "sit down" strike of 80 of its employes in status quo. The men received supplies for a long siege in the two factories they have held for six days.

Proxies employed by 82 wholesale dry goods dealers in New York picketed the headquarters of their employes' union, contending the unionists refused to bargain collectively.

"Sit down" strikers held seven Detroit factories. Another, the Michigan Steel Casting Co., closed its plant after 200 workers voted to seek a 40-hour week and a wage boost.

Responsible sources said the Electric Autolite Co., at Toledo, Ohio, had agreed to grant pay increases to its 5,000 workers.

Washington's Mooted Words Arouse Senate

Thomas Denies Statement on U. S. Foreign Policy Was Ever Made.

mer history professor and a student of neutrality.

He likewise plunged into the background of the quotation. After two years' work, yesterday he, too, arose in the Senate and announced the returns from his researches. These conclusions were:

That "nowhere in Washington's writings have we found those words."

That if ever Washington said them, they came down by hearsay.

That, however, the words are old in American tradition and have been used many times by many competent men.

That Secretary of State William H. Seward, writing to United States Minister to France Dayton, in 1865, first used the words and attributed the ideas to Washington.

That in the Atlantic Monthly of May, 1896, Richard Olney, writing an article on "International Isolation of the United States," put quotation marks around the words of Seward and thus brought them into use by historians ever since, but did it on grounds of "the highest authority."

That The Post should not have apologized to Senator Borah. He said:

"It is indeed unique in at least my editorial experiences to see an editor blown over by one mighty blast when he might have turned for justification to men of unquestioned authority. If editors base their generalizations, first, upon a single statement, and then upon a contradiction, editorial consistency, if that jewel can possibly be found, will not be of lasting worth."

Borah Replies.

Although Senator Thomas stressed that the quotation originated in a misinterpretation and not in a deliberate forgery, as charged by Borah previously, Borah arose in the Senate after Thomas' plea for a broader international viewpoint, and said:

"How he (Seward) could do so, what instigated him to do so, is beyond my comprehension, because it is an absolute contradiction of everything that Washington ever said. Now, who put the quotation marks about it I do not know, but those who interpreted Washington's address to be this language and those who put the quotations about it were impudent forgers and nothing less."

Thomas' address had emphasized that "if the address is used for argument today, it is the spirit of the whole that should guide us and not a single phrase or paragraph." He used another quotation from Washington, saying, "My first wish * * * is to see the whole world in peace, and the inhabitants of it as one band of brothers striving who should contribute most to the happiness of mankind," as proof of the first President's breadth of view internationally.

Thomas, before concluding, added: "Thus ends what may be deemed purely an academic discussion," closing the subject until next February 22.

The quotation, incidentally, is, according to Thomas, "that Washington foresaw a future when, our institutions being firmly consolidated and working with complete success, we might safely and perhaps beneficially take part in the consultations held by foreign states for the advantage of the Nation."

Mystery Slaying And Shooting Laid To 'Third Party'

Harrisonburg, Va., Feb. 22 (AP).—Rockingham County authorities deferred an inquest today pending an X-ray examination of the body of Golden Arey, 30-year-old sawmill worker, who was found shot to death at his home early Sunday. His estranged wife lay beside him seriously wounded.

Sheriff J. W. Bazzle and other officers visited today the tenant home where the couple was found, but no arrests had been reported tonight.

Mary Payne Arey, the wounded woman, meanwhile was reported recovering in the Rockingham Hospital.

Sheriff Bazzle said he believed Arey was discussing the question of alimony with his former wife when the shooting occurred. He attributed it to a "third person." Thirteen-year-old Ralph Payne, son of Mrs. Arey by a former marriage, said he was at home, but did not see the shooting.

Cook and Chauffeur Held on Dope Charges

East St. Louis, Ill., Feb. 22 (AP).—Federal warrants charging receiving and transporting untaxed narcotics were issued today against Jou Chu, Chinese cook at a Brooklyn, Ill., night club, and Jou's colored chauffeus, Oscar Brown.

United States Commissioner Arthur Felsen said they were arrested Saturday night as they left an East St. Louis express office with a package containing $8,000 to $10,000 worth of narcotics. The prisoners were taken to jail at Belleville, Ill.

New National Holiday Sought For Japan's Goddess of Sun

Notables Present Petition to Diet in Program for Intensification of Nationalism; Amaterasu Called Divine Ancestor of Nippon.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Feb. 22.—A petition bearing the signatures of Premier General Senjuro Hayashi and several distinguished generals, admirals and civilians was presented to the Die today asking that a new national holiday be set apart for reverencing the sun goddess, Amaterasu O-Mi-Kami.

Orthodox Japanese believe Amaterasu to be the divine ancestress of their entire race and especially of the imperial family. She is the chief divinity in the Japanese Pantheon and the grand shrines of Ise are dedicated to her worship.

Kakichi Kawarada, home minister, said the question of such a holiday required further study. He pointed out that the harvest festival, October 17, already is observed as the day on which the rice harvest is dedicated to the sun goddess and is in a measure her holiday.

Greater veneration of Japan's national gods, those of the Shinto cult, was announced as a plank in Premier Hayashi's platform early this month. This was in keeping with the general trend toward intensification of nationalism in Japan.

Amaterasu stands at the head of the "eighty myriads of gods" which make up the Pantheon of Japan's unique national religion, Shinton, which is shared by no other people.

Orthodox Japanese—The great majority of the people—believe that the first Emperor of Japan, Jimmu Tenno, who is said to have founded the empire in 660 B. C., was a descendant of lesser deities who sprang from the sun goddess' line. Hence he and all his descendants, including the present Emperor, Hirohito—124th in the "line, unbroken for ages eternal—are considered to share her divinity.

Amaterasu is worshiped by the devout in countless Shinto shrines, but the chief seat of her worship is the Grand Shrine of Ise, at Uju-Yamada, 250 miles southwest of Tokyo, highest ranking temple of the Shinto cult.

At intervals the Emperor sends special messengers to Ise to report to his venerated ancestress important events in the history of her people, whether good or evil.

Private Sleuths Help Identify Murder Pistol

Jersey Police Trace Clew to Slayer of N. Y. Union Leader.

By the Associated Press.

Hackensack, N. J., Feb. 22.—A slender clew produced by the work of two private criminoligists led tonight to "the most important" phase in the investigation of the murder of R. Norman Redwood, New York "sandhogs" union leader.

Bergen County Prosecutor John J. Breslin, jr., said the original purchaser of a pistol used in the killing had been determined, and with the widow of the second purchaser would be brought here soon for a conference.

The .38 caliber gun, found not far from Redwood's Teaneck home on a route leading to the George Washington Bridge and New York, was traced to a New York dealer after its filed serial numbers had been raised through a secret process developed by two members of a private crime detection bureau at Elizabeth, N. J.

Was Death Gun.

It was identified as the weapon from which all four shots were fired into Redwood's body as he sat in his automobile in the driveway of his home Friday night.

"We have the name of the man who bought the gun from the dealer in September, 1930," Breslin said.

He referred to the purchaser as "X."

"'X' will be here for questioning," Breslin said. "'X' sold the gun to 'Y.' 'Y' is dead. But Y's wife will also be here for questioning."

He promised a "very important announcement" about the pistol would follow the conference.

Still seeking a motive for the killing in a tangled background of labor and union disputes, Breslin said the murder "was undoubtedly of New York origin and was committed by hired New York gunmen."

$25,000 for Investigation.

Announcing a special appropriation of $25,000 to investigate the crime, Breslin declared his determination to "do all in my power to drive New York gunmen out of this county."

In New York, Samuel Rosoff, wealthy subway builder, whose labor relations with the slain man are under investigation, awaited a hearing before a Supreme Court justice on a material witness warrant.

Breslin has revealed statements from persons interviewed describing alleged threats against Redwood by Rosoff in connection with labor disputes on Rosoff's construction projects. Redwood formerly worked for Rosoff, and workers of Redwood's union were called off a Rosoff sewer project on strike 24 hours before the slaying.

Vt. Students Strike.

Senate Studies Changes Urged In Security Act

60 Insurance Chiefs Back Plan; Fear Huge Reserve to Be Built.

Concerned over the $47,000,000,000 reserve fund the Social Security Board under present law will accumulated by 1980, the Senate Finance Committee yesterday appointed a committee of three Senators to act as informal advisors in studying a shift to a "pay-as-you-go" system of reserves.

Chairman Pat Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi; Arthur Vandenberg, Michigan, Republican, and Harry Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, were asked to co-operate with Social Security Board members in choosing a "disinterested" advisory council to study the situation.

Senator Vandenberg on January 29 introduced a joint resolution in the Senate which called attention to "certain major defects" in the social security act, classing these as the "needless" creation of the $47,000,000,000 full reserve by 1980, which he called a "fiscal and economic menace;" the reduction of the average pension payable in 1942 to less than $20 per month, compared to $46 per month in 1980; and the necessary increase from 2 per cent to 6 per cent in 12 years of the supporting pay roll taxes.

Seeks Early Report.

Vandenberg sought a report by the board by May 1 of a plan to abandon the full reserve system; of an increase of pensions to those retiring in the next 10 to 20 years; the commencement of pension payments in 1939 instead of 1942; the stabilization of pay roll taxes at 2 per cent for the next 5 years, and an extension of the system to agricultural workers and domestics.

Vandenberg's argument, supported by Senator Byrd, was that the results of foreign pension systems, such as that of Sweden, showed conclusively that the pay-as-you-go system, with a small flexible contingent reserve system, had proven to be sounder than the full reserve system now set up here.

Vandenberg added to his argument the names of 60 insurance company presidents who have agreed unanimously, he indicated, that the full reserve program is unnecessary and unwieldy.

Tells of Possibilities.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, newly nominated as chairman of the board by President Roosevelt, outlined to the committee the general possibilities of the suggested Vandenberg plan and agreed that benefits could be started sooner, paid in larger amounts and accompanied by a reduction in payroll taxes. However, the plan's extension to domestics and farm laborers would need study, he said, but could probably be handled through the development of "appropriate administrative processes."

Following are the insurance company officials who, Vandenberg said, supported his plan:

Thomas A. Buckner, president, New York Life Insurance Co.; Carl Haye, president, Guardian Life Insurance Co.; William H. Kingsley, president, Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co.; M. A. Linton, president, Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co.; Edward D. Duffield, president, Prudential Life Insurance Co.; John C. Hill, president, Standard Life Insurance Co.; M. B. Parliament Leftists Urge Goering Be Kept From Coronation After Rumors of Hitler-Planned Invasion of Czechoslovakia

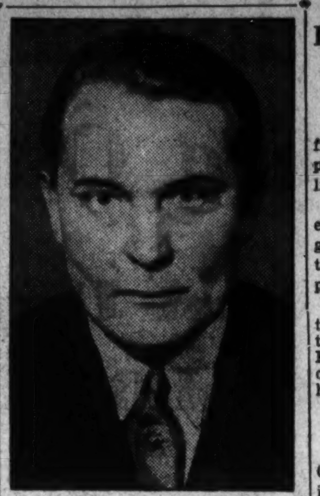
Nationalist Movement in Poland Supported by Four Million.

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 22.—Published rumors that Hitler planned a "putsch" in Czechoslovakia led today to a leftist campaign to keep Gen. Hermann Goering from attending the coronation of King George VI as Germany's representative.



COL. GEN. HERMANN GOERING.

The foreign office said it had no information on a sensational story published in the Sunday Referee that Hitler planned for the German minority in Czechoslovakia to stage a revolt while Great Britain was busy crowning her new monarch in May.

The paper said "full details of the plan, including even the approximate dates, have been discovered by the British secret service."

Ellen Wilkinson, the Laborite who upset tradition when she first appeared in Commons with bobbed hair and a green dress, created a scene in the House today when she demanded a "guarantee" that Goering would not attend.

"Can we have some guarantee that we shall not be insulted by the presence of Gen. Goering as Germany's representative at the coronation?" she asked.

Polish Developments.

Warsaw, Feb. 22 (AP).—Active support of more than 4,000,000 Poles for the country's new Nationalist movement was indicated tonight.

At the same time, opponents of the new cause outlined yesterday by Col. Adam Koc in a nation-wide broadcast sharply criticized the pro-government movement.

Jews, whom sources close to Col. Koc made clear today are not wanted in Poland, were among the critics.

Comments in the Catholic press, however, generally were favorable.

Considerable support came from military sources. Polska Zbrojna, organ of the war ministry, called the program an event of historical importance.

Koc's outline, based on an idea fathered by Gen. Edward Rydz-Smigly, Poland's strong man, erected the frame and foundation of new national unity and would be received with joy throughout the country, the newspaper said.

GEN. EDWARD RYDZ-SMIGLY.

Official sources said there was no connection between Koc's broadcast, said to have been planned long ago by the late Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, and the visit to Poland of Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, chief lieutenant of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany.

Along broad lines, the program rejected communism as "alien" to the Polish spirit, gave Catholicism "a special place," declared tolerance of other creeds, focused attention on national defense, advocated gradual parceling of large land holdings among the peasantry and proposed the state's right to control industry with "respect of private property and individual initiative."

Il Duce Decrees Death to Ethiopians in Graziani Plot.

Death to Ethiopians.

Addis Ababa, Feb. 22 (AP).—Italy's makers of a new Roman empire, stung by an assassin's attack on their new viceroy, ordered the firing squad instead of the peacemaker for the unruly Ethiopians tonight.

From Rome, Chancellor Mussolini decreed:

1. Summary execution for the chamma-clad natives who, on pretense of receiving gifts, threw hand grenades that wounded Rodolfo Graziani, the hard-bitten marshal who fought his way through the sands and marshes of the south to conquer and become the viceroy of Africa's last independent kingdom.

2. Death for every native chieftain or officer who opposes Italian troops, even in the territory yet unoccupied.

Already 2,000 suspects and witnesses in last Friday's bombing have been rounded up; 30,000 troops are in the Addis garrison and speedy courts-martial are to decide those guilty of last week's sudden attack.

Japanese Fear Revolt.

Tokyo, Feb. 22 (AP). — Double guards were ordered to strategic centers throughout the Japanese empire tonight with the approach of the anniversary of last year's dramatic army revolt.

Japanese observers asserted it was possible a small group of military extremists might avail themselves of the February 26 anniversary to stage an incident of a violent nature.

The army meantime came to the defense of Premier Hayashi, War Minister Gen. Gen Sugiyama declaring in the Diet the army has "no inkling of aggressive designs toward China."

This came after the government had turned its attention to Russian armament in Siberia and had told the Diet that was why it demanded strengthening of the empire's army.

Kai-shek Aids Party.

Nanking, Feb. 22 (AP).—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, China's premier, announced tonight the government is framing new regulations which will permit China's Communists "to start life anew."

In a formal statement the generalissimo assured the public the government is making every effort to obtain the co-operation of all patriots ready to serve the nation.

The statement was an amplification of the recent action of the central executive committee of the Kuomitang (National party), which offered peace to the Communists it has been fighting for a decade.

Communists In Brazil.

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 22 (AP).—Luiz Carlos Prestes and Arthur Ewert, in jail many months on charges of plotting to implant a Communist regime in Brazil, will come up for indictment early in March, Justice Raul Machado said today. Their trial will follow soon afterward, said the justice.

Capt. Filinto Mueller, chief of police in the Federal district of Rio de Janeiro, asserted Ewert, who at first claimed to be an American, was really a Prussian, a Communist former member of the German Reichstag, and "the principal agent of the Comintern" (Communist International, which has headquarters in Moscow.) Ewert, Mueller said, was the supervising master mind behind the abortive uprising of November, 1935. Prestes, he declared, was the official figurehead in the revolt.

Dutch Trade Meeting.

The Hague, Feb. 22 (U.P.)—The Netherlands today invited Belgium, Luxembourg, Denmark, Iceland, Norway, Sweden and Finland to meet here March 3 to discuss better economic relations and increase of international trade. It was understood that Premier Hendrik Colijn later would invite Great Britain, Germany and the United States to attend.

Hungarians Held.

Pecs, Hungary, Feb. 22 (AP).—Seven students were arrested and a number injured in a riotous demonstration by more than 200 university students protesting today against professors who acted as patrons for a Jewish students' ball. Police used sabers and sticks to subdue the rioting, finally blockading the students in a university courtyard.

She was Maria Zoro, a widow, who at 37, is a comparative "child bride."

Vedra claims he is the most-married monogamist in the world. He has been twice a widower and 15 times divorced. He boasts 36 children and scores of grandchildren.

Library Stone Ceremony Held At Alexandria

Barrett Memorial Building Exercises Conducted by Masons.

The cornerstone of the Kate Waller Barrett Memorial Library, the building which is being donated by Dr. and Mrs. Robert South Barrett, the former a son of Dr. Kate Barrett, was laid yesterday by officers of Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons, of which Dr. Barrett is a past master.

The new library building is on Queen street, between Washington and Columbus streets, on the site of the old Friends' burial ground. The ceremonies were conducted by A. Slater Lamond, worshipful master of Alexandria - Washington Lodge, assisted by the other officers. C. Vernon Eddy, grand master of Masons in Virginia, who is librarian of the Handley Library in Winchester, was present, and participated in the ceremonies.

Addresses were made by Emmett C. Davison, Mayor of Alexandria, on behalf of the city, which is providing funds for the maintenance of the library; Mrs. Louis S. Scott, president of the library board, and Charles H. Callahan, past grand master of Masons in Virginia.

Callahan, who is noted as a Virginia historian, gave an interesting talk on Dr. Dick, who was called into consultation during Gen. Washington's last illness, and who was buried in the Friends' burial ground, now the site of the library. Dr. Dick according to Callahan, was the only attending physician who objected to the bleeding of Washington, which now is believed to have ben a contributing cause of death, and later on was given credit for having made a correct diagnosis of Washington's ailment, and his protest against the means employed to relieve him were acknowledged to have been justified.

The new building will house the 10,000 volumes of the Alexandria library, which have for many years been kept in inadequate quarters in the Confederate Veterans' Building on King street. Included in the collection are many rare and valuable volumes and manuscripts, which now for the first time will be made available to the public and to students.

The Citizens Band, of Alexandria, played selections.

A day-long program in honor of the birthday of George Washington, was held yesterday by Russell Mitchell Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Alexandria.

The post, early in the forenoon, made a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon, when the war veterans placed three wreaths on the tomb of Washington, representing the State Department of Veterans of Foreign Wars, the local post and the Boy Scout troop which is sponsored by the post. For the Department of Virginia, the wreath was placed by Department Commander J. Earle Jones; that for the local post by Commander John A. Duncan, and the part of the Scouts in the program was directed by Scoutmaster Reuben R. Robinson.

In the evening, the post sponsored a dinner in the George Mason Hotel in honor of the department commander and other visiting officials.

In the evening the birthnight ball of the post was given in the George Mason Hotel, which was attended by national and State officers of the organization, as well as by city officials and members of the post and their families and guests.

The banquet of Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons, of which George Washington was the first worshipful master, was given in honor of his birthday last night in the George Mason Hotel, with A. Slater Lamond, worshipful master, presiding.

James H. Price, lieutenant governor of Virginia and past grand master of Masons in Virginia, was one of the principal speakers. Senator Matthew M. Neely, of West Virginia, who recently served as chairman of the Inaugural committee, also delivered a forceful address. There were approximately 350 guests, including delegates to the annual meeting of the George Washington National Memorial Association, which has charge of the erection of the memorial temple to Washington in George Washington Park.

Russell C. Tirrell, past master of Liberty Lodge, Beverly, Mass., presented the annual greetings of his lodge, and P. Bryant Baker, of Constitutional Lodge, Beverley, England, extended the felicitations of his lodge. Compliments between these two lodges and Alexandria-Washington Lodge have been extended annually for many years.

The George Washington National Memorial Association, which has charge of the erection of the memorial temple to George Washington, met yesterday in the memorial temple and received a financial report showing that during the year last past $66,192 was received toward the completion of the temple, and that $71,000 was spent. Of this latter amount, $10,281 was spent for pointing up the walls of the structure, and $61,149.50 toward completion of the memorial hall. The total amount received and expended to date is $4,030,647.45.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Easton, Md., Feb. 22.—Mrs. Alice J. Hardcastle, this city's 96-year-old "unreconstructed rebel," will be buried tomorrow.

Funeral services for the gracious, keen-witted old lady, widow of Col. J. B. Hardcastle, a Confederate officer credited with having fired the first shot at the Battle of Shiloh, will be held in the Baptist Church here. Burial will be in Spring Hill Cemetery beside husband.

Mrs. Hardcastle died at her home Sunday. She remained vigorous and energetic until her last illness. Had she lived Wednesday she would have been 97 years old.

Married During War.

Eldest of the 12 children of Dr. B. L. Hatch, a planter and slave-owner of Aberdeen, Miss., she grew to girlhood in the ante-bellum South.

As Miss Alice Hatch, she was married during the war. She wore an ancestral bridal veil. After the ceremonies she and her husband fled to their carriage beneath an arch of sabers his brohter officers had drawn.

The fortunes of war were kind. For his bravery at Shiloh, the young officer was promoted from lieutenant to colonel on the battlefield. After the "carpetbaggers" came, the Hardcastles moved to this city in 1876.

Mrs. Hardcastle was fond of telling how her grandfather gave each of his five children $100,000 a great fortune in htose days—and valuable property.

Owned 1,000 Slaves.

The war and the aftermath of the war wiped all this out. Her husband's parents, she told her friends, once owned 1,000 slaves. They kept 25 cradles in one great room to care for the babies and small children of these slaves."

Mrs. Hardcastle was a graduate of fashionable Richmond Female Richmond.
Institute and Hampton College.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. William Maynard, of Aberdeen, and three children, Mrs. W. T. Stevens, of Baltimore; Miss Mary Hardcastle, of Easton, and Mrs. Joseph Thume, of Washington.

Maloney Submits Job Creation Bill

By the Associated Press.

Senator Maloney (Democrat), Connecticut, proposed yesterday establishment of a variable work week, based on the amount of unemployment in the country as determined by biennial census.

He introduced a bill which would prohibit interstate commerce in goods manufactured in violation of the measure's provisions.

The bill provided that the length of the work week range from 30 to 40 hours. The maximum work week would be permitted when less than 2,000,000 employables were found to be jobless, and the minimum would be imposed when unemployment passed the 8,000,000 mark.

Intermediate variations would be 32, 34 and 36 hours with unemployment of 6,000,000, 4,000,000 and 2,000,000 persons, respectively.

The bill called for a census of unemployment to be taken by the census director in 1937 and 1940 and every two years thereafter.

The measure specified that no Government purchases could be made from firms not complying with the work-week restriction, and that no further loans could be made to such firms.

Pension Is Sought For Johnson Slave

The colored man visited President Roosevelt at the White House last week.

Steen said he was writing Senators Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, and Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, suggesting legislation for a pension.

When Johnson returned from Washington last Thursday, carrying a $50 cane given him by President Roosevelt, he said he talked with the Chief Executive about a pension.

"The President told me he would see about it," Williams said. "He told me it would take a special act of Congress to get it."

Flogging Hearing Set For Preacher, Cousin

Whiteville, N. C., Feb. 22 (AP).—A Primitive Baptist preacher and his distant cousin, a former deacon of the same denomination, will be given a preliminary hearing here tomorrow on charges of being implicated in a Thanksgiving night flogging attributed to a masked band of night riders who were reported to have prayed over their victims.

2 Suicide Verdicts Given by Coroner

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued certificates of suicide yesterday in the deaths of Charles E. Hutchison, 31, 1628 Thirty-third street northwest, and James T. Burch, 50, 717 Eighth street southeast.

Hutchison died en route to Emergency Hospital Sunday night from poison taken in a lunchroom in the 1200 block Wisconsin avenue northwest. He collapsed from the dose and was dead on arrival at the hospital. Dr. MacDonald said a note left by the man indicated he was despondent over the loss of a son last year.

The second certificate was issued in Burch's death after he was found unconscious in the purifying room at the Washington Gas Light Co., Twenty-sixth and G streets northwest.

Burch, a carpenter for the company, was found by Lee Raum, foreman at the plant, in the gas-filled room. Raum called the police and Emergency Hospital, and Burch was pronounced dead upon the arrival of a doctor. A note, the contents of which police declined to reveal, was found in the dead man's pocket.

Easy Money.

Nowadays it pays to have a jaundiced eye. Time was when inanities spotted in the public print would net a man no more than the somewhat twisted and altogether unnegotiable satisfaction of seeing them reprinted in a smart magazine. But today, when they can be reached behind their barricades, the editors of the New Republic will pay a dollar apiece for such items. Here is a sample of what they like, and entertaining it is, too:

> Most of the debutanies and sub-debs, our so-called "play-boys," are hard-working women and men in the business world. Some are clerks in department stores, some do secretarial work, some even do menial labor.—From a letter signed "Polly" in the New York Times.

A footnote in "The Bandwagon" column in which this appears advises that "readers are invited to contribute." No stipulation is made concerning sources of contributions. That being so, some one should be able to pick up some easy money by clipping a sentence from the current issue of the New Republic itself. But it ought to be worth two dollars instead of one. It's a natural. Here it is, from an article entitled "Unpacking the Supreme Court" by Leon Green:

> Had the President's message on the judiciary not come at a time when an impasse existed between the New Deal and the Supreme Court, it would have been hailed by lawyers and the press as statesmanship of the first order.

The Child Labor Amendment.

A current poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion indicates that over three-fourths of the electorate now approve the pending child labor amendment, with favorable majorities reported from all of the 48 States. This will very likely be cited as evidence that the wishes of the electorate are defeated by the slow and cumbrous processes of Constitutional amendment. And at first glance there appears to be justification for this belief in the fact that the amendment was submitted over 12 years ago, while to date only 27 States have approved it.

Nevertheless, the failure of State Legislatures to register popular sentiment on this issue is undoubtedly much less flagrant than the statistics would indicate. For many years opposition to Federal regulation of child labor was very strong among organized industrial groups. There was also an effective criticism, voiced by disinterested students of economics and government, who for various reasons believed that State regulation of child labor was preferable to Federal control. On the other hand, the mass of the electorate remained more or less apathetic, either from ignorance or indifference, showing little interest in the question.

The present poll, therefore, is primarily evidence of the rapidity with which public sentiment has been aroused by the depression to demand protection against the social evils of exploiting child labor. Even during the nine months since the last Gallup poll was taken on this question there has been a pronounced rise in the vote favoring the amendment. Opinion in Maryland, for instance, has in that period turned a small adverse majority into a 71-29 division for its adoption. It is also significant that in the eight years prior to 1933 only 6 States approved the amendment, while in the past four years 21 Legislatures have acted favorably.

If the child labor amendment had been accompanied by a provision for ratification by State conventions instead of Legislatures and if there had been a time limit placed upon the period during which ratification could be secured, there would have been a much better chance of really testing public sentiment on the proposal without prolonged delay. It does not follow that the response would have been favorable in the mid-twenties.

The speed with which the repeal of the prohibition amendment was achieved through the medium of State conventions, under pressure of popular demand, shows that the processes of amendment are not necessarily slow. State Legislatures are not as responsive to the public will as they ideally should be. But even so, they probably can be counted upon to respond to any really definite and decisive public demand for a change in the basic form of government.

In short, the experience with the child labor amendment proves only two facts. First, that the reform was initiated before the sentiment in favor of it was strong enough to carry it to speedy victory; second, that those Legislatures which still oppose it are unrepresentative both of national and of local feeling on this issue.

Liberalism Vs. Expediency.

There is reason for general satisfaction over the trend of the debate on the Supreme Court issue. Camouflage and irrelevant considerations are gradually being pushed aside. More and more the discussion is centering on those fundamentals of American government which are called into question by the President's proposal.

On this basis Senator Nye, along with other members of the liberal bloc in the Senate, has taken a very positive stand in opposition to packing the court. The North Dakotan believes with President Roosevelt that the courts have taken too narrow a view of the Constitution. He insists that "the power of the courts must be checked." But he draws the line against "letting an immediate irritation hastily drive us to impair essentials of the constitutional structure."

Senator Nye's address is a most emphatic reply to those who support the President's plan for enlargement of the Supreme Court on the ground that it is the mildest course that could be adopted. To pack the court, he points out, would weaken constitutional guarantees for all time. "We are being asked to grant these new powers, not only for today, not only as affecting the AAA or the Guffey coal bill, or pending labor legislation," the Senator declared, "but for the long, cloudy, storm-ridden future, with all the proposals that such a future may bring forth."

Certainly no one can determine what sort of legislation this or another President would request once the restraints of judicial review were relaxed. Mr. Nye suggests that "the bag of surprises" from which Mr. Roosevelt has drawn so heavily during the last four years is bottomless. At any rate, with a supreme tribunal amenable to executive wishes, "the security provided for the protection of the Constitution" would be, as James Bryce so aptly said, "gone like a morning mist."

Instead of being a mild and harmless measure, therefore, the President's attempt to subordinate justices who do not reflect his views may be more accurately described as far the most dangrous short-cut to social reform that has yet been proposed.

To understand these dangers it is essential only to reflect on the nature of the American system of govrnment. Political authority in this country is specifically divided between the States and the Federal Government. In turn, these two fields of power are carefully divided between executive, legislative and judicial agencies. This delicate balance, especially designed to grant the fullest measure of liberty to the people, could not possibly be maintained without independent interpretation of the basic law by which our governmental powers have been thus distributed.

As Senator Nye has suggested, failure of judicial review would cause a "governmental Tower of Babel." Restraints upon Congress would be eliminated, and the system of local self-government—one of the strongest traditions in America—could be completely swept away by a dictatorial President. When an Attorney General actually suggests that the Constitution was never intended to serve as a check upon Federal power such possibilities can not be dismissed as the products of disturbed imaginations.

A substantial group of liberals in the Senate are now lined up against the President's plan. They are showing convincingly that it would effect revolutionary changes without the consent of the people, and thus threaten the very foundations of popular self-government. Crystallization of this viewpoint tends to shift the principal fight to the sharp line which separates true from specious liberalism.

Provincetown Phantasm.

In Washington, of course, it's starlings. Presumably it's llamas in Lima. But in Provincetown—to judge from current reports—it's cats. They have become such a nuisance around the base of the Pilgrim's Monument, out on the tip of Cape Cod, that the town has commissioned two special officers to conduct a clean-up.

So, along the wharves, among the salty gear of the cod and mackerel boats, traps are being slyly installed to catch the unwary tabby. The plan was to bait them with fish-ends but the wise Joes and Manuels of the fishing fleet, who have been cleaning catches at dockside for generations, know that the cats of Provincetown "she no lak." Cooked fish it must be, say they. Thus far-reaching have been the effects of the unwitting experiment of that forgotten man who, picking ruefully at the pigs in the ashes of his Chinese home, licked his burnt fingers and first discovered roast pork.

The surplus of cats is thought to result from the hard-heartedness of Provincetown's summer columnists. Off these people trundle after Labor Day, leaving their erstwhile pets to fend for themselves. Maeterlinck once shuddered at the thought of a world wherein domestic animals and men would change roles. The hen, he feared, would gobble us up like succulent grubs, the horse would grimly retaliate for ages of whippings, while the cat, if ruler of the earth, would put man to long-drawn tortures, ending the horror at last by a quick and certain pounce.

What fate would befall the Cape Codders if this phantasm should ever materialize? With cats in charge, men and women in thin smocks and slacks would be seen of a winter's night slinking out to the fish-glue factory below Provincetown to rummage for edible morsels in the bins of that unsavory landmark. Others, crouching in the dark of the breakwater, would paw hopelessly through the icy flotsam of the rocks.

Meanwhile in the town, before warm stoves, would be sitting the new masters—purring the probability of Eugene O'Manx's next experiment at the Playhouse, debating whether to plan an outing at Truro or Wellfleet when the Mousers arrived for the week-end, or comparing their own seascapes with the work of the latest rage, that absurd surrealist, Felino.

"Peace Act," 1937 Model.

Senator Pittman is eminently correct in pointing out that the so-called neutrality bill, favorably reported out on Saturday by the Foreign Relations Committee, has nothing to do with neutrality. Whether he will prove equally accurate in calling the measure the "Peace Act of 1937" is much more doubtful.

The bill has nothing to do with neutrality because on the one hand it seeks to deprive Americans of freedom of action, in the event of foreign war, which by no accepted definition could be called unneutral. And on the other hand it serves notice in advance that the United States will draw no distinctions between a violator of international law and the victim of that violation. This is not neutrality. It is a compound of ignorance, timidity and ineffective isolationism.

The measure not merely effectively undermines the Kellogg Pact but also cuts squarely across the trade agreements policy whereby Secretary Hull has sought to substitute economic internationalism for autarchy of the made-in-Germany model. This utter contradiction in our foreign policy, of course, explains why Secretary Hull weakly failed to testify before the Senate committee on the probable effects of the Pittman measure. He must know that it threatens to blow the bottom out of the trade policy for which he has worked so assiduously.

The Pittman bill, if enacted, will do wonders to stimulate the world race in armaments already under way. By partially withdrawing America from the international picture, in the event of war, it will force preparedness in advance among all countries which have a large normal trade with us. American agriculture will suffer by the forced development of alternative sources of supply elsewhere. We shall not have to wait for war abroad to see the consequences of this legislation.

Those who will be most surprised at the outcome will be those emotional pacifists who have lined up for what they call "mandatory neutrality." As this policy encourages feverish armament programs elsewhere we shall similarly fall in line. The first indications of this are already at hand; but only the first indications. The "Peace Act of 1937" is certain to be followed by even higher American naval, air and military appropriations.

It can be said that the bill might be worse, that it might place a rigid mandatory embargo on the export of any supplies to belligerents in the event of war abroad. But to say this is merely to say that Congress has not the courage of its convictions. It is not willing to pay the price of that real isolation which might, at terrific cost, make this so-called neutrality policy effective in insulating the United States from world events.

The compromise "cash and carry" provision is a perfect illustration of this failure to look the issue in the face. It places a premium on command of the seas which makes further talk of naval disarmament absurd. It means that in a European war we side automatically with Great Britain and that in an Asiatic war we side automatically with Japan, provided only that their fleets rule respectively the Atlantic and the Pacific.

As Great Britain and Japan augment naval construction to accept this situation it may be hoped we shall at least have the grace not to criticize them for a direct result of our "Peace Act of 1937."

Recently, for the first time in many weeks, there was a lull in the news. A Japanese spy, Wally Simpson and a newly discovered comet simultaneously made page 1.

"The sit-down strike originated several years ago in France," declares an editor who has never had to depend on a type of transportation in which the motive power was supplied by a Georgia mule.

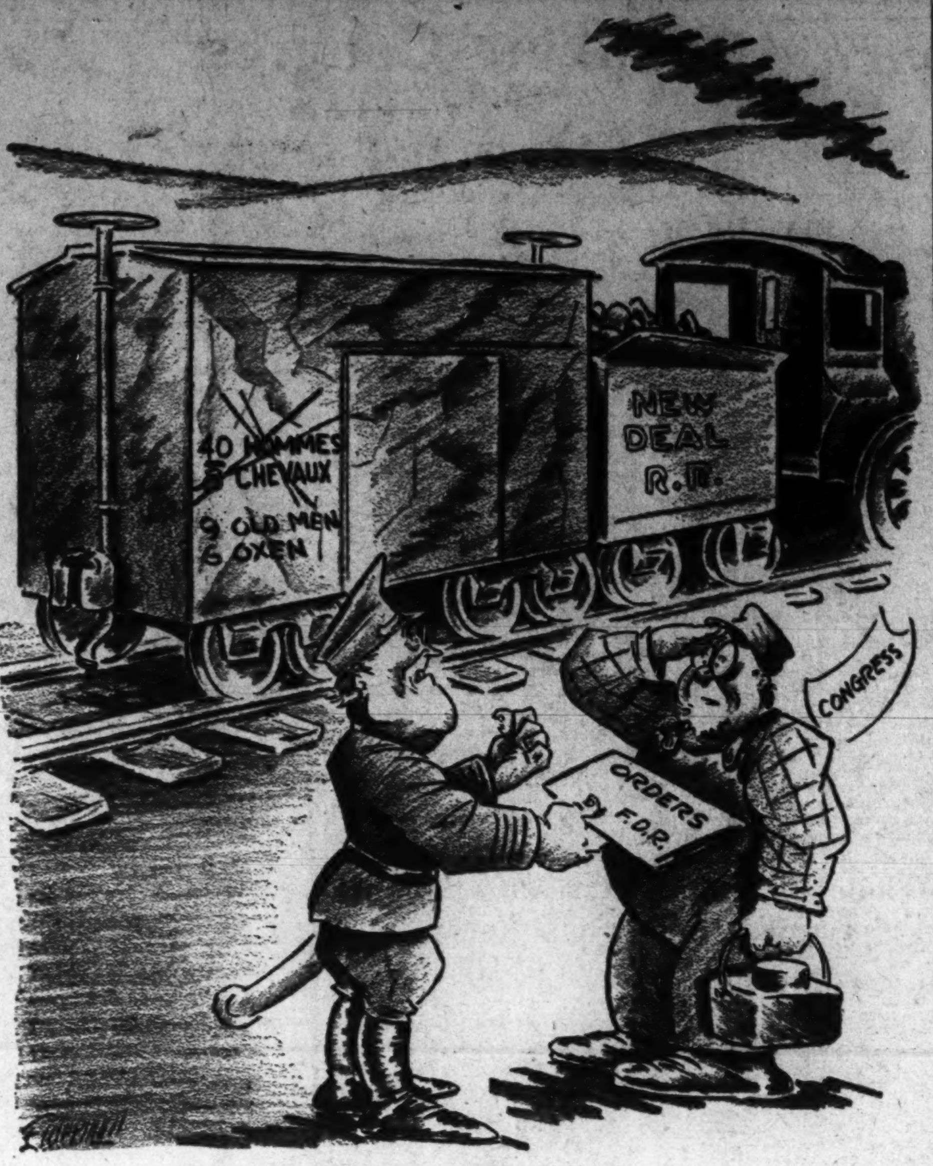
Narcotics Hospital.

From the Dallas Morning News.

The Federal Government's new $4,000,000 hospital for narcotics addicts, of which the cornerstone was laid at Fort Worth Saturday, represents a marked advance in the treatment of victims of dangerous drugs. What these persons need are not barred cells, but medical treatment and protection from return of the habit.

The new hospital and farm, which will accommodate 1,200 patients, will be equipped with an adequate staff of resident physicians. Patients will include several groups of addicts: Federal prisoners, those who choose to remain after completion of their sentences, those placed on probation by Federal courts and any who may seek treatment voluntarily.

While all these efforts should be kept up, and perhaps increased, basic solution of the narcotics problem must await international action in limiting the supply of raw narcotics to legitimate needs. The limiting of the growth of opium poppies, from which most narcotics are derived, will be possible when all nations are willing to co-operate toward this end. Today, Japan is the chief nation standing in the way of such co-operation.



Take 'Em To The Front.

Against Jefferson Memorial Plan

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The decision of the Jefferson Memorial Commission to erect a version of Agrippa's Pantheon as a memorial to a great apostle of democratic simplicity is a singular choice.

The brigadiers of culture who arbitrate Washington's architecture already have weighted the city with monumental specimens of imperial Roman classicism, and this in the Capital of a fresh and new democracy. Washington is located in a section noted for its graceful, indigenous architecture, of which the White House is a good example.

Good American, however, is apparently not good enough for the Capital City. Now as an added flourish to national incongruity the memory of our country's greatest advocate of democracy is to be enshrined in a turgid marble refrigerator, planted in the muddy waters of the Tidal Basin. (Or do the plans include a filtration plant to strain out the orange peels and dead fish?)

It is generally conceded that if ever the spirit, hopes and political philosophy of the American nation were to be summed up in one man and his works, that man would be Thomas Jefferson. Yet, as a memorial, the commission has chosen to erect a reproduction of an imperial Roman structure built by the Emperor Agrippa in 27 B. C., in commemoration of his defeat of the fleet of Anthony and Cleopatra at Actium.

Among Agrippa's other works, might it be noted his great-grandson Nero and his granddaughter, Agrippina II, Nero's mother, that poisonous schemer who was murdered at her son's order to put an end to her destructive mischief. This, then, is part of the imperial pedigree of the memorial to an exponent of agrarian democracy.

In making its selection the commission seems to have considered every aspect of Jefferson's character except the essential fact that he was an American. When it invokes merely "the evidence of his esthetic leanings as shown in works executed under his direction and also in his writings and drawings," the commission apparently ignores his essential spirit. In view of the choice, one wonders if the architect realized Jefferson's writings include the Declaration of Independence or whether he had the impression that he authored the ditty about the pleasure dome of Kubla Khan.

Certainly the heritage of political philosophy which Jefferson bequeathed to the United States has had far more influence in shaping its destiny than his preference in architecture. The choice of the memorial seems to have been determined not so much by Jefferson's intellectual concepts as by his design of a rotunda at Charlottesville. If such reasoning is to be the basis by which his monument is to be determined, infinite possibilities also logically could be considered.

Jefferson, as any visitor to Monticello can testify, was one of the world's greatest gadgeteers. It would be as just to erect a temple of gadgets in his memory, with thingamajigs to be worked by perspiring sightseers, as to confine the choice of a memorial to a specimen of an architectural style he utilized.

Nor can the office of the architect who won the contract be accused of other consistency. To an Egyptian obelisk for Washington and a Greek temple for Lincoln, now is to be added a Roman Pantheon for Jefferson, all laid out on the mall Jefferson contributed to the city plan. Confronted by such mortuary potpourri, one trembles to think what might be in store for the next of our illustrious dead to be nominated for commemoration.

If simplicity was a keynote in Jefferson's character, then certainly his shades are in for some violent treatment.

But, then, we always have been curious in our choice of monuments to the dead.

JOHN ST. RICHARDS.
Washington, Feb. 20.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of February 21 in re the Jefferson Memorial may reach only a few. Please get busy and do your best to prevent that building from being constructed in the "marsh."

Jefferson chose a hill for his home and there is property facing the plaza near the Senate Office Building which could well be used. The sub-basement of the Senate Office Building is not even damp, while the basements in buildings in the Mall permit mold to form on documents.

The Lincoln Memorial is on a slight elevation; the Washington Monument towers above the mosquito-infested marsh. And there is room "on the Hill" for the Sage of Monticello.

Washington, Feb. 21.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This is to follow up a letter which appeared in The Post of February 17, just two days before the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission announced its plan to build another marble temple in Washington at a cost of $3,000,000.

The money has not been appropriated yet through the appropriations committees of Congress, but bills have been passed authorizing the project.

There is great need in Washington, as leading civic organizations have testified, for a beautiful municipal auditorium. Built of marble and other substantial materials, the structure would have the essential character, dignity, usefulness and permanence which the entire nation would welcome.

It certainly would be just as permanent as any Greek or Roman temple conceived by John Russell Pope, the architect, who is known to worship at the shrine of the Pantheon, which, of course, dates back to the days of Hadrian, the Roman emperor.

We are now compelled to ask, therefore: Why spend this huge sum of money on an enterprise which does not truly and completely represent the colonial period in America? That is the period to which Jefferson belonged. Is it asking too much, for example, if the taxpayers desire a suitable memorial to Thomas Jefferson, that it be useful as well as ornamental and esthetic in its purpose. There is every reason to believe that the people of the nation desire a great memorial to honor the author of the Declaration of Independence, but it is no less true they would welcome a structure of a permanently useful character.

We have enjoyed a substantial and time-honored architectural design of the colonial period, and there is no reason for us to bow awe-stricken and remain in dumb silence before the regal majesty that was Rome. America does not typify those things, however much we glory in the greatness of a long-vanished empire. Certainly, in the name of Thomas Jefferson, of all things, we should not take as a prototype a structure conceived as a temple of all the gods—and there were plenty of them—honored by the Pantheon.

I only ask, in the name of decency and the nation's less articulate citizenry, that we appropriate funds for a useful memorial to Thomas Jefferson which, in the end, will be a more fitting symbol of the third President of the United States.

Certainly commission members, intrusted with this responsibility, require somewhat more imagination than they have shown. The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission, headed by Congressman John J. Boylan, probably did the very best it could, but that is not good enough for the American people. With all due respect for the services of the commission, I believe it is the duty of every citizen to make known his or her wishes in this matter, if we are to receive a memorial of permanent value to the nation.

LOUIS BESSEMER.
Washington, Feb. 20.

To the Edtior of The Post—Sir: What a travesty on justice is the proposed memorial to Thomas Jefferson!

To erect a magnificent structure, which will rival if not overshadow the memorial to Lincoln, the greatest American next to Washington, to a man who, with all the force of his brilliant and adroit powers, vilified, misrepresented and opposed Washington through his entire career and who fought consistently the formation of a Federal Government!

Now this same Government proposes to reward his enmity magnificently!

At least common decency would suggest some plan not to dwarf or double the memorial to Lincoln. The only explanation of this strange phenomenon is that members of this committee, in company with the majority of Americans, are ignorant of many of the true facts of Jefferson's life.

Jefferson was violently abusive and entirely unjust—qualities obscured by his brilliancy and personal charm. He has received already far beyond his deserts and it is time that his true character be known. FLORENCE AUGUSTE.

Way To Dictatorship.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Eugene Hudgin's homely fireside philosophy seems at variance with the facts. His naive remark that "most employers are fair with their help" is so absurd, that it is hard to believe that even the author of this remark accepts it for the truth. Certainly if the majority of employers were fair, there would hardly be any occasion to strike, unless it were for recognition of a union or regulation of shorter hours of work. Mr. Hudgin's hard-headed Tory intellect represents the reasoning of a comfortable gentleman, well fed, clothed and housed, who rubs his carefully manicured hands in front of the fire and reports all is right with the world.

In the same issue carrying Mr. Hudgin's letter we find the following statements to refute any argument that now is the time for spring and laisser-faire—we are informed that:

1. State and local governments are finding it increasingly difficult to finance direct relief programs.
2. Clinics report relief allowances per family are too low in the South. Malnutrition is common in certain areas.
3. WPA wages are inadequate for minimum subsistence.
4. American family life is being destroyed because of present social conditions among low-income and unemployed families.
5. Non-residents are inadequately cared for in many States. In three they get no aid.

Add to the above the fact that too many Americans are indifferent to or ignorant of existing conditions in their own communities, while others, especially the moneyed class, oppose any and all legislation that would tend to improve conditions of the American people as a whole, you have excellent possibilities for a situation that may force America into acceptance of dictatorship of one form or another.

JOHN C. ROGERS.

Philatelic Solomon.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Literary Digest, February 20, page 5, states "At the moment, South Carolina and Georgia Legislatures are howling about Gen. Sherman being included on the February 3-center" (stamp).

But first think how vigorously and completely it will be canceled in those States.

Continuing the article: "The next commemorative issue will carry portraits of Gens. Robert E. Lee and Thomas J. (Stonewall) Jackson." These stamps will probably be vigorously and completely canceled in the North. Why not keep these stamps as permanent issues, keeping Sherman in the South and Lee in the North? This would insure the Postoffice Department from loss by the second use of carelessly canceled stamps.

Now let's smile and forget.

"It's A Farce!"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to throw some stones at this "snow-removal" law. It's a farce.

During the recent snow, while an inch of slush was on the street and rapidly melting an ash truck with a scraper came grumbling up the street and actually attempted to remove the snow. As if there was snow! As if it did remove the snow! It's a farce!

The regulation seems to be getting siller. Why harass the motorist any more? Snow removal! Pooey! It's a farce! HYMAN FRADIN.

Artist Nature.

THE Doctor is a baby among them; he is only half way through the sixth decade, but the Old Timers are fond of him. He has been particularly busy this winter; pretty nearly everybody has had the influenza; or a bad cold, which they prefer to call the flu; and there are few houses in the county he hasn't visited; and that includes the homes of the Old Timers. So it was the most natural thing in the world that when they learned he was soon to have a birthday anniversary they thought of giving him a present of some sort.

It was decided at last, after much debate, that the present should be a set of Dickens' works, strong, durable books with large print.

"He hasn't much time for reading," said Demosthenes McGinnis, "but they will make his waiting room more attractive."

Abel Winters, a farmer, heard them discuss it and thought he would like to be "in on it." But this could not be. He was not an Old Timer. He was an infant of forty-five.

"But," said Capt. Ebenezer Longbow, "if you put up a dollar you can have your name on the flyleaf of one of the books and anybody else can get in on the same terms. We buy the books and the extra dollars for signatures go into his hospital fund."

So it was settled on that basis. The books were bought, sent direct to The Storekeeper at the local postoffice and were there signed by 20 people before the end of the week. If there had been more time the fund would have been much larger.

Well, anyhow, that explains why the Judge, Casual Smith, Capt. Longbow and Mr. McGinnis were in Washington together. After they had made their purchase they sat down in a quiet place, ate, drank, smoked and talked.

The Judge, who carries a large stock of quotations, discussed Dickens and used the phrase "holding the mirror up to nature," and that started Casual Smith.

* * * *

Nature is forever holding the mirror up to Art (said Casual Smith) and we live our lives in terms of music and painting and drama.

Consider Nature as a painter. She is never satisfied with her work. She paints the leaves of a tree green, a pale green at first; then she darkens the green and makes the leaves larger; then turns them red and yellow; after which she decides that the leaves on the trees would look better on the ground, so she puts them there and gives the effect of the wind playing with them.

And the green of the fields she turns white with snow, and puts footprints across them. Yes, Nature does. Feet are natural, aren't they?

Why, bless you, Nature can make a beautiful picture out of an old shoe on a dump. "A fine bit of still life that," says Nature. "Up against that old tomato can the effect is truly charming. But I think a little touch of green and white would improve its appearance." So she gives it a touch of white and green mold; and goes on improving the picture until there is nothing left of the old shoe, nor of the tomato can, either.

It is a wee mite discouraging, but it has its lessons. It teaches us that we have our limitations. Nature is forever holding executive sessions to dispose of unfinished business. We've got to get our little business done.

Consider the plight of the painter who tries to paint the picture of a blonde girl in a white calico dress, standing in the snow against a white-washed cottage, with the sun brightly shining and casting shadows. The best he can do is to make some of his whites grays and blues.

Art is a perpetual compromise. We are continually striving and not getting anywhere. And who knows but that Nature herself also experiences this perpetual striving and that she forever falls short of what she desires?—that she, too, has a conception of art, and an ideal that she is vainly trying to achieve?

Consider a flower; any flower; it wins what to us seems perfection in color, form and balance. But the work is not altogether satisfactory to the spirit within, so she washes it out in the fall and prepares for another trial the following spring.

Consider ourselves. Every one of our lives is a work of art of a sort; some dramas and some farces; some masterpieces and some comic strips; and some, some sort of music. But is the life of any man ever wholly as he planned? Never. For with all due respect to Mr. Henley no man is master of his fate; and he is only captain of his soul until he gets a speck of dust in his eye.

* * * *

"That is dangerous doctrine, Casual," said the Judge, disapprovingly. "It blights the aspirations of youth."

"It is, but it doesn't," said Casual Smith, "for, happily, youth never knows it. And, for the matter of that, age is none the better for the knowledge."

"It explains the influenza germs beautifully," said Captain Longbow, anxious to make a diversion. "They vie with each other to give my nose and eyes a beautiful shade of red and the tunes played on my pipes are weird and wonderful."

But the Judge was not to be placated. "It makes light of life's mysteries," he complained.

"Mysteries?" repeated Demosthenes McGinnis, sardonically. "Take it from Casual, there are no mysteries. It is all done with mirrors."

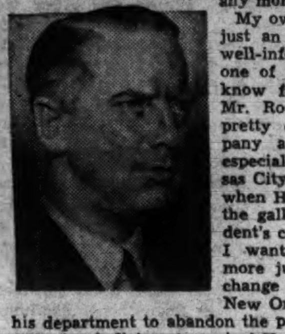
Supreme Court Suspicions.



I HAVE READ hundreds of columns of argument and comment on the Supreme Court thing and my impression is that these others are merely expressing their own well-known prejudices and don't know any more about it than I do.

My own attitude, and it is just an attitude and not a well-informed conclusion, is one of suspicion, because I know for a certainty that Mr. Roosevelt keeps some pretty dirty political company around the country, especially in Chicago, Kansas City and Louisiana. And when Homer Cummings has the gall to plead the President's case against the court I want to ask him once more just what caused the change of atmosphere in New Orleans which decided his department to abandon the prosecution of the income tax indictments against Huey Long's boys after Huey's death and the great political reconciliation. After Mr. Cummings disposes of that satisfactorily I can listen to him on the subject of a branch or department of the Government which has always seemed to me to be much cleaner than his own.

* * * *

THE MERE LAPSE of time doesn't blur the reality of the unfinished business in New Orleans, where the Federal Court system found indictments which were held as a club over the political opponents of the Administration as long as the opposition lived, but were quietly tossed out the window when the opposition made peace. The dismissal makes it appear that the Federal Courts were put to political purposes in Louisiana, and the whole case gives me to suspect that the President might use the Supreme Court similarly if he should ever get control of it.

That Louisiana case was pretty raw. Huey was giving the President plenty of trouble down there, but the boys in Washington thought they had him over a barrel in the income tax matter. So either they were using the law and the court for political coercion in the first place or they quit cold for political peace in the second place, which would have been just as bad.

It isn't as though they had ever given any reasonable explanation. The announcement just said the cases were being dropped because of a change of atmosphere, which strikes me as a plea of guilty. This kind of doing is all reminiscent of Huey's own methods, and the packing of the courts was one of his favorite tricks, too. When Huey wanted to bear down on an opponent in Louisiana he would go over the man's tax accounts and drive him crazy or into bankruptcy or surrender. If the fellow surrendered, the grudge died and everything was hotsy-totsy.

And now everything is hotsy-totsy between the Administration and Mr. Long's old boys in New Orleans. But in view of the political enmity it should have been left to the juries to decide whether the indictments were well founded. What is this, anyway, the Department of Justice or the Weather Bureau which disposes of serious indictments because of a change of atmosphere?

* * * *

I THINK IT would help some people to reach a decision on the Supreme Court proposal to know in advance just whom Mr. Roosevelt has in mind for appointment to the bench. Some of his other appointments have not been too hot and I wonder if he has any Theodore Bilbos or Rev. Stanley Highs in reserve. If there is some mad hatter among the President's selections, the naming of the names just now would give the people a chance to pass judgment on his sincerity. A little inquiry into the records, predilections and character of the men would indicate whether he wants to name judges or just another prizefight commission composed of political clowns and widget-manufacturers.

I think my suspicions are sharpened, too, by the cordial family relations existing between the national party, which, of course, is the Administration, and the local organizations, which, in some towns, extend right down into the underworld of gambling houses and dumps.

Reluctantly, but more and more, I incline to the belief that Mr. Roosevelt is like an order of fish. Generally speaking, his stuff is all right, but you want to be careful not to choke on the bones.

Nanking Congress

Executive Committees Of Kuomintang Party Deliberate Future Of Nation; Ex-Premier Wang Returns.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Nanking.

A BITTER CLASH of ideas and men is in progress here today at the plenary session of the central executive and the central supervisory committees of the Kuomintang Party, which rules China. Upon the outcome of this encounter hang momentous changes in the internal organization of the Chinese government and in its domestic and foreign policies.

If Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, who until his capture in Sian in December was China's undisputed ruler, has his will, there will be an important reshuffle in the personnel of the government. Leading members of the so-called pro-Japanese faction will be forced to hand over their portfolios to statesmen less willing to entertain Nippon's advances, while a berth will also be made for Mr. Wang Ching-wei, a veteran Kuomintang leader and his henchmen.

Another anticipated result is the legalization of the Popular Front and the various so-called National Salvation Associations, hitherto held in iron gloves. Six leading advocates of the "Front Populaire" today languish in a Soochow jail, awaiting trial for challenging Gen Chiang's autocratic rule.

The last issue over which political passions are raging is the all-important question of relations with Japan. Despite the recent almost incredible reversal in Tokyo's policy toward China, anti-Nipponism is again sweeping the country, under the expert guidance of the Communists and the liberal elements.

Rivalries Involve Three Foreign Powers.

THE BATTLE over these three issues is being fought over a background of personal and factional rivalries and of international intrigue involving Japan, Great Brittin and Soviet Russia.

Running through the entire discussion is Gen. Chiang's grim determination to settle accounts with his foe, to carry out the terms on which he is said to have been released from the hands of Sian rebels and to satisfy the general clamor for the democratization of the government with the least loss of authority and prestige.

Slated for dismissal are two leading figures in the government: Gen. Chang Chun, foreign minister, and Gen. Ho Ying-chin, war minister, both of whom are regarded as leading Japanophiles in the Nanking administration.

The exact reasons for which Gen. Chang's replacement is being sought is uncertain. Political observers here hold him guilty of readiness to come to terms with Japan if these do not excessively curtail China's sovereign rights. He is also accused of seeking to precipitate a conflict between the Central Government and the recalcitrant generals in Sian in the hope of retaining his political job.

Rumored as his successor is Dr. W. W. Yen, former Ambassador to Russia and a member of that group of distinguished diplomats which includes Dr. Sze, of Washington; Dr. C. T. Wang, his successor, and Mr. Quo Tai-chi, Ambassador to London. Dr. Yen belongs to no political clique, but the fact that he has just returned from Moscow is held as a significant indication of new trends in Chinese diplomacy.

Gen. Ho Ying-chin has always been regarded as one of the leading Japanophiles in the Government, and for this reason alone is liable to dismissal in the present circumstances. As I reported last month, he has been charged by a foreigner, who took a leading part in obscuring the Generalissimo's release, with plotting to provoke the rebels into murdering their captive.

Loss Of Chang And Ho Offset By Pro-Nippon Wang.

of her well-wishes in the government in the person of Gens. Chang and Ho, Tokyo is already voicing its satisfaction with the return to Nanking of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, former premier, whom a would-be assassin severely wounded late in 1935 for his alleged pro-Nipponese sympathies.

Mr. Wang's reappearance on the political scene marks China's return to a two-man form of government, with Gen. Chiang controlling the army (and through his relatives the national coffers) and Mr. Wang dominating the civil administration.

With Mr. Wang will come into the government a large group of his political associates, who lost their posts folllowing the murderous attack on him. Mr. Wang is no longer the idol of the intelligentsia that he was in the years immediately following the northern punitive expedition of 1926-27, but he still wields considerable influence. Moreover, he is obviously seeking the support of the moneyed class by advocating a peaceful settlement of all Sino-Japanese problems and determined opposition to communism.

In his first address on his return to Nanking Mr. Wang bitterly assailed the currently prevalent demand for the formation of a national front, inclusive of Communists, to combat foreign aggression.

"Since armed resistance against foreign encroachment will necessarily mean gambling with the existence of the nation," he declared, "China must first have strenght to repulse the aggressors before she can resort to such a course.

"Past experience has taught us that whenever the government troops are mobilized to the nation's frontiers to repulse foreign invaders, the Reds immediately attacked the rear. This proves that the Communists must first be suppressed."

Momentous Changes Recorded In Past Year.

IN THE PAST YEAR or two, momentous changes have taken place in the national consciousness which found little reflection in the Government. The Nanking administration has been completely dominated by Gen. Chiang, who quietly, albeit effectively, expanded the sphere of his influence and military power. The general assumption was that this strength was being accumulated for war on Japan and the nation readily contributed to the defense fund.

The stern demands presented to Nanking last fall by Japan caused general resentment, which, under the guidance of Red agitators and radically inclined National Salvation Societies, gradually were transformed into demands for resistance to Nippon.

The Nanking government's policy of suppressing free speech and other popular rights also resulted in the birth of a Popular Front movement, whose two-fold aims included the democratization of the Nanking administration and opposition to external foes.

The enormous popularity enjoyed by these groups became evident during the Sian coup, and the present deliberations here may yet result in the recognition of the new trends in public opinion.

The leading spirit of the "Front Populaire" is Mme. Sun Yat-sen, wife of the "Father of the Chinese Revolution" and a noted radical. She and her followers are being supported at the present congress by the representatives of the bitterly anti-Japanese southern warlords and the recalcitrant northwestern chieftains. If Gen. Chiang is to carry out the reported terms of the Sian agreement, he must accord recognition to the demands of these groups.

Oriental policies are difficult to fathom. The current deliberations might end in an old-fashioned compromise, under the terms of which each faction will receive representation on the government and the displaced officials will be commissioned to study conditions abroad. They might, on the other hand, result in significant developments, bound to have major repercussions both at home and abroad.

Trousseau Styles Viewed in Cannes By Mrs. Simpson

Cannes, Feb. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Simpson had the French dressmakers atwitter about trousseaux today, but, it seems, she's "just looking."

With Mrs. Herman Rogers, her Riviera hostess, she was a spectator at Sunday's Patou style show at the Casino. The newest spring and summer fluffs were paraded past her table.

Today, though, she let it be known she "has not received or ordered anything, either designs or fabrics, from anybody, and hasn't decided what to buy or where to buy it."

(From Vienna, Sir Walter T. Monckton flew toward London today from a conference with Edward, Duke of Windsor. Sir Walter, who is attorney general of the Duchy of Cornwall, carried a brief case in which, it was reported, were papers relating to a royal stipend for Edward, who wants to marry Mrs. Simpson as soon as possible after her decree of divorce becomes final April 27.)

13-Year-Old Girl Happy At Birth of Second Child

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 22 (AP).—Blonde, 13-year-old Mrs. Mary Keller smiled up from a bed in her two-room rural home today "happy as can be" over the fact that she was twice a mother.

Her husband, Truman Keller, 26, said he was happy, too, just as when their first child came 21 months ago—when Mary was 11. The "new addition," a 6¼-pound boy, was born February 15.

Goodwill President Expresses Thanks

Col. William O. Tufts, president of the board of trustees of Goodwill industries, an organization which provides employment for more than 60 handicapped persons, paid tribute yesterday to those who have made Goodwill become one of Washington's outstanding philanthropic institutions.

Speaking at a George Washingtton's Birthday reception at the organization's new headquarters, 1218 New Hampshire avenue northwest, Col. Tufts told how rapidly Goodwill industries had grown during the past 18 months. It employed only three temporary workers at the time it was started.

Col. Tufts said that the institution had paid out $2.25 in wages for every dollar contributed. More than 600 persons attended the open-house yesterday. Visitors were conducted through the plant by members of the board of trustees

Religious Leaders Hit Ousting of Minister

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Fifteen Christian and Hebrew religious leaders joined today in deploring the ousting of the Rev. L. Hamilton Garner, Newark, N. J., Universalist minister, and "a tendency to penalize" clergymen for exercising "freedom of utterance."

The statement, issued by the American Civil Liberties Union, was sent to Dr. Roger F. Etz, Universalist general superintendent; Dr. Walter Henry, president of the Universalist general convention, and Fred S. Carver, president of the board which banned a lecture by a German refugee at the Newark church where Garner was minister.

Last Laugh

"When The Devil Is Sick . . ."

THERE ARE fashions in international alarms as well as in hats, neckties and parlor games. In the post-war period these fashions have followed each other with startling rapidity.

Time was when the nightmare which troubled the sleep of Europe's statesmen was that of a Russo-German colossus astride Europe. That was in the days of the Rapallo treaty of 1922 when, refused the friendship of the western powers, Republican Germany and Bolshevik Russia decided to be on friendly terms with each other.

That alarm lasted up to the time of the Locarno treaty which made possible a measure of European appeasement. It then became fashionable to picture America as the enemy, at least the spiritual enemy. Half-fascinated, half-fearful, the sages of the Old World shook their heads over the growing addiction of Europeans to jazz, Hollywood movies and what the Germans called "Fordismus." Still later, as Spenglerian ideas became the vogue, there was resurrected in some quarters that Yellow Peril so beloved by the former Kaiser.

JAPAN'S ERUPTION in Manchuria marked, it was said, but the latest stage in the progressive conquest first of Asia then of the world by the men of Yamato. The symbol of that alarm was the Japanese soldier astride the Great Wall of China and the cheap Japanese electric light bulbs in Woolworth's.

That fear has not yet wholly been shelved. But its force has been weakened by increasing indications that Japan's seemingly irresistible advance has, for the time being, spent itself. Conquest is a heady wine. But in Japan's case it is producing very bad headaches among the imbibers. And now, a similar development is tending to cool fears stirred to great heights by Italy's strenuous twisting of the British lion's tale and the elevation of King Victor Emmanuel to the dignity of Emperor.

Mussolini, like the Japanese, is discovering that when a nation embarks on a campaign of expansion it gives hostages to fortune. Ethiopia is Italian, but in consequence the Italian budget is badly out of balance, the Italian exchequer almost empty, the balance of trade decidedly unfavorable and Italian industry tied, to a deplorable extent, to the chariot of uneconomic enterprise.

* * * *

IT WAS A GREAT moment in the history of Fascist Italy when Mussolini proved that he could treat the empire on which the sun never sets like a minor Balkan kingdom and get away with it. The victory over Great Britain and the League of Nations, not to mention the victory over Ethiopia, provided a wonderful text for fervid speeches calculated to inflate the ego of the Black Shirts.

But the whirligig of time brings its revenges. Great Britain may have lost the first round; can Italy be sure that the British nation will lose the second and the third? Obviously there is anything but certainty of that. Indeed, the British are now making it very clear to all and sundry, to Hitler as well as to Mussolini, that the next bout may not find Great Britain so unprepared or so fearful.

For a regime that respects force as much as does Fascist Italy, it is rather alarming that the London government is now intent on accumulating blue chips. So, for that matter, is that other effete European democracy—France. And not the least disheartening aspect of this development from the viewpoint of Rome (and of Berlin) is that these democratic nations have the wherewithal to play the dangerous game of rearmament to the limit.

* * * *

NO DOUBT Mussolini would like nothing better than to reply to the British action in kind, to top the $7,500,000,000 rearmament program of the British with a program involving the expenditure by Italy of twice that sum. But, unfortunately for him, the gold required for that is still at the end of the Ethiopian rainbow not in the vaults of the Bank of Italy.

It begins to look as if the Ethiopian victory, such as it was, may inhibit any similar gains of prestige by Italy for some time to come—at least at the expense of Great Britain.

No wonder, then, that the Italian press has suddenly begun to talk, if in veiled language, of a new international conference to end the mad race in armaments. When the devil is sick . . . Not long ago Mussolini was boasting of an army of 8,000,000, one capable of upholding Italy's honor and forwarding his own Caesarian ambitions. His spokesmen in the regimented Fascist press are now piping a less ambitious tune.

It is significant, for instance, that Virginio Gayda, the Duce's principal spokesman in the field of foreign affairs, is now taking the trouble to deny the truth of President Roosevelt's assertion that it was the Fascist nations of Europe which began the armaments race. It was "evidently a careless statement," he says. And he takes what comfort he can out of the circumstance that British naval expansion will be matched by the United States.

* * * *

BUT IT IS scant comfort, at best. For what the United States can do, Italy cannot. As John Whitaker points out in a dispatch to the New York Herald-Tribune from Rome:

"Caught between an unfavorable trade balance and patriotic insistence upon an uneconomic autarchy, and drained by the unceasing costs of warfare in east Africa, Italy simply cannot compete in the present armament race."

How much longer Germany can do so is also problematical. Thus it is that, with British and French rearmament proceeding apace, while the rearmament of the Fascist powers perforce slackens, the balance of military power in Europe may be decidedly changed.

Should that change coincide with a stiffening of British and French diplomacy, and signs of that are also visible, it is not unlikely that the European situation may be considerably altered before very long and possibly for the better.

New Novelist

By William Lyon Phelps

Erich Kastner.

All hail to a new novelist! New to me, I mean. I have no recollection of ever having heard of Erich Kastner, a German novelist. It seems he writes tales for children, fairy-stories, detective novels and serious books.

I never heard of him till last week, but I shall never forget him.

I have just read his new novel, translated into English. It is called "The Missing Miniature or the Sensitive Butcher" (published by Alfred A. Knopf, New York).

* * * *

This is a shortish book of unmitigated delight. It is absolutely delectable from first page to last. I recommend it to convalescents, to melancholy persons, to men and women over 16 and under 100, whether they are sick or well, rich or poor, busy or idle.

It is a superb combination of mirth and mystery. It is terrifically exciting with the excitement steadily maintained; it is enormously funny; the third ingredient is romantic love.

* * * *

I had thought that light, delicate, rippling, spontaneous humor was not the main virtue of German novels. Well, this story is by a German, but it might have been written by P. G. Wodehouse or by A. A. Milne, when they were particularly happily inspired. It sparkles.

P. S.—Correction. Spencer Gross and Otto Kartzmark inform me that in my article on the Maxim family I got Hiram and Hudson confused. Sorry. Many thanks.

Silver Outlook

By Herbert M. Bratter.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

SOME OF THE absurdities surrounding the silver program are illuminated by the testimony of Secretary Morgenthau and Mint Director Ross, published last week by the House Appropriations Commitee. Mrs. Ross' announcement of plans to construct an inland vault to store the Government's silver hoard under armed guard lends a Gilbert and Sullivan touch to the program.

The suspicion that Secretary Morgenthau was losing the enthusiasm which he had promised the silver Senators in 1934 spread rapidly, following the drop in the price of silver in December, 1935. His testimony just made public reveals a complete cooling off, and indicates the Administrative wish that Congress do something about the matter. Space limitation prevents repeating here the probing questions of Congressman Ludlow or the replies of Mr. Morgenthau, who, in the end, confessed that he and the Congressman are not very far apart in their viws.

Admitting that the so-called world price of 45 cents is artificial, the Secretary makes no attempt to defend the special 77-cent subsidy now being paid on the American product. The 32-cent differential between the two prices above, means a clear gift of over $20,000,000 per annum to stockholders and others interested in American silver production. It may surprise some people to reflect that not all the subsidy goes to the Mountain States. A good part of this bonus to the West finds its way to Boston instead of Butte, and in fact another good part of it goes abroad in the form of dividend checks, instead of into mining States pay envelopes.

Economists' Committee Revealed Names Of Backers.

RECENTLY the Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy in New York distributed reprints of articles on silver which appeared in the Chicago Daily Tribune just before election. These articles throw light on the activities of persons whose names were prominent in the agitation here prior to the passage of the silver purchase act in 1934. Although one of the principal agitators mentioned in these articles later wrote to the editor of the Tribune to complain that the material printed in them had been stolen from his files, there has been apparently no denial of the evidence presented in them.

The Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy has several times made clear that it would like to see the silver purchase act repealed. The committee's findings on this subject coincide with those of the sterling silversmiths and other silver-consuming interests, whose attitude the last annual review of Handy and Harman may be said to represent. The latter has come out plainly for complete repeal of the silver purchase act.

Other New York interests, also would like to see the act repealed or at least modified in respect to those provisions which give to the Treasury control of the silver market and which make unprofitable public trading in silver in this country. Since the nationalization of silver in 1934 trading in silver on the Commodity Exchange has been discontinued perforce; but recently there has been evidence of a renewed effort on the part of some New York interests to bring about an easing of the law's restrictions.

Morgenthau Declared Passing Buck To Congress.

SECRETARY MORGENTHAU'S real views on the silver program have to be read between the lines of his usual published statements on the subject. His early pronouncement showed no unwillingness to experiment with the silver proposals. For a while his experiment proved a bucking broncho. But during the past year and more the Treasury's open market activities, coupled with special arrangements whereby it has been absorbing both new foreign production and huge quantities of demonetized Chinese metal, has served to keep the world price of silver stable in the neighborhood of 45 cents per ounce.

The Secretary's latest testimony is particularly interesting because it shows the Treasury as anxious to pin on Congress, where in truth it belongs, the responsibility for continuance of the silver program, while members of the committee have brought out the fact that the Administration is responsible for at least the artificial level at which silver is now selling.

In view of the preoccupation of the Government with the inflow of foreign gold, excess banking reserves, and potential credit expansion, it is worth noting that the silver program is in direct conflict with what the authorities have been endeavoring to accomplish by sterilizing new gold imports. While the present sterilization of gold is designed to prevent excess banking reserves from growing, silver imports—which the law makes mandatory—may not be similarly sterilized.

All that the Government has been able to do in this connection is to impound that portion of its silver acquisitions which represents its seignorage. We live today in a world of managed currencies, with even China and Hong Kong completely driven off of the silver standard, with world mine production of silver greatly accelerated and the bullion flowing steadily and senselessly into the vaults of the Treasury. Our indefensible policy stands out as in incredible anachronism. From the very start it has been a monumental mistake.

Subsidy To Producers Found To Be Indefensible.

JUST AS indefensible as our imports of foreign silver is the continued payment to American producers of 77 cents per ounce, or indeed, of any price at all. The world level of silver is at present as high as 45 cents only because the Treasury is removing from the market all of the United States production of some 64,000,000 ounces per annum together with all the demonetized silver so wisely unloaded by the Chinese authorities. Another reason is that the Treasury steps into the market whenever the price threatens to weaken. Thus, 45 cents is simply an artifical price for only a portion of the metal at present entering the markets.

Even without the addition of supplies from American mines and from the Chinese government, the 45-cent price would not hold without the Treasury's support. In addition it must be remembered that the increasing demand for non-ferrous metals other than silver implies a definite increase in the output of by-product silver, constituting the chief part of the world's production.

Even if silver continues to keep behind the scenes of political turmoil, it will continue to occupy official attention until the end of this year. Then the London silver agreement expires. Whether the international agreement can then be renewed, and, if so, in what form, are questions for the future.

That China will this time not again agree to do something grand for silver is a safe prediction. Even in its reluctant ratification of the London silver agreement in 1934 China made all reservations; despite its expressed misgivings it was obliged that same year formally to protest because the American Government was the first to violate its own convention. If only the silver inflationists of the United States had been less ambitious in 1934, it is possible that China today still would be on the silver standard.

But subsequent American policy pushed China completely off the silver standard and then, conveniently, made it possible for the Chinese to accumulate in gold and dollar exchange sufficient reserves to insure its permanently abandoning silver. China's participation in any new international silver agreement can at best be very nominal. Any new agreement, like that of 1933, must inevitably be but a cloak for practically unilateral action by this country.

London Silver Pact Is Not Sole Authority.

ONLY IN PART does the authority for the present 77-cent price for American-mined silver rest upon the London silver agreement. Its lapse need not mean that that artificial price would have to be abandoned. Unless the President wants an excuse to drop this subsidy, it can be continued under the Thomas amendment, which was recently renewed.

In essence the question is: Will the President need Western votes in Congress badly enough to warrant his continuing to pay for American-mined silver over twice its real current value? And if we assume that the President will consider it advisable to continue to pay that price, can he afford to countenance a repeal of the silver purchase act, which is now supporting non-American silver at 45 cents? For repeal would mean an inevitable crash in the price of non-American silver and would therefore render all the more conspicuous the indefensible subsidy now being given American producers.

Probably the answer is that the President is not one to be concerned over the mere conspicuousness of a subsidy. Nor, apparently, is the country as a whole much interested. Rather the belief seems to prevail that the silver subsidy materially benefits the West, although it needs only a quick glance at a table of per capita relief and public-works expenditures by States to determine what really benefits the West.

$110,000 Drive For Symphony Opens March 10

Sustaining Fund Campaign for National Orchestra to Last 8 Days.

A campaign to raise $110,000 to meet the sustaining fund requirements of the National Symphony Orchestra during the 1937-38 season will be launched March 10, Corcoran Thom, president of the Orchestra Association, announced yesterday. The drive will extend over an eight-day period ending March 18.

Announcing that preliminary work is already in progress, Thom said Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe will head the campaign organization as general chairman, and that Harold A. Brooks will be vice chairman. Both are members of the board of directors of the National Symphony Orchestra Association.

Headquarters for the campaign have already been established in the Hay-Adams House, and campaign leaders are there recruiting a large group of volunteer workers to conduct the solicitation for sustaining fund subscriptions between March 10 and 18.

Is Declared Minimum.

Thom explained the $110,000, the largest sum ever asked for the orchestra, was agreed upon by members of the board of directors as the minimum amount needed "to carry out the orchestra's contemplated program for the 1937-38 season." This amount, the association president added, would be needed if present prices of concert tickets are to prevail.

Each year since the orchestra was organized in 1931 by Conductor Hans Kindler, the organization has made great forward strides, Thom pointed out, "until now it is already rated among the leading orchestras of the country." Continued progress, he said, depends on the raising of an adequate budget.

"To enable the average Washingtonian to enjoy fine music, ticket prices must be scaled so low that it is possible for the orchestra to earn only about 40 per cent of its needed budget," the president said.

Smallest of Group.

"Our budget is a most economical one—the smallest of any of the 12 major American symphonies."

For the coming year, Thom said, the National Symphony budget has been set at $165,000, "of which $110,000 must be secured through sustaining fund subscriptions and Symphony Association memberships.

Several of the major symphonies enjoy endowments of from one to three million dollars, according to Thom, yet all of them raise similar sustaining funds. The National Symphony sustaining fund requirement, however, is, like its budget, the smallest of any of the major orchestras.

"No major symphony organization has at any time, in any country, been self-supporting," said Thom. "In Europe, municipal and state governments subsidize the good orchestras. In America, ever since the founding of the New York Philharmonic in 1842, individuals with the ability to do so have treasured the privilege of fostering the development of good music.

1,800 Donors in 1936.

"To provide for its first limited season of concerts 91 persons contributed to the National Symphony sustaining fund. Last year more than 1,800 contributions were secured—this fact in itself being a remarkable tribute to Dr. Hans Kindler and the orchestra.

"Washingtonians, thus assured of the practical efficiency of the symphony's management, as they have long since been asured of the orchestra's high artistic merit, will soon be given the opportunity to contribute the necessary fund."

Officers and members of the board of directors of the National Symphony Orchestra Association, who along with many hundred other leading Washington music lovers will take active part in the campaign are, in addition to President Thom, William McClellan, vice president; Walter Bruce Howe, secretary; Clarence A. Aspinwall, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Eugene Byrnes, Mrs. Tracy Dows, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Mark Lansburgh, Mrs. Reeve Lewis, George Hewitt Myers, Mrs. Edwin P. Parker, L. Corrin Strong and Paul Wilstach.

Gannett Challenges Court Reform Plan

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 22 (AP).—Sentiment throughout the land is "rising to a tumult" against President Roosevelt's proposal to alter the United States Supreme Court, Publisher Frank E. Gannett said Sunday in a radio broadcast.

The publisher, who is chairman of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government, said that from all parts of the country are coming pledges of support "in the fight to preserve the Supreme Court."

He said the Supreme Court is the "chief bulwark of the rights of the minorities." "The age of justices is not an issue," said the publisher of the Gannett group of publications. "Throughout all history men 70 years and older have been among the greatest of their time." Such a retirement as is proposed, he said, would have deprived the country of the services of Justice Marshall, Justice Holmes, Justice Brandeis and Justice Hughes at the height of their powers.

Boy Scout Chief Speaks On 80th Anniversary

New York, Feb. 22.—The 2,592,832 Boy Scouts of 73 lands were told last night by Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Scout movement, that "as long as you are busy you can't help being cheerful."

The message from the "Chief Scout of the World," transmitted from the Scouts international bureau in London to organizations throughout the world, was on the occasion of the eightieth birthday anniversary of the peer, which falls tomorrow.

Class Opens Wednesday.

A class in home hygiene and care of the sick will be given by the District of Columbia Chapter, American Red Cross, beginning Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. The course, to be conducted by Caroline E. Thomson, will be held at the Chapter House, 1730 E street northwest.

W. C. Myers, School Official, Is Dead at 63

William C. Myers, assistant principal of McKinley High School, who spent 25 years of his life teaching mathematics to hundreds of Washington school children, died yesterday in Garfield Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Myers was 63 years old. He had been in failing health for more than a year. Four weeks ago he was operated upon for an abdominal ailment. He underwent a second operation last Thursday.

Mr. Myers became assistant principal at McKinley in 1930 after 19 years of mathematics instruction there and six years more of the same teaching at Central High School. He came to Central in 1905 and was transferred to McKinley in 1911.

Daniel Pays Tribute.

Last night his superior, Frank C. Daniel, McKinley High School principal, paid him this tribute:

"He was a greatly loved man, by both teachers and pupils. He was a conscientious and efficient officer and a magnificent teacher. His students will remember him a long time.

"He had a great interest in athletics. I can remember him missing few games."

Mr. Myers lived at 801 West Madison avenue, in Riverdale, Md.

Mr. Myers was born at Parkyville, Pa. He obtained his education at Grove City College, Pa., and at American University here, where he received his master's degree. He taught for a while at Findlay College, Findlay, Ohio, before coming to the Capital.

Though he did not hold a divinity degree, he frequently appeared in the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church at Riverdale, which he regularly attended, to deliver the Sunday morning sermon. He also was a preacher for the Church of God in his native Pennsylvania.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mayme Pritts Myers; three sons, Miles Elias, Alfred Tennyson, and George Henry Myers, and two daughters, Mrs. Marion Evelyn Varrell and Billie Constance Myers. Private funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Sebring Death Ends 40 Years Of Court Work

Clerk Was to Retire in Week; Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow.

Exactly one week before he was to retire as clerk of Police Court after 30 years in that post, Francis A. Sebring, 77, died yesterday at his home, 5320 Colorado avenue northwest.

Confined more than two months to his home by illness, Mr. Sebring was to have been succeeded as court clerk by Walter F. Bramhall on March 1. More than 40 years an employe of the court, he asked to be retired in a letter to Presiding Judge John P. McHahon on February 3.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the residence. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Sebring is survived by his widow, Mrs. Carrie H. Sebring; two daughters, Mrs. Stephen O. Ford, of Washington, and Mrs. George P. Plummer, of Rockville, Md., and two sisters, Mrs. Celia Sebring Knoeppel, of Nashville, and Mrs. Libbie Doremus, of Newton Center, Mass.

He was born in Chatfield, Minn., graduated from the University of Rochester in 1886, admitted to the bar of North Dakota and came to the Capital as a young man. For a time he was personal page to Representative James G. Blaine and worked for the Census Bureau and the Treasury Department before assuming his Police Court duties in the early nineties.

His statutory retirement in 1932 was blocked by the members of the Police Court bench, whose intercession was responsible for a special dispensation order of President Hoover. The judges informed the President that Mr. Sebring's "capability, sound judgment and energy and capacity for work have not been diminished because of his age."

A 30-day extension in office resulted, to be followed by other extensions.

Disdainful of vacations, Mr. Sebring was absent from his desk only twice, when he was felled by influenza during the World War epidemic and a year later when he was struck by an auto.

He was a thirty-third degree Mason, past master of Temple-Noyes Lodge, past potentate of Almas Temple of the Shrine, past high priest of Mount Vernon Chapter, and past commander of Columbia Commandery, Knights Templar.

Mrs. J. J. Copenhaver Is Dead at Rochester

Mrs. J. Julian Copenhaver, a lifelong resident of this city, died yesterday at hte home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward H. Cumpston, of Rochester, N. Y. She was the widow of Henry E. Copenhaver and lived at 2239 Q street northwest.

Mrs. Copenhaver was an active worker in St. Thomas' Episcopal Church. She did volunteer work for Homeopathic Hospital. Funeral services will be today at St. Paul's Church. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

The amount was not announced.

F. M. Lemley Dies in Hospital Of Brief Illness

Had Been Capital Merchant for Last Six Years; Burial in Virginia.

Fred M. Lemley, 43, of 4813 Blagden avenue northwest, died Sunday at Emergency Hospital, following a brief illness. He had lived in Washington for the last six years, engaged in general merchandising and produce business.

Coming to Washington from Stephens City, Va., he was active here in many local organizations. A World War veteran, he was a member of Lincoln Post, No. 17, of the American Legion. He belonged to the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association, serving as chairman of its twelfth annual banquet. He was a Mason, a member of Hiram Lodge, No. 12, at Winchester, Va., a Knight Templar, and a member of the Order of the Mystic Shrine.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elma K. Lemley, and three sons, Theodore F., William K. and John E. Lemley, of Washington, and by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Lemley, of Stephens City, Va.

Funeral services were held yesterday noon at his late home, with the Rev. Carl C. Rasmussen, of Luther Place Memorial Church, officiating. Burial will be in Greenhill Cemetery, Stephens City.

W. F. Ochsenreiter Dies at Home Here

William F. Ochsenreiter, 70, property custodian for the House of Representatives and one-time special agent for the Department of Justice, died Sunday at his home, 429 Quincy street, after a long illness. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence C. Ochsenreiter, and two sons, Frank B. Ochsenreiter, of this city and Eugene Ochsenreiter, of Asheville, N. C., and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock from his home, and at 9:30 in St. Gabriel's Church. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

A native of this city, he had been employed by the House for 18 years, part of the time as property custodian. During the war he served as a special agent for the Department of Justice, stationed in Detroit. He was a member of St. Gabriel's Catholic Church, and served on the board of directors of the Oriental Building Association.

Alexander Crook Funeral Is Today

Funeral services for Alexander Crawford Crook, reputedly the last surviving Confederate soldier from Alexandria, will be held at 2 p. m. today at his home, 1423 Webster street. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery, Alexandria. He died Sunday at his home, following two months' illness.

Too young to fight at the beginning of the Civil War, Mr. Crook joined the Alexandria Boys' Company, a group of youngsters drilling with sticks in anticipation of joining the Confederate Army. At 14 he enlisted in the South's forces, serving in the Virginia Cavalry under Gen. John S. Mosby. It was Crook's brother, Bernard, who reputedly burned a bridge west of Alexandria to hold back Union soldiers.

He resigned from the Postoffice Department seven years ago, following 53 years of continuous service. He was also one of the oldest surviving members of the Friendship Fire Department of Alexandria. The only survivor is his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Crook.

Gary Cooper says:
"It's plain common sense for me to prefer this light smoke"

"A little over a year ago I changed to Luckies because I enjoy the flavor of their tobacco. Ever since, my throat has been in fine shape. As my voice and throat mean so much to me in my business, it's plain common sense for me to prefer this light smoke. So I'm strong for Luckies!"

Gary Cooper

DIRECTED BY CECIL B. DE MILLE

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Cooper verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. Dallas, Texas, February 23—It gives me genuine pleasure to announce that more than 40% of budgeted exhibit space at The GREATER TEXAS and PAN AMERICAN EXPOSITION has already been reserved. Names of exhibiting concerns reads like the Blue Book of American business. It reflects Industry's enthusiastic response to our Government's Good Neighbor policies. News of this splendid participation is especially gratifying to Texas people because it gives assurance of a great, industrial exposition of unusual interest to visitors and because it emphasizes the keen interest Business is taking in the industrial development of the Southwest.

Greater TEXAS and PAN AMERICAN EXPOSITION

Dallas and all Texas are now making ready to entertain America's vacationing millions with a $30,000,000 Exposition of truly international appeal.

The GREATER TEXAS and PAN AMERICAN EXPOSITION is inspired by and celebrates the successful Inter-American Peace Conference held at Buenos Aires. It is dedicated to our Government's announced policies of peace, friendship and progress throughout the Western World. More than six and one-half million people attended the 1936 Texas Centennial at Dallas and pronounced it the "most beautiful of all world's fairs!" With a new, truly international appeal—with an even greater, more beautiful Exposition, Dallas is destined to be the bright spot on the vacation and business map again this year.

To millions of visitors the 1937 Exposition will bring new knowledge of the history and customs of Latin America—thrilling adventures into new and colorful lands. The vast Pan American Palace—now under construction—will house unusual exhibits typical of countries that comprise our neighbor nations to the south. The Latin American villages, with their Aztec, Incan and Mayan architecture, will present living pictures of interesting, progressive people who are now too little known by most North Americans. It is appropriate that such an International Exposition should be held in Texas and the Southwest. Not only because of geographical position as the gateway to Central and South America but because of its history. Texas was once ruled by the same flag that flew over most of Central and South America.

New "Cavalcade" Production!

The underlying theme of the Exposition will be graphically portrayed in the Exposition's gigantic spectacle, "CAVALCADE OF THE AMERICAS." While "Cavalcade of Texas"—thrilling Exposition spectacle of 1936—portrayed the romantic history of the Great Southwest, "CAVALCADE OF THE AMERICAS" for 1937 will reach back to the landing of Columbus. On the world's largest stage, with hundreds of actors, 1937 Exposition visitors will thrill to a dramatic story of liberty as it was enacted by Bolivar, San Martin, Sucre, Hidalgo and other early American liberators.

More than a million people saw "Cavalcade" in 1936, setting a new all-time record for Exposition spectacles. With latest, scientific sound equipment and a wealth of dramatic material as a background, "CAVALCADE OF THE AMERICAS" will climax even last year's high standard. This great spectacle alone will be worth your trip to Texas.

Gigantic New Musical Revue!

Second only to Cavalcade, but entirely different in appeal, will be the Exposition's great cafe-theater production. Here visitors will enjoy eye-thrilling entertainment by foremost stage, screen and radio stars, plus a chorus of 100 beautiful girls. Here America's vacationists will dine and dance in air-cooled comfort as they see this greatest of all musical productions.

Vast Industrial Exhibits!

Great corporations of the two continents are now making their plans to participate in the 1937 International Exposition. The vast, permanent buildings of the Exposition total 300,000 square feet. Here will be offered a wealth of new and varied industrial exhibits—animated displays, visual demonstrations, sight and sound—color and motion. The United States Government exhibits, transportation, natural resources, cultural exhibits, all will afford interesting days of education and entertainment.

Make 1937 Vacation Plans Now

Start planning now to be in Dallas when the big Exposition opens—June 12. Each day, each night will be filled with vacation pleasures not to be found elsewhere. Railroads, steamships, buses, air lines—all are making plans to offer unusually attractive rates. If time permits, see other interesting sections of Texas or travel on to picturesque Old Mexico.

Write today for free literature—address Travel Department, Exposition Administration Building, Dallas. Plan a vacation you'll cherish for a lifetime!

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Woman Insisted on Marrying Man Whose Love for Her Had Died; Now She Asks How to Restore It.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married two years and I want your good advice on a subject that is wearing on my heart and wounding it sorely. For six years before we were married my husband was my devoted beau and during that time there was not one wish—big or little—that he did not gratify. He simply adored me and although often I may have been wrong he thought everything I said and did was right. I met him when he was in college and when he got his degree he went to a city to practise and I worked on for six months longer in the same position I was holding when I met him.

Then my health began to fail, or rather, my nervous system, and I turned over my job to my sister and went far away for a two-months' rest. He bade me goodbye very reluctantly and pleaded fervently with me to be true to him, saying he would have a lovely apartment ready and we would be married on my return. I was a nervous wreck and told him I did not know whether I loved him any longer and didn't want to hear any love talk, as it seemed so light and trifling to me compared with the decision I was making in giving up my job when others were dependent upon it.

* * * *

When I returned I found my lover changed and in love with another girl. He seemed distressed that his love for me had gone and would burst into tears and really sob as he talked to me about it. I told him in a frank way that I had devoted seven (of the best) years of my girlhood to him and had turned down good offers of marriage and was not going to release him. We had a most quiet wedding and both started out on life's journey with a cloud hanging over our heads.

* * * *

He is always very kind, patient and indulgent; is wealthy and gives me money to gratify every wish. But I miss the kind of love I used to have and am not happy without it. He never spends his spare time at home. I sit and long for the time when he can come home at night after his hospital work is done, but instead of coming home to his lonely wife he goes to visit some of the doctors, or to a club. He never asks me to accompany him, or even to go to a movie.

* * * *

If I ever cry over it, and tell him I want his love, he will hand me money, which I dash to the floor before his eyes. Then for a night or two he will come in as early as he can get off, which is always around 10 o'clock, but that does not last for long. I belong to clubs and have many friends, but this does not take the place of my husband's love and companionship. What course must I follow?

WRETCHED WIFE.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR WRETCHED WIFE. You feel very sorry for yourself, but I wonder if it has ever occurred to you to feel sorry for your husband; if you have ever once stopped to realize the great wrong you did him in forcing him into marriage against his wish. I can imagine it would be difficult, almost impossible, for any man to forgive a woman's high-pressuring him into marriage with the hardboiled, unblushing argument that she refused to give him up because he had pre-empted "seven of the best years of her youth." I can't conceive of a less touching or less convincing argument.

* * * *

He couldn't have pre-empted those years if you hadn't permitted him to do so. After all, you were a free agent, you know, as you gave him to understand when you were taking off on your two-months' vacation. If you had met anyone else during those years, or even during vacation, who appealed to you more than he, I'll wager you wouldn't have hesitated to throw him over. Of the two of you, your husband appears to be infinitely the more sensitive, compassionate, generous, honorable, self-sacrificing and noble.

* * * *

I doubt that there was any genuine frankness in the reason you gave for your outspoken determination to marry him, regardless of how he felt. It is my guess that the real reason you held on to him was because you discovered, when faced with the threat of losing him, that you loved him so desperately you could not bear the thought of facing the future without him. Yet you could not be honest enough and courageous enough to state the real truth. You were determined to hold on to your petty pride and up-stage attitude to the very last, if possible. You had him crawling for six years and when the pendulum swung—as it usually does in such cases—you couldn't abase yourself sufficiently to undo the damage you had done by your high-handed tactics.

* * * *

It would appear that you, and you alone, were responsible for your fiance's falling in love with another girl while you were away. As a result of your selfishly preoccupied good-by you left him nothing to plan toward and little to hope for. What could be more natural than that his bruised heart would go out with a rush of love and gratitude to the first personable woman who gave him sympathy, affection and appreciation—all the reassurance and affirmation he sought in vain from you? Why he should have been so conscience stricken at this almost inevitable turn of events is hard to say—unless he is a man of hypersensitive honor.

It is almost unbelievable that you can't see—for you give little evidence of seeing—that there are two, and probably three, sides to this problem, for in addition to inviting almost unbearable unhappiness upon yourself you have inflicted like suffering on two other persons: your husband and the girl he had learned to love before he married you. For it is unlikely he would have mentioned his love for her if he knew his chances there were hopeless, that she did not return his love.

Now, as to what course you must follow if your marriage is to be saved, and your husband's one-time devotion to you in some measure resuscitated: Have a talk with him. Apologize for the great wrong you have done him. Take full blame upon yourself and avow your lack of understanding of what you were doing and why at the time you did it. Ask him to put you on a year's probation, as another and entirely different woman, mentally, from the one who kidnaped him into marriage against his will. Ask him to regard you during that year not as a malevolent Old Man of the Sea, but as a woman who loves him unutterably and irrevocably, and who hopes to learn to love so splendidly that she can give to the man she loves his freedom if that is the thing which will make him happiest. Say to him that if, at the end of one more year of marriage lived under new rules which exact nothing of him except that which he chooses—and wishes—to give, he still would like his freedom, he may have it.

It is just that sense of psychic release from your erstwhile unscrupulous possessiveness which he must have if he is ever to come to you whole heartedly and voluntarily as a free man and not a slave.

* * * *

I give you hope in this: I believe your husband would never have married you— in spite of your insistence and despite his sense of deep obligation — had there not lurked somewhere in some remote region of his spirit some last fragments of tender, protective devotion for you. If you can nurture these fragments into root and stalk and blossom, your marriage is saved. And you can do it only by letting your husband emerge from the forbidding shadow of your blind, hysterical demands that he give what he feels he does not have to give and cannot give.

* * * *

If you can restore your husband's love—and the odds are yours, since you have a whole year of intimate daily association in which to do it—the time may come when you can teasingly remind him that "All's fair in love and war." And he may retort, with jibing good humor, apropos of your first two years together, that it's also true, as you learned in pain, that "you can lead a horse to water but you cannot make him drink." Which is exactly where the situation stands at present.

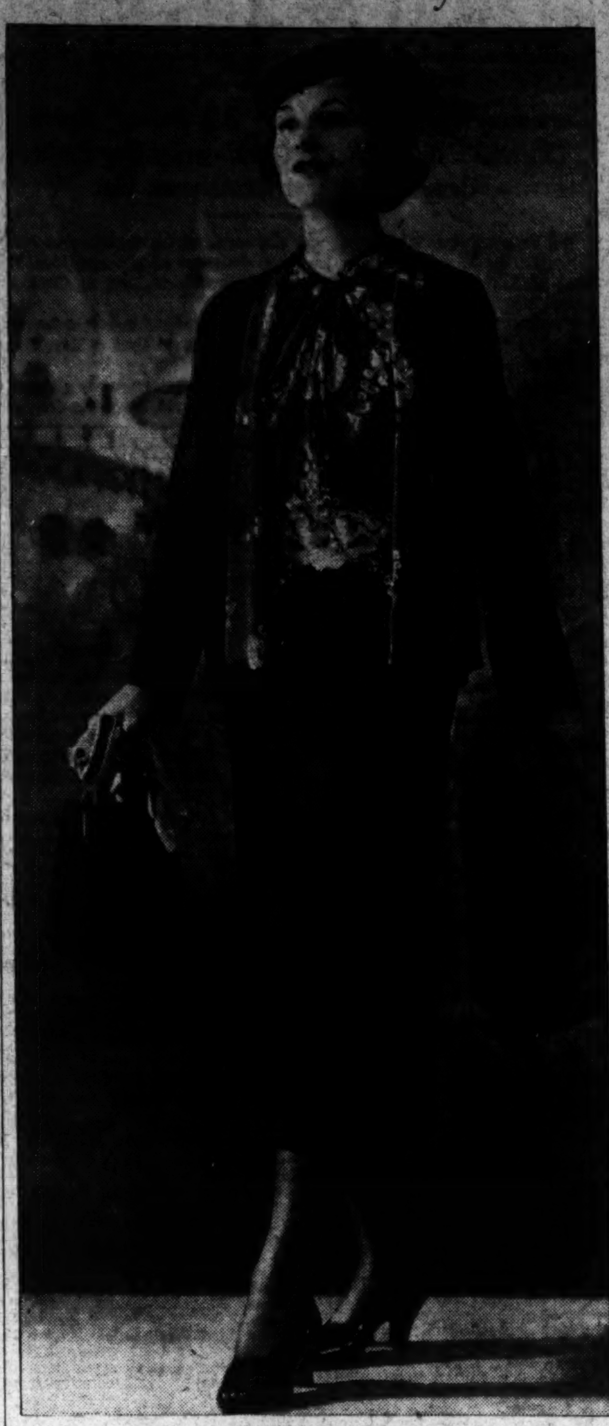
Miss Dorothy Mitchell Wed to Mr. Hathcock

Mrs. Roscoe C. Mitchell, of Washington, has announced the marriage of her daughter, Dorothy Anne Mitchell, to Mr. Joseph W. Hathcock, of this city, son of Dr. T. A. Hathcock, of Norwood, N. C. The ceremony took place in Rockville, Md., and Mr. and Mrs. Hathcock are now residing at 1628 Columbia road.

The bride's father, the late Roscoe C. Mitchell, was well known in newspaper circles of the Capital. He was formerly White House correspondent for the Associated Press, and during the Administration of President Wilson was appointed Assistant Foreign Trade Adviser.

Print Accent on Navy Blue



If you don't have a fondness for prints, you can follow the printed vogue to the extent of adding a print accent to your mid-season dark frock. The navy thick and thin crepe with pebbly surface shown above is a splendid example; the bodice and coat lining are in a matching print and the rest of the costume, in solid color, navy blue. This is an ideal many-purpose costume; with or without the jacket to wear now under the fur coat, and later on, with your fur scarf as a spring suit.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Conserving the Eyes.

Stone age eyes! Our eyes have not improved over those of the man of the Stone Age, yet we are constantly putting more burdens on them and asking more work from them, as pointed out by an editorial in a magazine for boys. The Stone Age man worked largely in sunlight, although the paintings on the cave walls prove that he made use of artificial light of some kind. His closest work probably was in making tools, binding spearheads and fishhooks upon instruments with thongs. Most of the work which his eye did was at long distance and put no strain upon his muscles and nerves.

Nowadays the printing press and artificial light cause many eye troubles. Of course, we would not be without either the printing press or artificial light. But we should insist on adequate lighting, especially for fine print, proper rest periods, the avoidance of too much glossy paper, and other assaults upon the sensory mechanism of our eyes.

Proper School Lighting.

Especially important is proper illumination for schoolrooms, which is not always adequate. A large schoolroom with lighting from one wall only, and that uncontrolled direct sunlight, causes a great deal of eye distress. A room of this kind always should supplement its natural lighting with soft artificial illumination on the dark side.

Children should never be allowed to read lying down, either on the stomach or on the back, but should be taught early to read in a sitting posture so as to avoid strain.

Questions From Readers.

B. C.: "What effect does drinking a pint or a half pint of whisky a day have on man?"

Answer: It creates a habit; it diminishes capacity for work; it affects the nervous system, causing tremors; it puts a man in danger of neuritis (paralysis) and cirrhosis of the liver. This is definitely an overdose. Anstie's limit was one and one-half ounces of alcohol a day.

C. B.: "Please tell me what causes white spots to appear on the finger nails?"

Answer: These are said to be due to small collections of air under the nail. They have no serious significance.

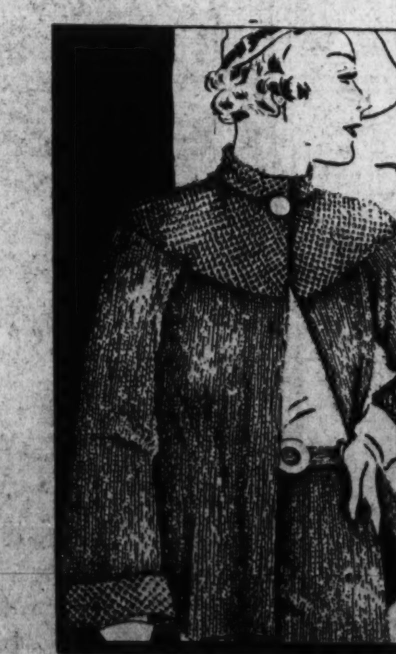
Smart Knitted Swagger Suit Boon to Wardrobe for Spring



Pattern 5562.

By Alice Brooks.

SPRING enchantment!—a knitted swagger suit that will add diversity to your wardrobe. It's easy to knit, too, for plain skirt and swagger jacket are done mainly in stockinette stitch, with a simple waffle stitch for yoke and cuffs. Germantown yarn gives it body without weight and works up quickly. In pattern 5562 you will find complete instructions for making the swagger suit shown in sizes 16-18 and 38-40; an illustration of it and of all the stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Department, 259 West Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Cocktail Party Ovation.

Amusing new cocktail picks are made in glass for sandwiches and hot canapes with colorful paper napkins to match. These pointed glass picks in different colors have heads which designate various kinds of sandwiches served. Some are topped by miniature roast chickens, others by red tomatoes, shrimp, green olives, sardines and the like. The paper cocktail napkins, which match, are printed with the same colorful designs.

A Woman's NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

ALICE HUGHES.

New York, Feb. 22.

THE CRAZE for transparency grows wilder every hour—no doubt to the unbounded delight of the DuPont people. We had our Transparent Woman, with all her innards exposed to the vulgar public gaze, the shameless hussy is now touring the country exposing her internal secrets to learned schools and societies. But she's actually only the beginning! Not long ago I examined the new transparent boxes, and fascinating and beautiful they are. There is a certain thrill in seeing the new bonnet through the walls of its receptacle, and orchids look lovely through the walls of cellophane. Of course, there is a valid objection to these things, in that they remove the element of surprise—there isn't one of us so case-hardened and copper-bottomed as not to get a slight thrill and shiver as we snap the strings and remove the paper from a package that comes to the front door!

Probably the greatest living worker in hardened sheets of cellophane is Cora Scovil, the handsome woman who makes many of our finest store-window mannequins. More than a year ago she created the first cellophane window figure, which created a bit of a sensation when it stood up in a Fifth avenue store. Cora, who can be called the Queen of Transparency, then made a cellophane couch, chair and table, which caused many an "Ah!" at last fall's Fashion Futures, the style event of the year here.

Now Cora has topped herself with the creation of a cellophane piano—yes, sir, transparent as can be, with the hammers striking the strings in plain view of all, and an odd and interesting thing it is! Next, she wants to do a radio with all the lamps and gadgets in sight. Her last and final glory, perhaps, will be the creation of a line of transparent cellophane frocks for us—but then, of course, the police will step in!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The whole village turned with a will in the great cause for help for the flood-stricken areas along the mad Ohio. Not only were $2,000,000 quickly raised for the local Red Cross fund, but the greatest benefit in the town's colorful history was held at the Radio City Music Hall. It began at midnight and ran until nearly 5 in the morning, with $10,000,000 worth of talent laboring. The British shone—Noel Coward was a tower of strength. The oddest thing I noted at the wondrous show was the fact that little Luise Rainer would only do her famous telephone scene from "The Great Ziegfeld" behind a screen! Those 7,000 ardent people out front panicked her! . . .

* * * *

* * * *

When the ship news hounds met Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, Wally Simpson's aunt, down the bay on her arrival from abroad, Mrs. Merryman performed nobly. "I have nothing to say about anything!" she told the reporters, who respected her words and let it go at that . . .

* * * *

Nice lot of boys, those ship-news men. I'm almost a member myself, so often do I go down the bay on the revenue cutter and clamber up a liner to greet one of my fashion pals coming back from Paris and the style shows. Most of the interviewing and photographing is done while the big skiff lies at Quarantine. Then while she slips up the upper bay we sit in a private room over drinks and sandwiches and gossip endlessly. It's a grand way to spend an hour . . .

- ½ cup granulated sugar
- 1¾ cups heavy cream, whipped
- ½ cup powdered sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2-3 cup chopped walnuts (if you like)

Hull and wash strawberries, add sugar and mash. Let stand 1 to 2 hours if time permits. Rub through a sieve. Mix with lemon juice. Pour into mold. Fold the powdered sugar, vanilla and nuts into the whipped cream. Float the whipped cream mixture on the fruit juices, making sure that all spaces are filled. The mixture freezes more readily if the mold is full. Cover; seal; freeze in ice and salt or freeze in the tray of a mechanical refrigerator.

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

IT IS A FALLACY that English women go around in rough, ill-fitting tweeds and flat-heeled shoes and have no style sense, according to Mrs. L. E. Dundas, of London, England, who is visiting in Washington at the home of Mrs. John Mitchell Waters sr. "I have never seen so many flat and low-heeled shoes in my life, as I have on my visit to America this winter," she commented. "If you stop in at Claridge's (London) for tea or luncheon, you will see some of the best dressed women in the world. In fact, England, as a style center, is going to be represented in the Paris Exposition this summer, sponsored by several of the best known designers in the world."

Black is popular for daytime wear in England, Mrs. Dundas reported. For evening white leads for formal affairs, with black next in popularity; for summer, pastel tints and lame are the usual choice. "We are strictly seasonable in our clothes," she said, "and consequently our shops do not display straw hats or printed costumes in the winter as we believe they are exclusively for spring and summer. Colored gloves are worn in the spring, as a forerunner of sunshine, but they would be ludicrous in a fog."

Elaborate Coronation.

The coronation, Mrs. Dundas said, would be more elaborate than was formerly planned. As there is a queen to be crowned, it calls for more complicated regalia by those who are privileged to wear such things as ermine and red velvet capes, trains, tiaras and such. If you are planning to attend the coronation May 12, Mrs. Dundas advises being equipped with a fur coat and woolen frock and a thin coat and sheer frock of some kind, because English weather is very problematical. The rumor in the States that fashion will go Scottish because of the new queen, or even that her wardrobe will affect style, is "just a rumor," according to Mrs. Dundas. The Queen has never been a style leader and dresses very conservatively, she maintains.

England, which always has been noted for its lovely tweeds and woolens, is now going in for the designing and manufacture of silks and trimmings, such as buckles and buttons. Mrs. Dundas explained this new idea was due to the promotion of art, music and literature, among the poorer classes, which has instilled a desire for creative work. Even in the poorest sections, when a new school is erected, the best architects in England are employed—to foster the love of beauty among the students. This, she said, is decidedly new in England, as heretofore only the wealthier classes were catered to in this regard.

Cocktail Costumes.

Coming back to the English women as criterions of style, Mrs. Dundas explained that in London women had a better chance to be smart-looking in the summer time than Americans because of the cool weather. They can wear light or gay colors, of chic styling, and yet because of the needed warmth to combat the dampness and coolness the materials have more body—they are not limp and flimsy. For both summer and winter, the English have a fondness for contrasting accessories, Mrs. Dundas commented. They do not care for monotone ensembles at any time. "Suits and evening clothes are essentials in every English woman's wardrobe," she concluded, "and cocktail costumes are definitely important—they are of the informal dinner type, as the majority of persons go on to dinner after the cocktail hour. English women are getting more chic in their appearance all of the time, just as London is now deemed one of the gayest cities in the world."

Platinum Demand Up.

Increasing prosperity and a rise in the marriage rate were cited among the reasons for record purchases of platinum and the other platinum metals, including palladium, during 1936 by Charles Engelhard, president of Baker & Co., Newark, N. J., in his review of the platinum industry for 1936.

'Nerves' Cause Fatigue

Of course, you feel tired. Every movement is like lifting a ton, your bones ache, your muscles feel like lead. Even thinking is an effort. Though exhausted nerves cause these symptoms, they're just as real and damaging as any organic disease.

Nervous exhaustion comes from wasted or misdirected nervous energy or sometimes from an inferiority complex.

You know that to captivate and hold George's attention you must be gay and witty. But—here's the old inferiority complex working—you fear you're not so amusing as other girls he knows. Suddenly, unaware of the cause, you're too fagged to smile.

Shake off this lassitude, become vivacious, adjusted to life. Our 40-page booklet, How to Avoid and Overcome Nervous Troubles, by a famous nerve specialist helps you conquer charm-destroying irritability, worry, restlessness, insomnia, nervous indisgestion, inferiority feelings.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, How to Avoid and Overcome Nervous Troubles, to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York City. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Dutch Submarine Staff Plans Farewell Today

By Dudley Harmon.

Last in a strenuous series of parties—an average of two a day—given for officers of the Dutch submarine O-16 was the tea dance yesterday afternoon held by the Netherlands Minister and Mme. van Haersma de With. In return for the teas and dinners they have attended since coming to Washington, the officers have invited a small group to a farewell party this afternoon in their quarters at the submarine anchored at the Navy Yard.

In all their Washington sightseeing tours, crowded in between parties, the visitors were most interested in Lindbergh's plane in which he first flew the Atlantic, which they saw at the Smithsonian Institution. Most novel of the experiences they have had in the Capital is the American system of "cutting-in"at dances, which one officer confessed yesterday he could not get used to. The number of men and women at the party was about evenly divided and the absence of a large stag line pleased this one officer enormously.

Guests at the party were largely members of the younger set, although there was a sprinkling from the diplomatic and official corps. There were the Counselor of the German Embassy and Frau Thomsen, the Second Secretary and Frau Struve, the Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Henry Frank Heywood, the Commercial, Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Mrs. Molekamp, the latter in a black frock with a small-brimmed hat trimmed with green ribbon, and the Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Lucet.

Among those present from official ranks were Mrs. George T. Pettingill, wife of the commandant of the Navy Yard, who wore a black and white spring print, with a hat to match, and Capt. and Mrs. William D. Brereton.

Mme. de With had chosen a frock of gray satin for the occasion with which she wore a small strand of pearls and a diamond clip at the belt. Another of Washington's best-dressed women, Mrs. C. Mathews Dick, wore an original hat, which consisted only of a simple band of velvet with a clip of brilliants. Another hat which stood out among the others was that worn by Mrs. Edward Reed, a taffeta bonnet in shades of black and white.

The men and women guests were about evenly divided, so there was not as much "cutting in" as at most dances. This pleased one of the Dutch officers who said he could not get used to the American system of having a "stag line."

Among those who danced were Miss Laura Tuckerman and her debutante sister, Miss Alice Tuckerman; Mrs. Robert Joyce in black crepe and a matching hat with a bow in front; Mr. Benjamin Plunker, of the British Embassy; Miss Gertrude Laughlin, Miss Ethel Worthington, Miss Yvonne de Mauduit, Mr. Merritt Cootes, Representative and Mrs. Wigglesworth, who had with them their guests, former Representative and Mrs. John Hollister, of Ohio, and Mrs. Wigglesworth's brother; Mr. Alec Boothe, of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Kent Legare, Miss Nancy Leiter, in a blue silk frock with rhinestone clips at the shoulders, and Miss Sibilin Skidelsky.

The Misses Anne and Altha Harcourt recently returned from a stay in Nassau, created something of a sensation when they walked into the drawing room with the deepest tans seen this side of Florida. They will be here for a week before returning to Nassau again or going to London.

THE MERRY WHIRL

by MARYLYN

You know the old superstition about three lights on one match? Well—there are a few people who are privileged characters, and may take their light, as the third on a match, with impunity. They are those who were born before te Boer War (that's when and where the business started), and in that general neighborhood.

Now visiting Washington is one Jan Lugten, who is stationed aboard the Dutchsubmarine, the D-16, and who gleefully goes about astonishing everyone by accepting third lights.

He towers above his comrades, and is 5 inches over the height suggested for comfort for those who go below the seas, but even so, he has been on submarines for the past 12 years.

Well, we know what two favorite drinks were yesterday, anyway. "Ma" Williams had a tall glass of iced tea at luncheon, and what with the glorious sunshine and balmy tonic in the air, it did not take much stretch of the imagination to make-believe that it really was spring, or even summer.

J. Edgar Hoover, lunching at his usual table in the Willard Coffee Shop, was not having such a seasonal beverage, nor yet was he on a diet in spite of his glass of thick buttermilk, because there were no bananas in evidence, but there was a rich dessert in the offing.

Nancy Leiter in royal blue crepe, her frock trimmed with a quilted floral design down the front panel, a small, dark felt hat and a swagger length mink coat topping it off, with Nora de With, pretty blonde daughter of the Netherlands Minister and Mme. Following closely, though in another party, was Larry Bungardeanu, of the Rumanian Legation.

Caught a glimpse of Betty Couzens, for the first time in many months, when she and Margaret Cotter rounded the corner of Connecticut avenue and Q street yesterday. Both were in black, Betty's frock having an ivory horse's head pinned at the neck. Her small felt hat with its tucked-in crown and slit rolled brim was banded with white ribbon. Margaret—hatless—had on a cloth coat, silver fox trimmed, over her crepe frock with its high neck, edged with white lace.

Now, about comings and goings—Frank Fowle is back from Chicago, where there was too much wind, and is glad to feast his eyes on the grass here, which, amazingly enough, is still green. Beryl McCann Becomes Bride

Former Representative W. B. Oliver, of Alabama, and his bride, formerly Miss Beryl Dana McCann, who were married here Saturday afternoon, have returned from Baltimore, where they spent the week-end, and will remain in the Capital at their home on Wyoming avenue.

Their marriage took place in the presence of a few friends and relatives at the Central Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. James H. Taylor, pastor, officiating. The wedding was small because of the illness of the bride's mother, Mrs. W. A. McCann, widow of the late Rev. W. A. McCann, a Methodist minister, of Seale, Ala.

Mr. Oliver, who represented the Sixth Alabama District for 22 years before his retirement last year, is remaining in Washington to wind up business matters before returning with his bride to his home in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Miss Betsy McLean Wed Mr. Reed M. Fawell, Jr.,

Ceremony Is Performed in All Saints' Episcopal Church; Bride Given in Marriage by Her Father; Couple Will Live at Atlanta, Ga.

All Saint's Episcopal Church was the scene of the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Betsy Page McLean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McLean, and Mr. Reed Marquette Fawell, jr., son of Capt. and Mrs. Reed M. Fawell, of Atlanta, Ga.

The church was decorated with lilies arranged against a background of palms and ferns. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Henry Teller Cocke at 4 o'clock.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of slipper satin fashioned with a standing collar and fastening from the neck to the hemline with a row of tiny covered buttons. The sleeves, full above the elbows, were tight-fitting to the wrist. The flaring skirt terminated in a long, sweeping train. Her alencon lace veil fell from a Mary Queen of Scots cap and extended to the end of the satin train. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Hood Matron of Honor.

Mrs. James F. Hood, the matron of honor, was costumed in chartreuse net with puffed sleeves and a full skirt trimmed with double ruffles of the net. With this she wore a tricorne hat of the same shade with waist-length streamers. She had a bouquet of spring flowers in pastel shades.

Miss Martha Ella Jesse, the maid of honor, wore a gown of the same style of Periwinkle blue and carried, blue, yellow and white flowers.

The other attendants, Miss Marie Christine Scheper, Mrs. Mendow Foye, Miss Margaret Lindsay, Miss Dorothy Pickett, Mrs. Gregory J. Aires and Mrs. Raymond A. Walsh, jr., wore net frocks and tricornes of white, trimmed with the colors of the honor attendants' costumes. They, too, carried soft-shaded garden flowers.

Mr. Raymond A. Walsh, jr., served as best man and ushers were Mr. Reginald Munson, Mr. James F. Hood, Mr. James Hennessey, Mr. George J. Aires, Mr. Burr Edwards, Mr. Justice Chambers and Mr. Paul Imirie.

Reception at Home.

After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. McLean had on a gown of orchid chiffon, a small hat of violet blossoms and a corsage of violets. Later Mr. Fawell and his bride left on their wedding trip, the bride choosing for her traveling costume a turquoise blue suit trimmed with silver fox, a blue ribbon hat and black patent leather accessories. They will make their home in Atlanta, Ga.

Young Mrs. Fawell is a graduate of Holton Arms School. Mr. Fawell was graduated from the University of Maryland, and later the American University.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Gladys Dorset and Miss Jane Dorset, of Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Samuel Hays, of Leesburg, Va.; Mrs. M. Butler, of Baltimore, and Mr. Mendon Foye, of Philadelphia.

Wade Ellises Honor Friends

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Ellis entertained a group last night at their home at a Washington's Birthday dinner. Hatchets and miniature cherry trees were used in decoration to carry out the spirit of the occasion.

The guests included Senator and Mrs. Dan W. Hastings, of Delaware; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. David H. Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Britten and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mandeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis will have as their guests soon Sir Charles and Lady Sykes, of London, who are in California and will spend a week-end here when they come East. The Ellises have visited them both at their town house in London, their summer home near the city and their place at Scarborough.

New Belts for Spring To Match Accessories

A lacquered fabric appearing in many grains figures in belt styles for spring, which match handbags in bright shades, as well as navy and brown. Very wide belts of patent finish were shown at the recent national fashion accessories show for tailored wear—some with classic buckles, others with rows of stitching or tiny pleats which continue across a concealed closing. The effect of soft fullness again appears in wide belts which are drawn through metal bands. Large daisies of lacquered fabric furnish bright color notes for summer belts, woven of natural straw and recommended for sports dresses.

The Washington Scene

By the Poe Sisters.

Cablegrams from sympathetic Washington friends went to the Marchioness of Huntly yesterday when it was learned that her distinguished husband the Marquess of Huntly, chief of the Clan Gordon, had died in England at 89.

The marriage some years ago of the Marchioness, who was Mrs. James MacDonald of Washington, was the leading international romance of that season. She and the Marquess met in Washington while he was on a tour of America.

Youthful in spirit and in mode of living despite his advanced years, the Marquess pursued his favorite sports almost to the end.

He had the distinction of being lord-in-waiting to Queen Victoria and was a member of the Privy Council under three sovereigns, and had been Lord Rector of the University of Aberdeen and commander of the Body Guard of Gentlemen-at-Arms.

Mr. Arthur Bradley Campbell, son of the Marchioness of Huntly by a former marriage, was in Washington for a visit recently and then left America to rejoin his mother in Scotland.

In 1927 Lord and Lady Huntly adopted Isabelle and Majorie Meuser, American grandnieces of the marchioness, who were orphans.

During her long residence in the British Isles the marchioness has retained her Washington residence on Sheridan Circle and it is thought she may visit here within a few months and perhaps spend part of each season in this country from now on.

* * * *

Word comes in connection with another international romance of more recent date, that The Macneil of Barra and his bride, who were married here last summer, are now in their winter home at Barra House, Marlboro, Vt. They are enjoying winter sports there and are remodeling their quaint home which is situated on a mountain top. Mrs. Macneil writes to friends also of their plans for "maple sugar" making this spring.

The chief of the Clan Macneil has his son and younger daughter by a former marriage visiting them, while Mrs. Macneil will be joined at Easter vacation by her son by her first marriage, Mr. Frederick Hicks, who is attending Kent School in Connecticut.

In a short time Mr. Macneil's eldest daughter, Miss Katherine Elizabeth Macneil, will arrive from the West Indies to stay at Barra House for part of the winter season.

Music lovers and friends of Mrs. Winthrop Murray Crane, widow of Senator Crane and sister of Miss Mabel T. Boardman and Mrs. Frederick Keep, are interested to learn that she has become chairman, with Miss Mary Rehan, of the joint benefit committee of the League of Composers for the two concerts to be given in Town Hall, New York, March 7 and April 4. Some of the music set in Washington society plan to attend one or both of the concerts.

Democratic Women Pick New Officers

Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard to Become National Head of Club.

Group Also Plans Visit to Tomb of Wilson Tomorrow.

Heading an unopposed slate of new officers for the Women's National Democratic Club, Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard tomorrow will become its president when the votes are cast at its fourteenth annual election. Not only is Mrs. Hubbard one of the club's charter members, but she also holds a life membership in it, and her husband is an associate member.

In addition to Mrs. Hubbard, other officers are Mrs. Garland S. Ferguson, jr., nominated for first vice president; Mrs. J. Brent Clarke, second vice president; Mrs. Albert A. Jones, recording secretary; Mrs. William E. Fort, recording secretary; Mrs. Frank S. Bright, treasurer, and for the board of governors, Mrs. Edward B. Costigan, Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard and Mrs. Henry Clement. Mrs. John B. Gordon is chairman of the nominating committee.

Go to Wilson Tomb.

A pilgrimmage to the tomb of Woodrow Wilson, on which a wreath will be placed, is to open the day's program. A luncheon for club members only will follow, with Mrs. Rose Yates Forrester as chairman and speaker. The business meeting will open at 4 o'clock. A dinner will be held in the evening with Mr. Clem Shaver, former national committeeman, as the guest of honor and speaker, and Mrs. Edgar B. Kay, chairman of the election committee, will announce the results of the day's balloting.

Although the club's incoming president spends much time in Washington and takes untiring interest in its activities, she and Mrs. Hubbard live on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. Their home, Widehall, at Chestertown, is one of the most interesting of the historic old places in that section. It was built in the middle of the eighteenth century and the architect is believed to have been the same who designed Independence Hall in Philadelphia. The mantels, stair rails and spindles at Widehall bear a marked resemblance to those in Independence Hall.

Early owners of the estate included the Wilmer family of Maryland; Sir Thomas Smythe, who came over from England; Gen. Chambers of Revolutionary days, and Ezekiel Chambers, who was a Senator from Maryland. George Washington is said to have visited at Widehall and its varied owners were identified with the early history of the country.

Shortly after the Civil War it was bought by a Col. Crawford, of the Federal Army, who had seen it during a military campaign in Maryland. At this time, its colonial roof was replaced by a mansard roof and slate mantels replaced the original hand-carved ones.

When the Hubbards bought it in 1909, they restored it to its original design and furnished it with authentic pieces of the colonial period. It has broad halls, a "hanging stairway" with no apparent means of support and the detail of the cornices is different in each room. The entrance to the house is that of a city residence, but the entrance on the river side has the big pillars of a colonial country home and overlooks beautiful flower gardens.

Miss Virginia Ijams Wed in Baltimore

The marriage of Miss Virginia Ijams, daughter of Col. and Mrs. George E. Ijams, of Washington, to Mr. Tracey Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coleman of Washington, took place Saturday evening at the Starr Methodist Church in Baltimore. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. Y. Nicholson and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin. Miss Peggy Langrall was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were the Misses Virginia Seitz, Annette Challis and Barbara Ann Ijams, sister of the bride. Mr. Thomas Coleman, jr., of Washington, served as his brother's best man.

On their return from a wedding trip Mr. Coleman and his bride will reside at Silver Spring, Md.

The Wolfes to Visit Miami and Charleston

Mr. and Mrs. John Ferwell Wolfe have left for a three-week trip to Palm Beach and Miami. They will return by way of Charleston, S. C., and visit the famous Middleton gardens.

Mr. Wolfe is connected with the founders of Middleton place. The gardens there were the first landscaped in America. Rare shrubs and plants were imported from England, one of them a japonica, the first ever brought to this country. Mr. Wolfe, who is an architect, expects to make a number of sketches during his visit in Charleston.

Miss Richards Lists Topics for Her Lecture

Miss Janet Richards, at her weekly lecture tomorrow morning at the Sulgrave Club, will include in the general review of outstanding public questions "The Nonintervention Deadline in Spain," "Why King George Cancels the Durbar," "The Youth Movement and Its Implications," "Quezon's Visit to the United States and Why," "Does Industrial Coercion Through Sit-Down Strikes Constitute a Major Menace?" "How Can Relief Which Pauperizes Be Avoided."

The lecture will begin at 11 o'clock.

Lady Astor and Caroline O'Day Are Among the Speakers.

Women of the United States will join with those of England and Canada Friday in an international broadcast under the sponsorship of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women. Radio parties are being arranged at the homes and headquarters of many Washington women to "listen in" to Women'h International Day, which will be celebrated in 24 countries.

Among the speakers are:

Lady Astor, speaking from Plymouth, England; Miss Agnes MacPhail, Canadian Parliament, speaking from Toronto; Representative Caroline O'Day, speaking from Washington; Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women; Miss Natalie Couch, first woman journal clerk in the New York Legislature; Inez Haynes Irwin, author, prominent in the woman movement, and Anne Hard, writer and radio commentator, speaking from New York; Miss Charl Ormond Williams, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, speaking from Cincinanti, and Mary R. Beard, historian, speaking from Washington.

The first broadcast, from 3 to 3:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, will go through station WJZ, New York, to a nation-wide National Broadcasting Co. network. It will take the form of a discussion panel on the topic "Have Women Made Good in Government?" Those participating will be Miss Phillips, the international president, who will introduce the panel; Miss Couch, Mrs. Hard, Mrs. Irwin and Miss Williams, with Mrs. Beard summing up.

The second broadcast, from 3:45 to 4:15 p. m., Eastern standard time, will link England, Canada and the United States and will go through Station WABC, New York, to the American and Canadian stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System, with a possible broadcast in England. Speakers will be Lady Astor, Miss MacPhail and Congresswoman O'Day, each speaking of the attitude of women upon the governmental problems of her country. Miss Phillips will introduce the speakers.

Broadcasts similar to those presented in the United States will be given in many other countries, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Italy among them. American observance will climax with a dinner at the Hotel Biltmore, New York City, on the evening of February 26, honoring women in government, with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Senator Rhoda Fox Graves and Assemblywomen Doris Byrne and Jane Todd of the New York State Legislature, Judge Justine Wise Tulin of the New York City Children's Court, the international president, Miss Phillips, the national chairman of international relations, Miss Kathryn H. Starbuck, and the New York State president, Miss Vera McCrea, as honor guests.

Mrs. Roosevelt wife of the President, and Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, are taking an active interest in the project of the sixteenth Woman's National Exposition of Arts and Industries in New York, which is sponsoring a preview of the $3,000 demonstration house, a model for homes which will be built in 1,000 communities throughout the United States by May 1. The 82-year-old mother of the President drove the first nail on the "preview house recently in New York. Other well-known women interested in this project are Mrs. Eilliam H. Good, president of the exposition; Mrs. William Dick Sporburg, prominent in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and chairman of the education committee of the exposition; Miss Nancy McClelland, noted woman decorator; Miss Ruth Lyle Sparks, Mrs. Gertrude Gheen Robinson, Mrs. Francis H. Lenygon and Miss Ethel A. Reeve.

John Marshall A New Dealer, Barkley Says

today and occupied the same position which he held for 34 years he would not hesitate to hold the power of the National Government to be sufficient under the Constitution to prevent the collapse of our economic and social institutions and place the arm of the Federal Government at the pilot wheel of our Ship of State, to bring order out of chaos and hope to the depressed spirits of millions of American people."

Spmpathizes Not Necessary.

Senator Barkley said it might naturally be assumed that President Roosevelt would appoint to the Supreme Court men who sympathized with his aims.

"It is folly," he said, "to assume that any President in appointing men to the bench will not take account of their backgroun as well as the liberality or narrowness of their approach to the questions arising under the Constitution."

When Abraham Lincoln was considering appointing two men to the court, Barkley recalled, he said it was essential that they should be willing to sustain emancipation and the legal tender acts.

Chairman Landis, apparently referring to the Supreme Court's invalidation of the railroad retirement act, said that there should have been a "social" as well as a legal consideration here.

"Are we still to think in terms of words and not of things? I refuse to believe that the law and lawyers are going to set themselves athwart the path of human progress. The law should be the handmaiden of progress, not an obstruction."

Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wisconsin, who is regarded as a "neutral" in the fight over enlarging the Supreme Court, recalled that the patriots who drafted the Constitution had little faith in the ability of the American people to govern themselves.

Nevertheless, he said, the Constitution had become an instrumentality of popular government.

"There is something greater than the Constitution," he said, "and that is the innate love of the American people for liberty. It is the love of liberty that will give us a government here in Washington that will serve the public welfare.

"I have unadulterated faith in the ability of the American people to make the Constitution serve their welfare and for their benefit."

Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), of New York, director general of the United States Sesquicentennial Commission, told the Government attorneys what the commission was doing to increase appreciation of George Washington.

Oppose Court Plan.

Indianapolis, Feb. 22 (AP).—Thomas C. Batchelor, secretary of the Indiana State Bar Association, reported today that Indiana judges and attorneys have voted four to one against President Roosevelt's proposal for a reorganization of the judiciary which bring about an increase in the membership of the United States Supreme Court.

Court Change Attacked By Democratic Judge

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Senior Judge John C. Knox of the United States District Court of Southern New York, a Democrat, said tonight that "the effort of the President to achieve his policies should and must stop short of the impairment of the authority and dignity of our court of last resort."

Speaking at the Washington's birthday dinner of the Sons of the Revolution, Judge Knox declared that judicial decisions, if they are to enjoy public trust, "must set forth the free, independent, untrammeled judgments of the men who gave them utterance."

Harry Warner In Group Given Rollins Degrees

Motion Picture Producer Among 5 Persons to Be Honored.

Winter Park, Fla., Feb. 22 (AP).—Rollins College celebrated the fifty-second anniversary of its founding today by conferring honorary degrees on three citizens of the United States, one of Great Britain and one of Holland.

Doctorates of Humanities were given to Lord David Davis, Welsh industrialist, educator, author and world peace advocate, and to Dr. F. H. Fentener Van Vlissingen, of Holland, president of the International Chamber of Commerce.

A Doctorate of Literature was conferred on Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News and Republican vice presidential candidate in last year's general election. Rollins College last year bestowed honorary degrees on President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Doctorates of humanities also were conferred on the Rev. Ralph W. Sockman, minister of Christ Church in New York City, and Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.

The annual Algernon Sydney Sullivan Medallion was handed to Ray Stannard Baker, of Winter Park and Amherst, Mass., who as "David Grayson" wrote a biography of Woodrow Wilson.

Warner's degree was conferred in recognition of his contributions to culture and science through the medium of the motion picture. He was a pioneer in the development of sound pictures—a development which made possible such productions as "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Story of Louis Pasteur" and "Green Pastures."

Honored by College

Institute Head Backs Court Plan

Philadelphia, Feb. 22 (AP).—William Draper Lewis, head of the American Law Institute, said today President Roosevelt's Supreme Court proposals were "timely, and in the broad sense of the word, conservative."

"Whether you want this legislation or not, which the President has proposed," said Lewis, "should depend on whether you are or are not in favor of the Administration's aims in social legislation."

He spoke at a meeting of the Church League for Industrial Democracy.

Representative H. Jerry Voorhis, of San Dimas, Calif., asserted more fundamental changes were necessary than contained in the President's proposal.

"The ultimate right of interpretation of the Constitution should be vested in the legislative and not the judiciary branch," he said.

Ex-Navy Officer Accused of Espionage Seeks to Clear His Name.

Determined to battle the Navy Department in open court to clear his name of espionage charges, former Lieut. Commander John S. Farnsworth indicted for selling secrets to Japan, today will appeal to Justice James M. Proctor in District Supreme Court to withdraw the plea of "nolo contendere" which he made last week.

Attorneys William E. Leahy and William Hughes, jr., upon whose adVice the once brilliant naval engineer made his plea which in effect means "I do not contest the charges" will ask Justice Proctor for permission to withdraw from the case.

Farnsworth has declared that he is ready to conduct his own trial, although he is not an attorney, contending his experience makes him better qualified than a member of the bar to cross-examine naval experts.

After reversing his plea of last week Farnsworth in his letter to Justice Proctor, asking for a trial, declared he had been subjected to terrific pressure to withdraw his plea and decided to do so at the last minute after flipping a coin.

Assistant District Attorney Samuel Beach, who summoned more than 50 witnesses here from all parts of the country last week and was eager to go to trial with the Farnsworth case, will oppose withdrawal of the plea.

Beach will point out that his witnesses have scattered to the four winds now and it will put the Government to heavy expense to reassemble them.

Southeast Citizens Honor Maj. Brown

For his work in founding the Police Boys' Club, Ma. Ernest W. Brown was honored by the Southeast Citizens Association last night as the boys' organization celebrated its third anniversary with a program at Eastern High School. The Police Superintendent was presented a certificate awarded annuallyby the Southeast group for outstanding civic achievement.

The award was made by W. A. Maio, president of the Southeast Association. It was given, Maio said, in "appreciation of service and in indication of the respect of the Southeast Citizens Association," for Brown's work in founding the Boys' Club.

Brown, replying to the award recalled the foundation of the club and pointed out that it had grown from 200 boys t its start to a present membership of over 2,000. Such growth, he said, could never have been possible without the co-operation of Washington citizens. A camp for members, he also said, was planned for this summer.

"I am 'tops' again
—because I feel and look like my old self once more"

"How did I do it?
"I just reasoned sensibly."

"FORTUNATELY, straight thinking told me that vitality and pep was produced by energy created from within...so was the skin beautified and made clear from within. I found the famous S.S.S. Tonic just the remedy to stimulate lagging gastric juices and to supply the mineral elements for restoring deficient red-blood-cells. Hence greater energy from within... and an added glow to my skin."

Be 'tops' again with more vitality... more pep...a clear skin by taking the S.S.S. Tonic treatment. Shortly you will be delighted with the way you will feel...your friends will compliment you on the way you will look.

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build sturdy health...its remarkable value is time tried and scientifically proven...that's why it makes you feel like yourself again. Available at any drug store. © S.S.S. Co.

Babcock Suggests . . .

Speaking before the House Civil Service Committee during consideration of H. R. 2700, E Claude Babcock, president, U. C. S. E., suggested:

"I feel sure that the civil service employes would feel much more comfortable if there were inserted in this legislation a proviso approximately as follows: Provided, that in all reductions of force or in grade or in salary in the civilian service of the United States, of the government of the District of Columbia, and of corporations owned or controlled by the United States Government, the employes without any service in permanent positions which he occupied as result of competitive civil service examinations, shall be the first to be reduced in grade or salary, or released from the service, and provided further, that if there are no such employes the employe with the shortest length of such service shall be the first to be reduced in grade of salary or released from the service."

Quite frankly, we never had asked ourselves what an Alaskan nurse's life is like, but we find the answer, as given in an Indian Affairs publication, an interesting moment of reading. And would certainly say "no thank you" to any proposal that we ever become an Alaskan nurse.

The negative attitude is based on a letter from Nurse Nan Gallagher, who works St. Lawrence Island—an isolated bit of land 30 miles from the Siberian Coast and entirely surrounded by frozen sea from October to July of each year. She writes in part:

". . . there were no trails as the north wind had blown all the ice from the Pole down. On two trips I really thought that they would find my bones in the spring. My driver had his face badly frozen. We had to shoot one dog, leaving two on the sled; I had my nose and one toe frozen. It took us two days to make 45 miles. We slept, or tried to, in a cabin. We had no sleeping bag and it was bitter cold. I called myself all kinds of a fool for ever leaving California; I promised myself to go to some hot place and turn nudist . . ."

But, withal, she says she likes it there . . . "the natives are nice to work with."

For Improved Personnel

A national conference on "The Public Personnel Issue," arranged by the National League of Women Voters, will be held in Chicago tomorrow and Thursday with John G. Winant, chairman, Social Security Board, and Civil Service Commission Chairman Harry B. Mitchell as program participants. On hand, also, will be public officials, political scientists and leaders of national organizations who are concerned with improvement of public personnel through elimination of the spoils system of appointment. Organizations which, with the league, have been leading advocates of the merit system of appointments will be represented by nationally-known spokesmen.

High-powered speakers with high-powered subjects are listed for "The Frontiers of Law and Economics," the title of a series of ten lectures to be given in Agriculture Auditorium each Saturday at 1:45 p. m. under joint auspices of the Agriculture Department, Graduate School and American University. The speakers and subjects:

Dr. H. S. Jennings, Johns Hopkins, "Some Biological Generalizations and Their Import to Social Organization;" Dr. Gardiner C. Means, "Corporation Economics and Corporation Law;" Donald R. Richberg, "The Lawyer and National Administration of Economics Legislation;" Norman L. Meyers, "Administrative Law and Oil Control;" Joseph B. Eastman, "The Railroad Problem After Fifty Years," and Dr. Karl N. Llewellyn, "Sales Law and the Economics of the Market." The final three lecturers have not been selected, but one of the subjects will be, "The Administration of Anti-Trust Legislation." Co-chairmen are Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel and Dr. Leon C. Marshall.

L. Zaff Rogers comes in to announce his election as publicity director of the District of Columbia Federation, N. F. F. E., and to say that Robert Cushman has been appointed chairman of the organization committee, which is now planning an organization drive in the District.

Here's a Sweet One

"Honey and Some of Its Uses" is the title of a new publication from the Bureau of Home Economics. Purpose: To tell consumers about the food values of honey, how to take care of it in the home and how to make the best use of it.

Listeners to the "Let Freedom Ring" broadcast, sponsored by the Office of Education, should know all about their rights, theoretical and real, when the final sign-off comes on May 17. . . . The titles sound like what must have been heated and everyday talk in colonial times. With the dates of their presentation, these are: March 1, "Trial by July;" 8, "Freedom of Speech;" 15, "Freedom of Press;" 22, "Freedom of Religion;" 29, "Freedom of Petition;" April 5, "Right of Assembly;" 12, "Right of Suffrage;" 10, "Women's and Children's Rights;" 26, "Patent Rights;" May 3, "Right of Habeas Corpus;" 10, "Right of Freedom of Home;" 17, "Right of Racial Equality." The hour is 10:30 a. m.

Postals

The militant F. A. E. C. T. is expecting a full house Thursday night at Central High School, where the hot subject of a court of appeals for Government employes will be rehashed. . . . You will see at the speakers' stand Representative Ramspeck, Bernard Gehrmann, John T. Bernard, Frank R. McNinch, Harry B. Mitchell and others. . . . Rainbow Division veterans of this vicinity had a good time last night at the fifth annual tri-State Rainbow reunion of the District, Maryland and Virginia State chapters. . . . The event was in the grand banquet hall, Hotel Harrington. . . . Interior has awarded a contract for construction and operation of all concessions within Shenandoah National Park to the Virginia Sky-Line Co., Inc., of Richmond. . . . The contract runs for 20 years. . . . Bob Marshall, of the Indian Office (we wrote about him Sunday), would like to return to the Arctic Village, despite the 40 below temperature.

Marvin Asks Graduates To Shun Reds

G. W. President Says Dominated Crowd Is Not Creative.

Asserts 'What Each Brings to World Will Be His World.'

Warning that "heartbreaks" await those who participate in the struggle toward "collectivism," Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, last night told his graduating class to embark on their careers as rugged individualists.

"You go forth into a world that actively bids for you to believe in collectivism—collectivism as we have seen it in its modern forms leads to totalitarianism and personal rule," declared Dr. Marvin.

"A dominated crowd is never creative. A dominated crowd cannot last, for such direction demands that the hearts of men must be sacrificed.

"With your ability, training and background you have no call to make such sacrifice; rather should you create your own several worlds."

City's Largest Class.

Dr. Marvin told the bright faced young men and women of the mid-term graduating class—the largest of city's graduating classes—that "what each brings to the world he is creating, that will be his own world."

"In answer to smiles will be brought joy," elucidated Dr. Marvin." To the open mind will be yielded knowledge, to worth will be returned treasure; to work will be given strength; to honesty will come acceptance by fellow men; to faith will come dreams answered, and to love is entrusted life itself.

"Your university bids you go forth into your world and so live that your itegrity will guarantee to the minds of men the principles of freedom and living which you espouse.

"May the Lord God of Hosts bless you," Dr. Marvin concluded.

Dr. White Speaks.

Dr. William A. White, internationally renowned psychiatrist and head of St. Elizabeths Hospital, told the students that the modern education system is "too sterotyped and too standardized."

"Each young man as he starts out in the world should assemble himself sufficiently to know what he wants to do, not only what he wants to do with his whole soul and heart, but what he must do," Dr. White told the graduates.

"One of the great tragedies of an industrial civilization," Dr. White said, "is that most of the human beings who comprise it have to work daily at tasks in which they have little interest and with which they can not identify themselves in any adequate way, and they have to do this in order to live."

"The old craftsman apparently has disappeared forever and in his place there are the human cogs in the wheels of a mechanical world."

Seeks Understanding.

Calling for a better understanding between youth and age, Dr. White said:

"We knoy from everyday experience that the oldsters among us hang on to the ideas of yesteryear, and the youngsters look forward with enthusiasm to the changes that are going to take place in the future. If we could lessen the crystallization that comes with the years we would find that the enthusiasm of youth would not meet with such rigid resistances that come from their elders."

Dr. White declared that youth should be taught more clearly the history of the growth of ideas and feelings and the alterations of concepts which have come to pass in historical times.

"We need to put to work," he said, "such concepts as the modern development of psychology have given us, and to realize that the world is changed as much by our preception of it as we are changed by it, and that the idea that pure objectivity can be obtained in preception is a myth."

Problems Individual.

"The unique individual that I believe every man to be with years of a unique life experience back of him could not possibly approach any problem like anyone else."

Honorary doctors of science degrees were conferred upon Charles Greeley Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution; Paul Bartsch, of the Smithsonian Institution; Lyman James Briggs, director of the Bureau of Standards; George Braxton Pegram, acting president of the Society of Sigma XI and William Bowie.

Honorary doctors of law degrees were conferred upon Dr. White, John Campbell Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, and Edward Ellery, general secretary of the Society of Sigma Xi.

Well, I'll Tell You . . . . By Bob Burns

I notice that the people who put on a lot of show usually haven't got anything to back 'em up. It just goes to show that you can't judge people by appearances. There used to be a show-off family like that down home. They spent all their money tryin' to keep up appearances. They bought this big house and three automobiles. They had servants and entertained nothin' but the society people of the town, but they never had a friendly word for the old couple that lived across the street from 'em because they thought they was poor people.

Finally their money ran out and they couldn't get any more credit and they were forced to sell their house. They advertised it for sale for $16,000.00. The next mornin', they heard the doorbell ring and they went to the door and here was this old couple from across the street, standin' there and the old man had a tin bucket in his hand.

The man of the house looked at the bucket and he says "I don't want anything today" and he started to close the door, but the old man from across the street spoke up and says "No, we don't want to sell you nothin'—we want to buy your place and we brought the cash."

So the old man reached in the bucket and he took out the money and counted it and he turned to his wife and he says "I think we've lost $2,000.00. There's only $14,000.00 here." His wife thought a minute and then she says, "Do you know what you done? You brought the wrong bucket."

Patriotism Brings Boy Near Death

8 Others Hurt in Traffic Toll Near Capital on Holiday.

Patriotism, which took him to the monument grounds yesterday to witness Washington's birthday ceremonies, led 11-year-old George Widmyer, of 3125 Mount Pleasant street northwest, to the brink of death.

The child left home with his coaster wagon in the morning to see the services, the flags and to hear the bands. He kissed his mother good-bye and trudged away.

Hours later, almost at sundown, he was found critically injured in the street on Constitution avenue, near Twenty-seventh street, the victim of a hit-and-run driver. His battered coaster wagon was found 15 feet away.

Skull Fractured.

Physicians at Emergency Hospital where the child was taken said his skull was fractured, he had possible internal injuries, and that he was cut and bruised.

When her son failed to return home at the usual time, his mother, Mrs. Lulu Widmyer, called police. She was at his bedside last night.

Five-year-old Laurence Battista, of 2716 Twenty-seventh street north west, suffered a possible skull fracture and cuts and bruises yesterday when he was struck by an automobile as he crossed the street in front of the Wardman Park Hotel.

Joyce Hanley, 5, of Hyattsville, Md., daughter of Joseph Hanley, District fireman, narrowly escaped death when she was struck by a street car on Block street, in Hyattsville.

Taken to Casualty Hospital by the Hyattsville Rescue Squad, the child was said to be suffering a possible skull fracture and severe cuts. Her condition was described as undetermined.

Knocked Clear.

According to Joyce's father, the child ran across the tracks to greet some friends. She escaped being crushed under the car when a cow catcher knocked her clear of the wheels.

Running into the street in front of her home, Annie L. Bishop, 9, of 323 Seventeenth street southeast, was knocked down by an automobile. At Gallinger Hospital she was found to have suffered a concussion of the brain and multiple lacerations. Police said Stephen T. Cannon, 48, 1703 D street southeast, was the driver of the car.

Five persons were injured when the automobile they were riding in crashed into a telegraph pole on the Baltimore boulevard near Berwyn, Md., early yesterday.

The driver of the car, Mattie Morris, 28, 707 Seventeenth street southeast, who received cuts to his head and face, said he lost control of his car when slush from the road splashed on the windshield obscuring his vision.

The others who were injured are Mamie McMahon, 35, 1828 M street northeast, possible fractured skull and lacerations; Bernice Strongs, 35, 66 I street northwest, lacerations to the head, fractured shoulder and possible fracture of the right hip; Chester Strong, 43, 66 I street northwest, cuts and bruises; William F. Waer, 37, 327 First street northeast, fractured nose and cuts.

Clarence Waters, 40, colored, of Beltsville, Md., was held at the Hyattsville police station last night on a hit-and-run charge growing out of the traffic injury of Horace Strange, 28, of Branchville.

Effort to Save Old Treasures Burns Woman

Love of gay dresses she had worn when she was younger and the old newspapers she had collected through the years yesterday brought Miss Annie Brown, 77-year-old retired Government worker, to what physicians fear may be her death.

Miss Brown, who has lived at 17 N street northwest in her comfortable room for 17 years, went into her quarters last night and struck a match to light the gas.

In the flicker of the flame she already could see the garments she treasured so, and the stacks of newspapers, going back a decade and more. Miss Brown, as she reached for the jet, accidentally dropped the match.

The old papers flared in sudden flame and the fire swept toward the dresses she loved. There were other things she cherished in the room, too. She tried to beat out the flames.

Outside, Calvin O'Donnell, 30, a bricklayer, who lives next door, spied the blaze. He rushed upstairs, broke down the door and found Miss Brown, with no thought of her safety, trying to save the things she adored.

O'Donnell dragged her into the street. Although her rescuer had beaten out the fire, she was badly burned.

At Casualty Hospital, physicians said Miss Brown was seared about her arms, face and body. Her condition was critical because of her advanced age, they added.

"She was quiet about her affairs, and in all these years told me little," her landlady said last night.

"We've seen her come and go, cheerful and quiet, even after she retired," said neighbors.

"But few people knew of all the things she kept in her room. She was fond of them, though."

Civil Service Bill Hearing Nears Close

Ramspeck Expects Plan May Face Change in Committee.

Measure Includes All New Deal Agencies in Its Scope.

Chairman Ramspeck, of the House Civil Service Committee, said yesterday that hearings on his bill to extend the civil service to all New Deal agencies probably will be concluded tomorrow and that the committee will report the measure promptly.

Ramspeck admitted that there is some uncertainty as to whether the committee will approve the bill in its present form or amend it to provide non-competitive instead of competitve examinations.

"The majority of the testimony seems to be against me," he said, "but I still think it would be better to have the competitive examinations.

"There has been some misunderstanding about what would happen to present New Deal employes who took the examination and failed. They would not be dismissed, as is generally supposed, but as vacancies arise the places would be filled from the civil service eligible list."

Ramspeck pointed out that the non-competitive tests would ignore the preference given to World War veterans by the civil service laws in open examinations.

The Senate Civil Service Committee, meanwhile, will meet this week to decide whether hearings are to be scheduled on the McCarran pay raise bill prior to the submission of a general plan by President Roosevelt on reclassification, promotion, retirement and related matters.

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, also hopes to complete drafting another measure to provide for greater efficiency among Government employes by requiring examinations after an employe is admitted into the service.

Rainbow Veterans Hold 5th Reunion

As part of a reunion in individual groups all over the country the District of Columbia branch of the Rainbow Division held its fifth annual dinner and entertainment at the Harrington Hotel last night. I addition to veterans from Maryland, Virginia and the District, also present were William J. Nevius, president of the New Jersey chapter; Edward G. Riekert, president of the Father Duffy Chapter, of New York City, and James H. Brundage, president of the Westchester County chapter.

President Kay, of the local chapter, welcomed the out-of-town guests. Other talks were given by Joe Judge, former Washington baseball player; Congressman Melvin J. Maas, of Minnesota; Col. J. Monroe Johnson, commanding officer in 1917 of the Rainbow Division and present assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Congressman Carroll Reece, a Rainbow Division member from Tennessee.

Fatherhood No Cause for Baldness

FACTORS such as inheritance, fatherhood, age, or hats have nothing to do with loss of hair. Fourteen local scalp disorders (which come within the scope of Thomas treatment) account for almost 90% of all cases of baldness.

Your problem, therefore, is to rid your scalp of the specific local disorder which is causing or has caused your loss of hair. To do this easily, surely, and rapidly, consult a Thomas expert. He recognizes all of the local scalp conditions which cause baldness and knows precisely how to overcome each of them. (You will not be accepted for treatment if your case does not come within the scope of Thomas methods.)

When you start Thomas treatment, your scalp worries end—dandruff disappears, scalp itch stops and hair starts to grow on the thin and bald spots. Call today for a free scalp examination.

ABOUT GLASSES . . .

THE FIRST PATENT . .

During the 18th century important progress was made in the study and design of the modern lens. An English optician by the name of Dolland invented the achromatic lens in 1758. This invention was acquired and patented by Addison Smith, being the first patent ever obtained on spectacles. It was one of the most important forward steps in the manufacture of lens and formed the basis for many modern improvements. When we have our eyes examined today very little thought is given to the tremendous energy and hours of studying which were needed to produce the excellent quality of our spectacles.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"PRIDE AND PREJUDICE." Max Gordon presents the sentimental comedy in three acts and seven scenes, dramatized from the Jane Austen novel by Helen Jerome. Staged by Robert Sinclair, with settings and costumes by Jo Mielziner. Reviewed Monday night upon its return engagement at the National Theater.

THE CAST:

Mr. Bennet	Robert Conness
Hill	J. P. Wilson
Mrs. Bennet	Molly Pearson
Lady Lucas	Frances Brandt
Charlotte Lucas	Chouteau Dyer
Jane Bennet	Eugenia Rawls
Elizabeth Bennet	Muriel Kirkland
Lydia Bennet	Evelyn Byrd
Mr. Darcy	Lowell Gilmore
Mr. Bingley	Staats Cotsworth
Mr. Collins	Philip Tonge
Amelia	Frances Tannehill
Mr. Wickham	David Orrick
Belinda	Jane Arrol
Amanda	Juliette Howell
A Young Man	Ray Dennis
Captain Denny	Hugh Nevill
Miss Bingley	Esther Mitchell
Agatha	Dare Wright
A Second Young Man	Jack Donaldson
A Maid	Mildred Sherman
Maggie	Dare Wrighth
Mrs. Gardiner	Elwyn Harvey
Lady Catherine de Bourgh	Helen Strickland
Col. Fitz William	Leslie Denison
Mrs. Lake	Vera Fuller Mellish

Accelerated in tempo and with an almost complete change of cast, but retaining all of the sprightly humor, the picturesqueness of costuming and the impressiveness of setting that characterized the premiere week's engagement of the same play in the National Capital last year, Max Gordon's production of Helen Jerome's incomparably fine dramatization of Jane Austen's enduring novel of "Pride and Prejudice" yesterday inaugurated its return engagement in the National Theater with two performances that were largely attended and enthusiastically applauded.

Not in recent years has there been a finer example of the manner in which a supposedly "dated" narrative may be adapted to the lively uses of the modern theater. Miss Jerome, in her stage version of a novel that few thought could be harmonized with present-day tastes, has contrived situations and dialogue that are interesting, highly humorous and pungent in their satirical and sometimes biting wit.

Everyone who reads English is familiar with the Austen recital of the arduous task that confronted a middle-class English family, living on the countryside, in marrying off their three charming, petulant, headstrong and impetuous daughters. The pride of family and the prejudice of social caste comprise the groundwork of the engaging story of the humbling of spirit, one the one hand, and the exaltation of social conquest, on the other.

Dialogue Is Brittle.

Couched in the piquant colloquies of a social era that affected a formal and stilted observance of punctilious usages—still malleable enough to permit the indulgence of the most exquisite verbal pillories—"Pride and Prejudice" strikes a refreshing and an ingenious note in the contemporary theater. It is to this deft utilization of the exquisite modulations of friendly animosities that the play owes a great measure of its humorous, as wel las dramatic effect. Haughty dowagers are impaled upon the barbed shafts of their rivals' sinister and saccharine attacks; austere young blades are humbled by the ingenuous subtleties of the young women with whom they fall in love and a family of par venus are exalted by the unexpected triumphs of their social forays. It is all very quaint, very picturesque and very authentic in its presrvation of an atmosphere and a mood that characterized a period far removed from our own.

The cast engaged in the present interpretation of one of the most engrossing period plays that have come to the stage in recent years is a highly competent and effective one, although not in all respects the peer of the distinguished coterie of players who gave the play its first performance on a local stage prior to going on to Broadway to a season-long run of eminent success. The only member of the original company still appearing in the part which she created, unless memory is entirely at fault, is Frances Brandt, who appears in the role of the slightly "catty" Lady Lucas, always "done in" in their conversational clashes by Mrs. Bennett, mother of the three daughters whose marital aspirations and ultimate victories form the crux of the play.

Leads Are In Able Hands.

The roles of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, originally played by Percy Waram and Lucile Watson, are assumed with complete success by Robert Conness, an actor of solid background and substantial ability, and Molly Pearson, whose fame in the American theater dates back to the remote days of the overwhelming success on these shores of that well-remembered Scottish comedy of "Bunty Pulls the Strings," one of the outstanding successes of its distant season.

The three daughters of the Bennett family—Elizabeth, Lydia and Jane—are portrayed by Murial Kirkland, Evelyn Byrd and Eugenia Rawls. All do excellently well, although, at times, Miss Byrd betrays an inclination to over act and lend too great a volume of sound to the reading of her lines. Miss Rawls brings to the part of Jane much of the simple charm with which the role was imbued by Helen Chandler, of both stage and films, who created it upon the occasion of the play's premier in the National.

Romantic Roles Well Played.

The principal male roles of Mr. Darcy, Mr. Bingley, Mr. Collins, the foppish young cleric, and Mr. Wickham, the military man with the handsome uniforms, are admirably played by Lowell Gilmore, Saats Cotsworth, Phillip Tonge and David Orrick, although Mr. Tonge does not attempt the elegant foppery brought to the role in its first delineation by Harold Scott. Helen Strickland gives a strikingly colorful performance in the acidulous character of Lady Catherine de Brough, first played by Alma Kruger. The support is uniformly capable.

The costumes remain models of kaleidoscopic beauty, retaining all of their pristine freshness and uncrumpled magnificence, and Jo Mielziner's elaborate and massive settings have lost nothing of their impressiveness to the eye as sterling examples of how background may be made an integral part of the effectiveness of the play.

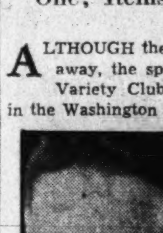
Hibernians of the Variety Club Are Planning A 'Cruise to Ireland' on St. Patrick's Day

A Cursory Glance at the List of Names of Those Involved Will Reveal That All Are Celts of the First Water—More or Less; Master Skippy Is Coming to the Screen as a United Artists Short in Natural Colors; Cue and Curtain Tackles a Hard One; Items of Interest Concerning the Theater.

ALTHOUGH the nationally celebrated event is still some three weeks away, the spirit of St. Patrick's Day has taken possession of the Variety Club of Washington, composed exclusively of showmen in the Washington territory.



BELL.

Variety Clubbers, their wives and friends are to go on an unique cruise the night of Wednesday, March 17. The event has been dubbed "A Cruise to Ireland," aboard the S. S. Variety. The gangplank will be shoved out in the club's quarters in the Willard Hotel and the various ports of call to be made will be spread over a considerable area of Barker Harry P. Somerville's handsome hostelry.

This novel event was conceived by Dr. Frank T. Shyne, the theater's eminent practitioner of drugless therapy. As a reward for his originality, the good doctor has been commissioned Skipper Isidore Nathan Styne. He will have as his first mate, the chairman of the club's social activities committee, Barney Blarney Kranz.

Assistant skippers for the hard-floor voyage are J. O'Hara Chevalier, Abraham Zlotnick Dougherty and Michael O'Toole Schulman. Shamus Galanty is purser; Edward Patrick Cafritz, J. Torrence Kotz and Tim Riley Kotz will be ship's physicians. Mike Hennesy Bachrach will be lookout in the crow's nest; A. Brian DeTitta is supply steward.

Andrew Sullivan Engel is an R. P. M.; Moe Moskowitz Clark, mariner; Francis Xavier Lust, stoker; Riley Schwartz Lohmeyer, port caller; Danno Limerick Meakin, deckhand.

Mate Sam Wheeler is custodian of tickets, which will be placed on sale this morning.

The novel trip to Erin is priced nominally at $1.50 per passenger and includes a midnight breakfast aboard the schooner. Many novel side trips, stops at ports never before seen by man or beast and a rollicking night on the dry high seas is promised every St. Patrick sailor.

When the S. S. Variety may be expected to dock on the return trip is something that at the moment rests in the lap of the gods!

There is a young fellow of fabulous renown coming to the silver sheet under new auspices. Master Skippy, the prodigious kid of the comic strips, is to be seen on the screen during the ensuing year as a United Artists release, I am informed by one who knows. Percy L. Crosby, creator of "Skippy," has articled with United Artists for nine cartoon comedies to be executed in natural color and released during the next 12 months. This should prove a magnificent addition to the short list of abbreviated camera subjects that may be relied upon to add to the gayety of nations.

Sara Allgood, the Irish actress who will be seen in the Theater Guild's production of "Storm Over Patsy," at the National Theater the week of March 1, has appeared in this country on only three previous occasions and then always as a member of the Abbey Theater Irish Players from Dublin.

Like some other members of the celebrated Abbey Theater company, Miss Allgood recently has transferred her activities to the London stage. She appeared in the London run of "Storm Over Patsey." She also has appeared in English films.

J. W. Austin, who will play a scotchman in the guild comedy, will only be playing himself. He was born in Edinburgh. He has, however, lost all trace of Scotch accent and is listed by the casting directors as an English actor. He has appeared in London, India, China and Japan.

It is interesting—or should be to aspiring authors and playwrights—to know that Lloyd C. Douglas, author of "Green Light," the thoughtful novel being shown in film form on the screen at the Earle Theater this week, sent the manuscript of his first novel, "The Magnificent Obsession," to 27 publishers before it finally was accepted by a small religious publishing concern. He made a fortune from it, as book and film play, and as a result there was spirited bidding for the rights to "Green Light." Life is like that.

The Cue and Curtain Club of George Washington University will present George Shiel's comedy, "The New Gossoon" at the Wardman Park Theater on Friday and Saturday nights, March 19 and 20. Shiel's play is representative of the new school of Irish playwrights and will be the second piece of this nature essayed by the Cue and Curtainers. The cast will include Elizabeth Griswold, Mimi Norton, Maxine Mitchell, Margaret Young, John Kendrick, Thomas Dobson, Charles McVickers and Harold Minor. Marvin Beers will direct.

One-Touch-of-Nature Note.

The audience marooned in the Belasco Theater after the final curtain of "Mulatto" Sunday night by that torrential cloudburst, now have some faint conception of how the flood sufferers must have felt. There certainly is a lot of water in this world!

Jewish Aid in 1776 Praised by Hines

By the Associated Press.

Administrator Frank T. Hines, of the Veterans' Bureau, in an address commemorating George Washington, paid tribute Sunday to the participation of Jews in the Revolutionary War.

In a radio speech under auspices of the Jewish War Veterans, Hines said:

"The ideals and principles on behalf of which Washington led the American colonies through the struggles and perils of the Revolutionary War held a poignant appeal for the Jewish people, an appeal which was answered in money and men by the Jewish colonists.

"In that pitiful, struggling band of patriots who suffered with Washington through the crucial winter at Valley Forge, many were of that race. In that conflict, as in those that followed, we find many among those in military command, whose names are engraved in marble, and still more indelibly in the hearts of their countrymen."

Baltimore Cabmen Go Back to Work

Baltimore, Feb. 22 (AP).—Baltimore's striking taxi drivers, their differences with employers apparently settled in conference, headed back to their jobs today "without fear of molestation."

Members of the union and cab company officials met yesterday with Judge Eugene O'Dunne, who had been asked to act as arbiter. The agreement ends a strike marked at intervals by rioting, arrests, and convictions.

Judge O'Dunne had imposed fines of $1,000 each on 15 strikers convicted in his court on disorderly conduct and riot charges. He promised to arrange for remission of the fines if the strike was settled.

J. A. Wilner Heads H.I.A.S. Campaign

Joseph A. Wilner, Washington tailor, has assumed the chairmanship of the H. I. A. S. annaul drive, now being conducted, it was announced yesterday.

The object of the drive is to assist refugees in Poland, Germany and other countries in Europe. The H. I. A. S. is represented in 31 countries, has a branch in Washington, and guided last year to this country 14,030 Jewish arrivals and about 30,000 to other countries.

The campaign directors, Dr. Rudolph Kornblith, from New York, is organizing the drive, assisted by the following committee: Dr. Abram Simn, Morris Cafritz, Bernard Danzansky, Morris Garfinkle, Isidore Hershfield, Paul Himmelfarb, E. I. Kaufmann, Rev. M. H. Levinson, I. P. Mazo, Benjamin Meiman, Rev. Louis Novick, Samuel Schwartz, John M. Safer, Louis E. Spiegler, Charles J. Stein and Harry Viner.

Judiciary Reform Favored by Ryan

The prelate addressed the Manchester City Club. He advocated "more liberal interpretation" of the Constitution in the interests of the general public welfare.

Mgr. Ryan said he favored a contitutional amendment so that reform leigslation would be safe against attack on the ground of unconstitutionality by future supreme courts after the President's proposals had first been enacted by Congress.

Stars of "Pride and Prejudice"

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, Feb. 22.—Now and then, during extra-length screen kisses, youngsters will yell a catcall and maybe a wise-cracker will jeer "Oh boy!" But sometimes I hear sighs, no doubt from that part of the audience held enthralled by movie romance. Miss Junior League and Mr. Youth-About-Town seem to love love scenes, and I will wager they think such sequences are great fun in the making.

ROBERT TAYLOR.

Actually, studio kisses with few exceptions are much more romantic in the finished movie than on sound stages. Nine times in ten, they are simply "all in the day's work." Of course, when such as Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck swap hugs they really mean it. The same goes for Eleanore Whitney and Johnny Downs, Jean Harlow and William Powell. But these lovebirds are exceptions; not the rule.

* * * *

In many cases, embraces which are so thrilling on-screen may actually have been distasteful in the filming. Imagine Carole Lombard kissing Bill Powell a few weeks after their divorce. Picture Jean Harlow clinching with Franchot Tone while she was warring with Joan Crawford. I shall never forget the day I stood on a set and watched Errol Flynn kiss Kay Francis a dozen times before the director was satisfied. Flynn put his heart and soul into it, but after each take Kay would turn to our side of the stage and make a sour face. I mean really sour.

* * * *

Who does not like a dog lover? I think it is largely due to her devotion to a dog, a mongrel of obviously doubtful ancestry, that I formed a quick liking for Doris Dudley, a screen newcomer. Not long ago, her pup gave vent to wanderlust. His mistress could not have been more unhappy had she lost a movie contract. You will be amused by her ad (whcih brought immediate results) in the "lost and found" column: "Lost. In vicinity of Riviera Country Club. A white mutt with brown spots named Chuckles. Always grinning. Completely valueless, except to owner who will pay reward."

* * * *

It gripes me when critics pounce on so-called coincidences in pictures. "It could never happen in real life," is a chant voiced too often. They should query Brian Donlevy about coincidences. During the World War he was a member of the Lafayette Escadrille. His plane was shot down above the enemy lines, but Donlevy managed to retain consciousness long enough to bring down his ship. When he came to, he learned that he had coasted to a perfect landing within ten feet of the only field hospital within 25 miles.

* * * *

Race horses owned by the stars have not fared so well at Santa Anita this season—nor any other season. The movie credo seems to be "Win one race a season, if possible." Mae West summed up the situation at the fight stadium the other night. "Our Hollywood horses may not win races," she purred, "but they meet a lot of nice nags socially."

Ambiguous Raises.

Certain advanced players make a habit of shading opening bid requirements to the bone and, by doing so, acquire an undeserved reputation for "wildness." I wish to stress the word "undeserved" because, compared with other practices, this one is innocuous. Far better to open lightly and thereafter hold one's peace than to open orthodoxly and then rebid willy-nilly.

North's diamond bid, though light, was not to be censured, but his free spade raise on the second round was the sort of thing that destroys partnership confidence. When East finally carried the auction to five clubs South could not be blamed for feeling that five spades should be safe. His own distribution, including as it did a doubleton of his partner's suit and a singleton of his opponents', was highly favorable to offensive rather than defensive play, particularly considering that North had raised the spades. A pass over five clubs would have been, it is true, forcing—that is, it would be asking North to double or go on—but there was little point to a forcing pass, since South would not be satisfied with the double even if it came. It was safe to assume that the opponents, even though not vulnerable, had excellent distribution for all the bidding they were doing, and that a five-club contract could not be severely penalized. Thus, since five spades should be an odds-on chance from the bidding, South refused to pass the decision.

Obviously, there was no play whatsoever for the contract. One spade, one heart and one diamond had to be conceded.

South was shocked when he saw the dummy go down, and it did not do his temper any good, after the hand was over, when North sweetly asked why South had not passed the five-club bid to him so that he could double.

Vienna Masses Troops as Riot Greets Hitlerite

Woman Dead, 28 Nazis Reported Hurt, 200 Jailed to Check Clashes.

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, Feb. 22.—Seven truckloads of militiamen were rushed into Vienna tonight to forestall further demonstrations after a riotous welcome given today to German Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath during which one woman died, 28 Nazis were injured and 200 jailed.

More than 300 fully-equipped soldiers were brought from the suburbs and quarters in the former Heimwehr Barracks in the center of Vienna while hundreds of government supporters staged counter-demonstrations before quiet settled on the capital.

Nazis Turned Back.

While police considered means of halting a Nazi torchlight parade scheduled for Tuesday night, it was disclosed more than 400 provincial Nazis were turned back at the city limits to prevent further disorders.

Moreover, it was acknowledged privately that 210 persons, suspected of being Nazi leaders, were detained in advance to avoid trouble.

The woman victim, who was middle-aged, was said to have died of a heart attack, but officials inquired into reports she had been clubbed while police curbed a disorder before headquarters of the Fatherland Front, which is determined to keep Austria on the "Dollfuss" road of authoritarian independence. The Nazi extremists want "anschluss," or merger with Germany.

Shouts of "Heil Hitler."

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's Catholic Weltblatt charged numerous Nazi demonstrators came from the provinces and seemed to be under some kind of leadership. There were many women demonstrators. There were wild choruses of "heil Hitler."

In official circles, all was amiability. Guido Schmidt, who handles foreign affairs for Herr Schuschnigg, told Baron von Neurath at a luncheon that the cultural and economic co-operation of Germany and Austria was much to be desired and observed the Austro-German friendship accord of July 11, 1936, was a start in the right direction.

Baron von Neurath replied: "This demonstration that Austria will identify herself as a German state is a worthy continuation of the work of Hitler and Schuschnigg."

3 Drown in Champlain; Fourth Escapes Thin Ice

Westport, N. Y., Feb. 22 (AP).—The icy waters of Lake Champlain today claimed the lives of a father and his two sons, who plunged through treacherously thin ice as they were returning from a Sunday fishing expedition.

A fourth member of the party scrambled to safety and summoned aid that arrived a moment too late to rescue one of the youths, who clung for 25 minutes to the broken ice crying for help. State police were dragging the lake tonight for the bodies of Charles O'Neil, 52, of Moriah, and his two sons, Harold, 10, and Allen, 9. Robert Lawrence, of Westport, narrowly escaped their fate.

TVA Town Without Power.

DuPont's Fairy Hill, 14-1 Shot, Wins $50,000 Santa Anita Derby

SPORTS The Washington Post SPORTS

Gelding Goes To Inside to Triumph

Military Comes From Far Back to Take Second Money.

Ptolemy, of Whitney Stable, Third; 40,000 Watch Struggle.

Santa Anita, Calif., Feb. 22 (AP).—The Foxcatcher Farm's Fairy Hill captured the $50,000 added Santa Anita Derby today over a hard-riding field of 21 starters.

The shimmering chestnut son of Messenger and Star Fairy, with Jockey Maurice Peters applying the whip, thundered down the stretch to win by a length over the Milky Way Farm's Military, with Cornelius V. Whitney's Ptolomey finishing third.

Upwards of 40,000 turf fans jammed Santa Anita Park for the third running of the rich classic for 3-year-olds.

Brown Jade, Movie Magnate William Le Baron's candidate, set a blistering pace for the mile and one-sixteenth event, but faded before the charge of the winning trio and finished fourth.

William du Pont, jr., wealthy Wilmington, Del., sportsman, collected $45,425 for first place. Military won $10,000, Ptolomey $5,000, and Brown Jade $2,500.

Perfect Conditions.

It was a brilliant victory under perfect conditions in a race that started off as a wild and somewhat unwieldy event.

Fairy Hill, paying $30.80 to win, $20.60 to place, and $13.20 to show for a $2 ticket, led the rout of derby favorites. Mrs. W. H. Furst's Gerald, a 5-to-1 choice in early betting, ran fifth, and the Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt entries of Tedious and Sharpshooter, shorter-priced favorites at 4 to 1, ran further back.

A total of $183,582 was wagered. Last year $131,932 went through the betting windows on the derby.

A. C. Compton's Clingendaal, with the favored No. 1 post position, was crowded out as the large field left the gate, while Tedious, Maj. Austin C. Taylor's Whichcee and A. A. Baroni's No Dice, leading candidates forced to start outside the gate, were lost in the early scramble.

The original field of 24 was cut down by scratching of Minstrel Show, Francesco and Stand In, and the customary gate was used instead of the contemplated tape.

Fairy Hill was clocked at 1 minute, 45 4-5 seconds.

Start Is Delayed.

The start was delayed several minutes. A mighty roar went up when Gerald and Valdina Farm's Eagle Pass suddenly bolted away. No Dice, Clingendal and Half Time were likewise over-anxious.

Brown Jade went to the front, with Mrs. G. J. Chatvaire's Papenie, the Fairfield Stable's Best Beau and Half Time grouped in the front.

Turning into the backstretch Fairy Hill had moved into second place, two lengths behind Brown Jade, with Sir Oracle, a Walter Taylor contender, third. Brown Jade, Fairy Hill and Sir Oracle battled down the backstretch and turned for home in the same lineup.

Jockey Archie Robertson on Military and Bobby Dotter on Ptolemy began their charge from the rear, and forging past the fading Brown Jade finished behind the winner.

Fairy Hill's Victory was the second important event in three days for the Foxcatcher Stable. Its Rosemond won the $7,500 San Antonio Handicap Saturday and is an outstanding favorite in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap next Saturday.

Here's the final order of the finish: First, Fairy Hill; second, Military; third, Ptolemy; fourth, Brown Jade; fifth, Gerald; sixth, Patty Cake; seventh, Jargo; eighth, Whitchee; ninth, Merry Maker; tenth, Papenie; eleventh, Eagle Pass; twelfth, Sir Oracle; thirteenth, Tedious; fourteenth, Sharpshooter; fifteenth, Clingendal; sixteenth, No Dice; seventeenth, Bon Hamburg; eighteenth, Best Beau; nineteenth, Bagpipe; twentieth, Half Time, and twenty-first, Calculator.

Landon Bows, 30-27, To Montgomery Blair

Montgomery Blair High School turned back a stubborn Landon Prep five yesterday, 30-27, on the Takoma Fire House court after trailing 16 to 14 at halftime. The high scholl rolled up 12 points to Landon's 4 in the third period and coasted to the finish after entering the final quarter, leading, 26-20. Eaton of Landon led the scoring with 10 points.

Loyola Wins Over G. W. By 36-34

Late Rally Is Futile as Chicagoans Assume an Early Lead.

George Washington University's basketball team celebrated its namesake's natal day in negative fashion yesterday, bowing to Loyola, of Chicago, 36-34, in a torrid struggle at Tech High School.

It was a heart-breaking defeat for Coach Bill Reinhart's men, as any of the 3,000 customers who attended will attest. The timekeeper's shrill whistle cut short a thirty-ninth-minute rally that all but saved the day. It was their first defeat at home this winter, and one of the best games played here.

Mike Novak, billed as the superman center, lived up to all advance notices. Nay, as far as George Washington is concerned, he exceeded them, for it was Mike's 6-foot, 9-inch frame that decided the issue. Time and again he deflected almost certain Colonial goals at the edge of the hoop, particularly in the first half when he smeared at least eight such shots.

Unable to make the shots normally, the downtown dribblers were obliged to rely on long, arching shots supposed to fall beyond Novak's eager grasp, and their marksmanship, consequently, was off. Not until all but four minutes of the final period were gone did G. W. finally get the range, and Mr. Novak by that time was too exhausted to jump.

Start Off Even.

They got off to an even start as Hal Kiesel sank a field goal and foul for the host team, and Colen, with a foul, and Halihan, with a field goal, retaliated for the visitors. Loyola's velvety smooth floor game began to function, and it promptly helped itself to a 10-to-3 lead. Colen, Calihan and Murray led the Chicagoan's drive, and the return salvo was fired by Butterworth and O'Brien.

Loyola finished the first half with a 16-to-10 advantage, but Murray, Colen and Lautz prodded it to 24 to 10 immediately after the final period opened, and they maintained this advantage through most of the period.

Seven minutes remained when Tommy O'Brien sank two field goals in rapid succession and Butterworth added another, awakening the fans to the realization that a rally was imminent. Kautz and Colen partially offset these by goals, making it 34-25. O'Brien scored again from the floor and Kiesel made good on a charity throw before Calihan dropped Loyola's final bucket of the afternoon, and it was 36-28, Loyola, with only 1 minute and 25 seconds left.

Rally Ends Short.

The din was terrific as George Washington's supporters screamed encouragement to the Colonials, while a surprisingly large Loyola delegation bellowed advice and moral support to the visitors, and the Colonials won—momentarily. Berg, a substitute, made good on a pot shot, O'Brien flipped in his fifth of the game from a corner, and Kiesel shot a third.

Ten seconds remained as George Washington called for time out, and Referee Paul Menton took charge of the watch. There was enough time left for a tap-off and one last long shot at the bucket, but George Washington never got the chance to try one. Novak, tired and exhausted, roused himself for one last jump, and got the tap from Kiesel. Calihan grabbed the ball and held it until the game ended.

Nevers May Be Coach Of Cleveland Grid Pros

Cleveland, Feb. 22 (AP).—Officials of the Cleveland Rams, professional football club, said today they discussed a coaching offer over the week-end with Ernie Nevers, gridiron mentor at Lafayette College, Bethlehem, Pa.

Nevers, once termed "football's greatest player of all time" by Coach Glen (Pop) Warner, is "considering" the offer, club spokesmen said. They did not disclose its terms.

The Cleveland club transferred a few weeks ago from the American League to the National Professional Circuit.

Schmeling May Meet Title Fight Winner

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 22.—Promoter Mike Jacobs held out a tentative olive branch to Madison Square Garden today and suggested it was possible he could persuade the winner of the Jimmy Braddock-Joe Louis bout in Chicago to meet Max Schmeling in a heavyweight title bout later this year.

Braddock, the champion, signed last week to defend the title against Louis in Comiskey Park, Chicago, June 22, provoking Madison Square officials into a threat of legal action to prevent the bout being held.

The Garden has both Braddock and Schmeling signed for a title bout here June 3, but Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, announced he would not go through with that match.

In a formal statement of his position, Jacobs declared that "nothing was done at Chicago to impair the Braddock-Schmeling bout or my contract with Madison Square Garden in connection with that bout.

"I coud not, in all fairness to Louis, prevent a Braddock-Louis fight," Jacobs said. "Chicago wants the fight and Louis is a taxpayer and immensely popular there. The Chicago fight will go through as scheduled."

Jacobs holds contracts on the services of both Louis and Schmeling.

"I have been informed by my lawyers," the promoter continued, "that nothing lawfully can stop the Braddock-Louis fight.

"I am confident that I can persuade the winner to defend the championship against Schmeling within 60 days after the Chicago bout. I will produce Schmeling. It will be up to the Garden to produce Braddock.

"I do not, however, intend to block anyone under my care from fighting Braddock this year."

Jacobs declined to say whether or not he would be connected with the promotion of the Chicago bout other than to take the 50 per cent cut of Louis' earning to which he is entitled under terms of a contract running until 1940.

Meanwhile, Madison Square Garden offered no further comment as to what form the legal action it has threatened would take, nor when it might be expected.

Metz Defeats Dudley in Play-Off

By the United Press.

Thomasville, Ga., Feb. 22.—Little Dick Metz, slender young professional from the Millroad Farm Club, Chicago, captured top money in the $3,000 Thomasville Open today, defeating Ed Dudley, of Augusta, Ga., in an 18-hole playoff.

Metz broke the deadlock in which the tournament ended yesterday by circling the difficult Glen Arven Course in exactly par figures—72—to take top money of $700 and give Dudley the $450 runnerup purse.

Metz and Dudley led a field of the Nation's best money players at the end of the regulation 72 holes yesterday with cards of 284—four strokes under par.

The Chicago professional, steadier than Dudley and playing nearly perfect golf, took a one-stroke lead on the outer nine today as he posted a card of 37—exactly par—to Dudley's 38.

Still playing steady golf, he picked up three more strokes on the way home for a 35—72 to the Augusta pro's 39—77.

High point of Metz's playoff round came on the dogleg 471-yard eighteenth when he holed out for an eagle 3. The eagle on the par 5 hole was the first made on the eighteenth during the entire tournament, which saw most of the Nation's greatest professionals shooting brilliant golf.

Dudley apparently suffered a letdown after shooting sub-par rounds of 70 and 69 yesterday to come up from behind and tie for the top with Metz. He found difficulty controlling his tee shots and was erratic on his approaches.

Most of the money players tonight were en route for St. Petersburg where a $3,000 tournament opens on Wednesday. The Gulfstream circuit will take the professionals to Bellaire, Fla., Hollywood, Fla., Miami, and St. Augustine before they turn north for the $4,000 Pinehurst meet on March 23 and the $5,000 opens at Augusta, Ga., on April 1 and at Charleston, S. C., on April 7.

Buckeyes Halt Indiana As Track Marks Fall

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 22 (AP).—Four new field house records were established here today as Ohio State nosed out Indiana, 46 to 40, in a udal Big Ten indor track meet.

Don Lash, Indiana's ace distance runner, ran the mile in 4:13.9, breaking his old field house mark of 4:16.5, set last year. Dave Albritton, Ohio Olympic star, high his old record of 6 feet 5½ inches jumped 6 feet 6 inches, shattering set here in 1936.

Charley Beetham, Ohio sprinster, sped the 440-yard route in :49.8, breaking the old mark of :50.5 established by Collier, of Indiana, in 1936. The Buckeye mile relay team turned in a time of 3:26.6, compared with the old mark of 3:24.8 made by an Ohio team in 1934.

St. Louis Cards Buy Sam Byrd of Rochester

St. Louis, Feb. 22 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals of the National League tonight announced the purchase of Sammy Byrd, outfielder, from Rochester of the International League. Rochester is a Cardinal farm club. The purchase price, as usual, was not announced.

Balfour Takes Title.

Arcelli Stops Silas In Upset at Arena

Capital Fighter, Badly Beaten, Saved by Referee in Fourth Round; Jaramello's Conqueror to Get Gevinson Bout.

By Bill McCormick.

Ray Ingram, the blond buzz-saw of the local ring, stepped in line for a shot at Lou Gevinson by taking a unanimous eight-round decision from Cristobal Jaramello, a Puerto Rican featherweight, at Turner's Arena last night.

A crowd of 1,500 witnessed the program of punch which was greatly abbreviated by quick knockouts in two other scheduled eight-rounders and a heavyweight tussle carded for six rounds.

Ingram outsmarted the free-wheeling, little brown-skinned fighter from almost the opening bell. The eventual winner repeatedly staggered Jaramello simply by lying in ambush with both hands over his face, then ramming home decisive pot shots as Cristobal opened up with looping lefts and rights.

Werther Arcelli, veteran Boston welterweight, scored the biggest upset of the night by knocking out Washington's Sid Silas in a cofeatured bout scheduled for eight rounds.

Silas simply was no match for the rugged Italian from the beginning. His timing was as inaccurate as a ten-year-old alarm clock. Sidney was battered to the canvas for three nine counts in the second round.

Came the third round and a smashing right to the chin drove Silas to 'is haunches half out of the ring. He rose at nine, but had nothing left to defend himself from Arcelli's determined onslaught and Denny Hughes called a halt to the slaughter after two minutes and five seconds.

Charles (Hobo) Williams, the Alexandria middleweight, sprung a minor surprise by knocking out Eric Lawson even quicker than he was supposed to in another contest scheduled for eight rounds.

A barrage of lefts and rights to the head had Lawson on the floor before the first round was over. Eric pulled himself up at nine, but was out on his feet, and Reynolds ran up the flag of truce after only 1 minute and 50 seconds of the bout.

Frank Tymosko, the good-looking heavyweight prospect from Richmond, scored another quick knockout by stopping one Stanley Ketchell, of Newark, in the first round. Ketchell was floored for nine by a right to the chin shortly after the opening bell clanked. He was up only to run into another right to the chin which sent him down so effectively he had to be dragged to his corner to be revived. Tymosko took exactly 1 minute and 53 seconds to accomplish what it recently took Joe Louis two rounds to do.

First-Sacker Successor to McCarthy

Washington Released Veteran in 1933; He Went to Dodgers.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Joe Judge, one of Washington's highest ranking baseball immortals, yesterday signed to coach Georgetown University's 1937 baseball team. Terms of the contract were not divulged, but it covers only the approaching season.

Judge succeeds Ralph McCarthy, a star outfielder at the Hilltop in his undergraduate days and coach for two years while attending medical school. McCarthy resigned at the close of the last campaign and now is practicing in Boston.

While the collegiate game is new to Judge, coaching is not, for he was always the first to help rookies coming up to the Washington club for a trial. Judge himself was a fixture at first base in the Nationals' infield from the afternoon in October, 1915, until 1932 when Joe Kuhel succeeded him. In that time he won acclaim as the most graceful first baseman in either major league, and one of the greatest of all time.

Kuhel Given Job.

Kuhel received innumerable pointers from the veteran, and loud and numerous were the protests when Clark Griffith finally decided the youngster had acquired enough polish to supplant the veteran.

Judge immediately signed with Brooklyn, and after drawing his unconditional release the same year, 1933, was tendered a contract by the Boston Red Sox. He remained in the Hub City until May, 1934, when he quit the majors for good.

Since his retirement, Judge has not taken an active interest in the sport, although he usually could be found at the ball park every afternoon the Nationals were at home. His flourishing restaurant business occupied too much of his time to permit a more active role.

Practice at the Hilltop will begin about March 15, and the season will open April 7, with Western Maryland supplying the competition. Judge meanwhile does not intend to have indoor practice, but will plan the strategy whereby he hopes to return the Blue and Gray to the heights it once knew in the intercollegiate diamond world.

Bud Markey Quits District

Tennis Star Joins Legal Staff at Akron.

One of the foremost figures in Washington tennis circles was lost to the Capital yesterday when Thomas S. (Bud) Markey left for Akron, Ohio, to join the legal staff of a rubber comany. A former captain of Notre Dame's tennis team, Markey has been ranked among the first ten in the District since he came here in 1929.

The young lawyer, graduated from Georgetown University Law School in 1932, has been a major factor in developing tennis in and around the District. He was vice president of the Ridgemoor Club, foremost tennis group of the area, and was prominent in forming the new District Tennis Association.

A former partner of Barney Welsh, Dooley Mitchell, Tom Mangan, Bob Considine and Eddie Yeomans, Markey was particularly well known as a doubles player. He is the fifth ranking player of the District.

Baltimore Girl Wins Gulli Pin Sweepstakes

Ethel Brewer, of Baltimore, last night ended the two-year reign of the Loraine Gulli sweepstakes held by Ida Simmons, of Norfolk, Va., when she rolled 1,201 at Convention Hall to vanquish easily the defending champion, who finished fifth. No Washington girls finished in the first five.

In taking the fourth annual Gulli classic, Miss Brewer won a $60 prize and the $25 award to the runner-up went to another Baltimore girl, Audrey Mullaney, who toppled 1,182 pins. Katherine Vick, of Norfolk, was third and Lucy Rose, of Rosslyn, fourth. Miss Simmons hit 1,162.

Sports Are Relieved As Tech Elects Athlete to Presidency

By John R. Vosburgh.

A stocky, round-faced football player named Leon Wiseman, of Tech High, is today the most powerful high school student in Washington. Young Mr. Wiseman has been elected president of Tech's G. O., virtual director of all money used by the school in student activities, including sports.

The G. O. is not a secret service corps. It is a good name for a going concern, to say the least—the council elected by the students to conduct student activities. No other school has so democratic a self-governing system and no mere figurehead is President Wiseman.

Somewhat anxious were various school departments as to whom was to be elected head of the G. O., for the president can do much toward cutting off or turning on their flow of financial support. Particularly anxious were the coaches of Tech's athletic teams. The election of a student nonsympathetic to sports could do much to throttle Tech's interhigh program.

And the election of a student partial to one sport over another, say,

Dissension Between Coach, Athletic Director Is Deep-Rooted.

By Jack Paulus,

Sports Editor of The Post.

A student disturbance that will rock Pitt to the pits of its 42-story Cathedral of Learning and a violent shakeup of the school's athletic department will be effected before Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, the Golden Panthers' coach for 13 years, is allowed to quit.

Persons who have been close to Pitt's athletic offices have known all along that friction existed betwetn W. Don Harrison, Pitt's director of athletics, and the famous coach. But if anyone goes, it will in all probability be Mr. Harrison, Dr. Sutherland having too strong a student and alumni backing to be swept aside easily.

The story of Dr. Sutherland's probable resignation was tossed into the open yesterday by Joe Williams, New York sports writer, who attributed an incident following the last Rose Bowl game in Pasadena as the "blowoff." The story intimated that Dr. Sutherland asked Mr. Harrison to appropriate some spending money for the athletes followed the game in which Pitt beat Washington to win its first Rose Bowl contest.

Mr. Harrison is said to have refused to give the athletes spare change for social activities that night, despite the fact that they helped Pitt earn a neat $85,000 that afternoon. Dr. Sutherland, noted everywhere for the humane treatment of his boys, is reported to have distributed the funds from his own pocket, following which Mr. Harrison is alleged to have said, "I made you and now I am going to break you!"

But the trouble is more deep-rooted than that. It goes back to the time Mr. Harrison was brought in from an academic post in the college to assume direction of Pitt's athletic forces. The director has been forced to meet principal and interest payments on a $2,000,000 loan, taken out by Pitt to build its huge stadium ten years ago. The interest on the loan is something like $200,000 a year.

The friction began the moment

Famous Grid Mentor Won't Be Allowed to Resign; Others May Go.

Harrison stepped into office, and, although for public consumption everything seemed normal, there was always an undercurrent of coolness between the two men. The thing had its effect on the student body. We felt it during our four years on the Pitt campus. Everyone else did.

Sutherland, graduate of the school of dentistry at Pitt, hasn't practiced since he won his diploma—he's been too busy guiding the gridiron destinies of his alma mater, and teaching occasionally.

His success with the Panthers has been great—his teams have never lost two consecutive games and since 1924, a Sutherland-coached eleven hasn't lost more than two games in any season.

His policy: "We try to make football fun. We practice less than any big team I know of. We scrimmage less—seldom after mid-season.

"We try never to give the boys too much work and always quit practice sessions while they still want more. But we try to win our games."

With Dr. Sutherland's tremendous student and alumni following, plus the backing he would receive from more than 90 per cent of Pittsburghers, it is unlikely that Pitt will let him go. Others will probably have to go first.

George Deyoe Leader In Skeet Club Event

Singing Slave Defeated by 2 Lengths

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 22.—Catalysis, chestnut daughter of Stimulus-Catalpa, in the yellow and black silks of the Starmount Stable, owned by Edward Benjamin, of New Orleans, today raced to a flashy victory in the seventh Nursery Stakes No. 2, for 2-year-old fillies exclusively. With Earl Steffen, ace juvenile rider, in the saddle, the $5.80 for $2 split favorite in the field of ten whirled home two lengths in advance of Mrs. Emil Denemark's Singing Slave, which was coupled with Misss Dolly Kay. Third money went to Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' Gert B.

Warren Wright's recent winner, Chic Maud, equal choice with the winner, was edged out of the picture after being outrun all the way. Over a track dulled by rains from the previous night, Catalysis ran the 3 furlongs in :33 2-5. Sally Shall, an absentee from today's field, holds the track mark of 33 seconds flat, which also equals the world record.

Catalysis earned $3,190 in purse money for her owner. It was the filly's second easy score in as many sarts and she was cheered home by another big crowd.

Today's feature of the holiday program is the second three stakes for juveniles on the Miami Jockey Club's calendar. The colts and geldings had their fling in the first Nursery Stakes, the fillies had theirs today and winners of both sexes may clash in the Hialeah Juvenile Championship, closing day, March 6.

Steffen broke Catalysis in rapid order from the inside post position. the fast-stepping lassie lost no time drawing clear of the field and was going easily as she passed the finish line. Singing Slave was a contender all the way and was driving hard under Charlie Kurtsinger while holding the forward running Gert B. safe for the place. Chic Maud had no excuse. Breaking in the middle of the bunch, the Wright filly never could threaten for more than the show position. She just failed to nip Gert B. on the wire.

W. J. (Buddy) Hirsch's Columbiana chalked up her third straight triumph in the 1-mile George Washington Purse, in which six members of the 4-year-old and upward division competed. Under the light parcel of 105 pounds, the daughter of Petee-Wrack squeezed home by a half length. Mrs. Emil Denemark's Two Bob and Genie Palatine accounted for the place and show, respectively, another half length apart. Genie Palatine cut out a fast pace into the final drive, where Columbiana and Two Bob took up the issue.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING BANNER, $11.60, $4.90, $3.60; GOLDEN THOUGHT, $5.40, $3.70; WANDEROBO, $4.40.

FLYING BANNER worked her way up, came to the inside in the final furlong and, getting through, closed fast and got the photo decision. GOLDEN THOUGHT, under light weight, was hustled into the lead and, showing good speed, made a game effort. WANDEROBO, on the extreme outside in the stretch, finished on the outside of the field. DEBATE, well up from the start, closed fast and might have won in another stride. SUNPHANTOM held on gamely.

FOURTH RACE—Three furlongs (straightaway). The Nursery Stakes No. 2. Purse, $2,000 added. For 2-year-old fillies (foaled in 1935). Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:39. Off at 3:42. Winner, Starmount Stable's ch. f. (2), by Stimulus—Catalpa. Trained by H. McDaniel. Value to winner, $1,300; second, $400; third, $200; fourth, $100. Time, 0:33 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CATALYSIS, $5.80, $4.20, $3.50; SINGING SLAVE, $11.00, $6.30; GERT B., 4.40.

CATALYSIS broke very fast, ran straight down the inside and drew away easily. SINGING SLAVE was whipped away from the gate and displayed a good effort. GERT B. broke fast, but swerved over to the inside, causing a mixup. CHIC MAUD, on the inside, failed to show her usual speed. MIYAKO was interfered with just after the start. MISS APPREHEND ran a good race.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (chute). The George Washington. Purse, $1,200. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:10. Off at 4:13. Winner, W. J. Hirsch's b. f. (4), by Petee Wrack—Firetop. Trained by W. J. Hirsch. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:36 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COLUMBIANA, $4.40, $2.40, $2.60; TWO BOB, $2.20, $2.30; GENIE PALATINE, $2.30.

COLUMBIANA got away well, was rated along behind GENIE PALATINE to the furlong pole, where she moved up and into the lead and stood a drive gamely. TWO BOB was always close to the pace, came around the field in the stretch and finished very fast. GENIE PALATINE got away fast, showed speed, but stopped when caught. REMINDING closed a big gap. SEVEN STAR ran a fair race. CHIEF CHEROKEE tired badly after following the pace to the stretch.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 3 furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place easily. Went to post at 4:40. Off at 4:41. Winner, R. L. Hanna's ch. g. (6), by Prince Pal—Maid of India. Trained by R. L. Hanna. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 2:18 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LUCULENT, $7.80, $4.00, $2.80; KNACK, $11.40, $3.80; TOP HIGH, $2.40.

LUCULENT was well ridden. He was kept off the early pace until the final quarter mile, then moved up on the inside and, closing with a rush, won going away. KNACK, running kindly, ran into the lead, set the pace and held on well. TOP HIGH was very sore going to the post and appeared sore all during the running. AMERICAN PRINCE had no mishap. MISS CAPERS had speed for 6 furlongs.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:08. Off at 5:11. Winner, S. Gooch's ch. g. (4), by Grandace—Windlass. Trained by P. O. Anderson. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:51.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANHELATION, $18.20, $7.50, $4.00; DESERTER, $4.60, $3.20; DARK WINTER, $3.00.

ANHELATION broke good and kept close to the pace, circled the field on the turn, assumed the lead in the final furlong and won going away. DESERTER was hustled along from the start and held on gamely. DARK WINTER made his bid entering the stretch, but faltered badly. BICHLORIDE was well up all the way. CHANCE QUEEN stopped badly in the final furlong.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al,

Selections at Hialeah.

Bryan Fields, the New York Times race writer, will broadcast the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap next Saturday and will fly back to give the folks the $50,000 Widener Handicap a week later. I would like to have a piece of the stock of this track. Betting has mounted even beyond the hopes of Joseph E. Widener, the president of the Jockey Club, and that's saying something. Each Florida county will get upward of $25,000 out of racing in the State this winter. Bowie will have an electric device for flashing the order of the finishes starting with the opening of its spring meeting on April 1. It will also flash the positions of the horses during the running of the races. This probably means that the public address system will be taken out. Personally, I like the calling of the position by an announcer better than the system used at Laurel, which is probably the same that will be installed at the Prince Georges County track. Celebrities are selling for a dollar a dozen at Hialeah. Not even Jim Farley can get more than a ripple out of the swanky race crowd, and movie stars are walking around the clubshouse like strangers.

BILL.

First race—Radio Charm seems to have found a field that answers his purposes. Needs only the right ride to dispose of this brand of juveniles. Johnnie Dear gave a good account of himself recently and may be the one to beat. Bestest for the show award.

Second race—Phillipi Boy may not belong with this kind, but if you want to take a chance that will bring telephone dividends if it clicks, we might do worse than give this one a chance. Wright will do the riding. Entree seems to have the best figure. Jeanne Fetzko for the show money.

Third race—Square seems nicely placed in this test. Gets in with feather weight and I'm going to string along. Durwrack could surprise if the track is off. Melody Maid to take care of the others.

Fourth race—M. J. Brennan, the old campaigner, may take this brand of platers into camp. This is another Wright mount. Grey Shot gets in with a feather and is dangerous. Kenner is a possible surprise.

Fifth race—Tintagel, despite disappointments, seems headed for the main pay-off in this field. If the track is muddy Gay Balko will have a fighting chance to upset this probable favorite. Mucho Gusto is improving and will be hard to keep out of the picture.

Sixth race—Peedeeque needs only careful handling to win over these. Over Yonder has been knocking at the door of late and is a threat in this company. Live One is too consistent to disregard entirely.

Seventh race — Treasure Ship should win this or be shipped to the glue factory. Briny Deep and Penrill for the place and show.

BETHOLINE SALES TRIPLED

SINCE PREMIUM WAS REDUCED
(formerly as much as 5¢—now only 2¢ more than gasoline)

This Simple Test Shows Why

THOUSANDS of motorists in Maryland and the District of Columbia have switched to Betholine. Why? They have found that, because Betholine weighs half a pound more a gallon than gasoline, it gives extra mileage that makes up for the slight extra cost —that Betholine's extra performance is free.

Make a mileage test—prove to yourself that if you are now using straight gasoline, you pay no more for Betholine's extra performance—and if you use a premium motor fuel, Betholine will actually save your money.

This Morning . . .

Without Shirley Povich

By Walter Haight.

Remember the little boy who wanted to be a locomotive engineer or the fire-engine driver? He's grown up now and he wants to be a selector of race horses for the daily paper. It is said that almost every person at some stage of his or her life has secret ambitions to become either an actor or an author. I have discovered that almost every man and woman who sees a horse race or who reads a race chart harbors the belief that he or she could become an expert handicapper on a moment's notice.

HAIGHT.

Mr. Wood B. Handicapper picks up the paper. He turns to the race page. He makes a mental note of the horses selected by a certain selector. Then he looks over the entries, and says to himself, "I like Beetle Brow today." He doesn't know why, but somehow that "Beetle Brow" just sticks in his mind. That selector for the paper doesn't give "Bettle Brow" a chance.

He buys the early edition of the morning paper and there it is: "Beetle Brow wins Hialeah Feature Race." He now is convinced that he is a turf expert.

Sleep is a long time coming that night as Mr. W. B. H. discusses with himself the ways and means of making the most of his "gift."

Finally he dreams: The five Washington papers send representatives to him with offers to become their handicapper. He smiles as they bid for his services. Finally, he signs a contract for $15,000 a year and all he has to do is to pick three horses each race. He goes down to the newspaper office. The publisher of the sheet is standing on the front step waiting for him. They march into the building arm and arm.

He is shown his office. He doesn't like the furnishings, but the superintendent of the building is standing beside him with a pencil and pad. The new handicapper orders nickel and leather furniture. His secretary must be a blonde—and young. Oh, yes, everything would be taken care of.

* * * *

The following day the dream handicapper gets ready to select horses. He looks out of the window. Great crowds already have gathered, waiting for the paper that will carry his picks. He places the entries before him. The past performances of each horse are projected on a screen at the end of the room. He glances at them and begins to dictate the magic names to his secretary.

* * * *

There is a knock at the door. His combination copy-boy and bodyguard reports that the managing editor would like to know if the handicapper would mind if he came in and stood quietly in the corner of the room while he was selecting the horses.

That day he picks the first six winners and his choice in the seventh race is beaten in a photograph finish. The publisher stops by the handicapper's office. After knocking, the publisher comes in and begins slapping him on the back.

The dream fades out and the Mr. Wood B. Handicapper awakes to reality. It isn't the publisher at all, it's the missus punching him in the back and saying, "Don't lay there like you're the Duke of Windsor. Go down and open the draft on the furnace."

Me and my shadow, Bill Bennings, are qualified as experts on the mental disorder known as "I-could-be-the-best-handicapper-in-the-countryitis."

* * * *

In fact, this piece I'm trying to write was born of a letter I received from an elderly aunt yesterday morning up in New Jersey.

"——and please try to send me those copyright blanks. This system shows a profit of $196 on a flat $2 bet for the Florida racing. As yet, I've only tried it on paper, but I have shown it to several friends and (not that I do not trust them) I thought it was best to copyright before offering it to one of the New York papers. Love to——"

* * * *

Bill Bennings' job has been the objective of many and I haven't the least doubt that among them were some better qualified and perhaps luckier than I. In most cases they have confidence in their ability and they have written that they would not object if my selections also were carried by the paper.

However, there have been a few who were out for blood, using any kind of methods to convince the boss that I should be carted off to the poor house in order to make a place for them. Notably among these was a man who wrote in during two periods using the name of "The King" on the first occasion and later "Chief."

He did not have an original idea. He used the old system of attacking from the back. Each day he mailed in his selections to the managing editor with the note that the postmark was before race time. Each day he inserted a note that put the following day's results in his favor. On days when I had the best of it in the number of winners, he inclosed a clipped chart with circles around notations in the footnotes making excuses for his horses.

"The King," as he identified himself then, did not refer to the fact that he was picking them an hour before the race when he knew the scratches, the official jockeys, the selections of all the first-flight handicappers and the track condition, while I was forced to work 24 hours in advance. "The King" had five winners one day and because of a hand cancellation mark on the stamp instead of the usual machine mark, I suspected but could not confirm that he had a friend in the postoffice.

* * * *

I kidded "The King" along in the column until he became nasty, listing winners that he did not have. I'll admit he had my goat for a while. I could not identify him. His letters came in the same sort of envelope. They were typed on the same typewriter. The paper was the kind used for second sheets in the Government departments. The letter came through the same postoffice sub-station.

For perhaps three months "The King" kept up his drive. I gave up my amateur detective work and waited for him to either wear himself out or come in for the job.

Finally, he wrote, "If I top Bennings today, I'm coming down for an interview tomorrow. If he beats me, I'm going to stop sending you my selections."

It was my luck to be unlucky enough to give him a licking. I had one of my best days. Strange as it seems, I picked four winners, ranging in price from $26.80 to $9 and "The King" was held to the $9 winner and a $4.40 favorite.

The day before Bowie opened the following spring, "The King" was at it again. This time he was "Chief," but the stationery, the typing and the postmark were the same. His line had not changed, either.

I used up my limited stock of ingenuity and for several weeks I did not even open the letters which were passed on to me. After one of my rare good days at the track, I opened "Chief's" envelope to see if he had any winners. I noticed that there was typing on the reverse side of the sheet.

* * * *

He had started to write a letter and had used the other side for his selections. This was the first mistake he had made as far as concealing his identity was concerned. The half-written letter was addressed to a Mr.—— Forte. It went something like this: "We had better watch out how we handle those checks. Another one bounced back yesterday——"

That was the break I needed. I determined that there was a Mr. Forte at the address given. I could have run the "Chief" down through the tip. But I got an idea (strange, but true).

The following morning I made this the end of the final sentence of the "Dear Al" note in the Bennings' column:"—— and, by the way, Al, I saw your old friend Bad Check Chief today and he was holding the Forte."

The Postoffice Department never complained about the loss of "Chief's" business.

Veteran Officials Will Handle Southern Conference Boxing

A quartet of veteran ring officials well known for their integrity and ability in Eastern collegiate circles, yesterday were named to handle the Southern Conference tournament bouts Friday and Saturday at College Park. Three actually will officiate in the ring and act as judges, and the fourth will be in charge of equipment.

Frank McCrachen, of Philadelphia; Charley Short nad Ed Brockman, of Baltimore, were selected as referees, while Elder Craft, of Newport News, was delegated overseer of equipment. The latter will see that all contestants' hands are bandaged properly and inspect the gloves before each bout.

All three men who actually will work in the ring handled the tournament last year at Charlottesville and were recommended for their efforts, but this will be Craft's first appearance in an official capacity at any tournament.

The Capitol Park and Continental hotels have been designated official headquarters for the visiting ringmen, during their two days' sojourn in the city, and weighing-in ceremonies will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Capitol Park. Whether survivors of the first two rounds will be obliged to weigh-in again Saturday morning had not been determined last night, although there was much sentiment about the matter, pro and con. In past years it has been customary to have two weight tests, although nothing in the rules calls for such action.

Jimmy Driver, graduate manager of athletics at the University of Virginia, who will act in an advisory capacity to the committee in charge of arrangements, is expected to arrive today and will assist the committee in ironing out minor details yet to settle. Driver was in charge of the tournaments staged at Charlottesville in the past five years.

Meanwhile, a brisk sale of tickets at both Spalding's and College Park augured well for the financial success of the affair. A heavy demand for Saturday night's final round diminished the supply considerably, but good seats still are available. Prices range from $1.10 to $2.20.

Ambassador Water Polo Team to Play Tonight

The Ambassador Pool water polo team will tangle with the Washington Canoe Club poloists at 9 p. m. tonight in the Ambassador Pool in the opening game of the season. Wrestling for Ambassador are Captain Moon Mullins, Fritz Nordstrom, John Welsch, Jack Palkenborn, Frank Palmer and Bill Brown.

Rockville A.A. Noses Out All-Stars

Former Schoolboy Aces Bow, 32-28; Entries Close Tomorrow.

Two highly regarded entries in The Post-A. A. U. basketball championships starting Monday in the Heurich gymnasium battled yesterday, with the Rockville A. A. nosing out the Eastern All-Stars, 32-28. Composed of Eastern High stars of the past two years, the All-Stars took a 14-12 lead in the first half, but faded in the stretch.

Stronger than ever, the Rockville five, which was eliminated last year by the George Washington Freshmen, who went on to win the championship, are definitely out to annex the title which eluded them last year. Former college stars bedeck their line-up colorfully.

At the forwards Hersh Hershberger and Carl Becker, two former Rockville High aces, are holding forth and it was Hershberger who rolled up 13 points in the A. A. U. tournament to lead Rockville's upset of Bureau of Investigation. Hershberger also led yesterday's attack with 11 points.

At center, big Jim Forney, former Western High star and Baylor Freshman footballer, is piling up points with Billy Mitchell, former Wilson Teachers and George Washington Freshman star at one guard and Fred Lanier, recently a star for Tennessee, at the other. Jack Markland, Bog Hogan, Paul Anders and Mills ably complete the cast.

Basketball fanatics of nearby Maryland believe the Rockville combination is "the team to beat," in the tournament and the team is only too anxious to taper off for the tournament, seeking games with fast unlimited teams. Call Manager Skinner Beane, Rockville 104-M or Georgia 3431 after 6 p. m.

In the past three days the Rockville squad has knocked off opposition so impressively as to lift well up among the leading contenders for the title—George Washington Freshmen, District WPA, Rinaldi Tailors, Sterling A. C., Delaware & Hudson, and a dozen or more others. Rockville stopped Army War College, 45-25, at the University of Maryland, Saturday. On that occasion, Mitchell piled in 13 points.

Playing their first game together, the Eastern All-Stars looked highly impressive against the veteran Marylanders. Dopey Dean led the point making with 10. The team showed plenty of co-ordination and with Don Fones, formerly at Central High, available at forward, the All-Stars appeared good indeed.

Entries for all classes close midnight tomorrow. Blanks may be secured at The Post sports department, various boys' clubs, community center points and Heurich gymnasium, but must be turned in at the Boys Club of Washington, 230 C street northwest.

Outboard Pioneer Sees 80-Mile Speed

By the Associated Press.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 22.—Marshall Eldredge, who started outboard motor racing ten years ago when 16 miles an hour was fast, predicted today that a few more years will see the little craft scooting 80 miles an hour.

Whitecaps in Lake Worth caused a second postponement today of the Palm Beach Yacht Club's annual regatta, so Eldredge stayed "home"—in the auto trailer in whcih he and Mrs. Eldredge came from East Weymouth, Mass., to follow the winter racing circuit.

Eldredge, who has won about all the titles in the sport, recalled when he first started outboard racing in 1926, the motors developed about 4 horsepower. Then they were uncertain and the tiny hulls upset easily.

Skeet Shooting Offers Hunting Thrills, but Is Not So Hard On Wild Life, Reporter Finds at National Capital Club

By Bill McCormick.

Until exactly 13 minutes and 36 seconds past 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, your reporter was under the impression that a skeet was an elusive bird, if he thought at all about the matter. He also had a vague idea that skeet shooting was something akin to snipe hunting, which is one of the sports in which your correspondent has been left holding the bag.

At 2:13:26 the only unbusy telephone in the office jangled. Being the only unbusy reporter on the scene, we found ourselves listening to the dulcet voice of Dr. Don S. Knowlton, U. S. Marine Corps, District Boxing Commission and National Capital Skeet Club.

"Good afternoon," purred Dr. Knowlton. "Do you realize this is a lovely afternoon for some high, wide and handsome skeet shooting?"

"I am very busy trying to shoot a seven or eleven for two bucks right now," was our firm reply. "If the little skeets want to be shot they'll have to come up here. I am not in the mood for rooting out skeets at the moment."

The Marines Landed.

The dulcet tones faded and in their place crackled Dr. Knowlton's best U. S. Marine Corps voice. A reporter can escape from almost anything, but not from a crackling U. S. Marine Corps voice. Within a few moments we were headed for the wide open spaces and the beginning of our skeet shooting education.

Skeets, it seems, are not birds, and nobody is left holding the bag. The name skeet, which means "Shoot" in some Scandinavian languages, was suggested when the originators of the game held a contest for an official title.

Skeet shooting is similar to trap shooting in that shotguns are used and zooming clay pigeons are the targets. There the similarity ends.

In skeet, everything is done to make the traget perform as would a bird in the field. It offers all the thrills of hunting, but is not so hard on our wild life. There is a more advanced school of clay pigeon popper-offers who go in for hidden traps, woodland setting, etc., etc. But this type of shooting does not permit competition, and competition is largely responsible for the growth of skeet shooting.

High and How Traps.

In skeet, the shooters work in a semicircle, moving clockwise from various positions scattered around like the hour figures on half a Big Ben. At each end of the semicircle is a trap, from which clay birds are whizzed. One trap is a two-story affair, known as the high trap. The other is a squat little business known as the low trap. For the protection of the boys who load the traps, they are armored. Both traps are manipulated from a control house on the outer edge of the semicircle.

The shooters start in the No. 1 position. As each gunner steps up to shoot, he signals the control house. Some yell "ready," others emit a cry like a wounded bird and some just grunt. It all depends on the shooter's disposition.

At the signal, the control house releases a bird from the high trap. The shooter picks it off, or tries to. No sooner has he fired than from the low house comes another bird. After those two shots, the shooter steps out of the position, and another takes his place. Once around the half circle go the shooters, then they step to the middle, to fire at birds almost directly overhead.

The finale is shooting at double birds. Both traps discharge their birds at the same time and the gunner is supposed to pop them off in rapid fire order.

Delayed Traps Unnerving.

A shooter is not allowed to put his gun to his shoulder until the bird leaves the trap. Sometimes a delayed trap is used, which means that the bird doesn't always come out immediately the signal is given, but often is as late as three seconds. The three seconds' delay is very unnerving.

As to the difficulty of winging the birds, experts tell us that shot from a 12-gauge shotgun spreads out into a pattern 30 inches wide at 25 yards. In calm weather the bird travels 60 yards, its full flight, in 1 4-5 seconds. The distance between trap and trap, in which the birds usually are hit, is 40 yards. The bird covers that distance in 4-5 of a second, then falters in the last 20 yards. A wind upsets all these figures.

The sport is not overly expensive. A round of 25 shots costs $1.25. Membership in skeet clubs is not expensive. The membership business is to keep those without sense enough to handle firearms and a true understanding of the moral requirements of hunting from participating.

There are probably only 200 confirmed skeet addicts in the District. Enthusiasts estimate that at least 5,000 hunters hereabouts would become interested in skeet if they knew how much it would improve their shooting. It also is estimated that many more who never have hunted would become interested if they realized that through skeet they could learn to shoot well enough to hold their own against any nimrod.

Spring's Near? D. C. Gridmen Are Ready

Spring football practice will beat spring to the city by at least two weeks if the four major schools' coaches have their way and weather conditions do not interfere. Preparations for it are well underway.

Coach Jack Hagerty had issued instructions for Georgetown's men to report last week, but was thwarted by snow. Now he is uncertain as to when they will be able to get going over on the Hilltop, for it all depends on the condition of the field, which is notoriously slow draining.

"Dutch" Bergman, at Catholic U.; Frank Dobson, at Maryland, and Jim Pixlee, of George Washington, expect to have their men out in full force by the second week in March, possibly sooner. The majority of Bergman's men are participating in either basketball or boxing and he wants to give them a rest before plunging into football.

At Maryland, spring practice is compulsory only for sophomores, and most of the veterans take advantage of this rule to indulge in their favorite spring sports or catching up on studies.

All four coaches have innumerable obstacles ahead of them, particularly in view of the fact that all have tougher schedules coming up. Maryland loses almost everybody but the coaching staff.

Hagerty and Pixlee are more fortunately situated in the way of material, but the former has another problem to contend with—seniors. Georgetown's 1937 squad will be predominately seniors, and every coach will tell you that the fourth-year men are not the best. Juniors make the best.

Pixlee loses Ray Hanken, one of the best ends here in years, and Dale Prather, a good tackle on occasion, and Hanken, at least, will be sorely missed. He was a terror on the defense, and an A-1 man offensively.

Maryland had a fine freshman team last year, one of the best in its history, but Dobson is again faced with the task of building up a supply of reserve talent able to respond to any emergency. This was his biggest problem last year, and if the reserves are not forthcoming next autumn it's going to be a dull season for the Terps.—By LEWIS F. ATCHESON.

Grant National Titlist.

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Robert Grant 3d, of New York, today won the national amateur racquets championship, defeating E. M. Edwards, of Philadelphia, in straight games at the Racquet and Tennis Club. The score was 15—2, 15—14, 15—9.

Athlete Will Head Tech Student Body

can do much toward favoring one particular pastime. Thus it was that Tech's football coach in particular, Elmer P. Hardell, is reported to have breathed a sigh of relief upon Wiseman's election. A football addict is young Wiseman. For two years he played guard on Hardell-coached teams until injury sent him to the sidelines.

Little has Coach Hardell to worry about so far as his inflow of funds from the G. O. is concerned. True, the G. O. has its faculty advisor, Mathematics Instructor C. R. Clark, but it is not Tech's policy to interfere too much with funds of the G. O., generally realized from student activities.

The G. O. president by his influence with fellow council members has been able in past years to dictate in what direction funds shall flow, whether to drama, music, cadets or sports. Good presidents have been clever distributors. Some have been partial and some phase of student activity has suffered. Some activities have controlled a president in one way or another and steered funds in their direction.

Loren Pope, copy-reader for the sports department of The Post and former football player at Tech, once was acting president. Irritated at the attempt of the football department to secure too large an appropriation, Pope combined with Bozie Berger, star baseballer, to increase the small baseball appropriation at the expense of the heavily supported football fund.

Often, however, the coaches get close to as much as they ask for, if the amount is within reason.

Square-built Wiseman's election showed Tech to be heartily pro-athletic, the new president believes. He succeeded President Bob McArthur, a cadet. Wiseman's first move, he says, is "to ease the friction between the cadets and the athletes."

"There isn't any need for this opposition toward each other," says Tech's new executive. "I'm going to try to straighten it out."

No athlete at Tech is a cadet. For years cadets and athletes have been quietly antagonistic, sometimes not so quietly. The athletes do not believe the cadets contribute anything to school prestige and the cadets have arguments of their own. Wiseman thinks it is time to end the antagonism. He polled 859 votes to 526 for Earl Davis, the cadet candidate, in the election.

Macks Make Mexican Arrival for Training

Western Meets Roosevelt for 2d Place

Western High's very good basketball team subjects Roosevelt High's very good basketball team to a severe test today at Tech High, to see whether the Rough Riders are entitled to their lofty position of second place in the interhigh standings. The Rough Riders are intent on tightening their grasp on the runner-up rung when action starts at 3:30 p. m.

At the same hour, Tech will be going through the motions of defeating Wilson High on the Roosevelt floor. The Techmen are somewhat hoping for a Roosevelt victory in order to give them a tie with Western for third place. The Georgetowners can go into second place by halting the Rough Riders, while the losing team will be automatically removed from the title race.

In their past encounters this season, Western was halted by the Rough Riders by a comfortable margin, 26 to 19, while Tech trounced Wilson, 43 to 19. The latter re-enactment will be merely a formality.

The Roosevelt-Western game will bring together some ace marksmen, with Capt. Gerald Burns and George DeWitt leading the Red team and Frank Bailey, Capt. Joe Comer and Ray Fridrich setting the pace for the Rough Riders. The duel between Dewitt and Comer should provide a merry sidelight.

It was Fridrich and Comer who did the bulk of the scoring against Western in the first game, scoring 8 and 6 points, respectively. DeWitt rang the bell for 7 and Burns for 6. In their initial test, Western overcame a 4-to-0 lead and turned it into a 7-to-4 advantage of its own, but Fridrich's under the basket tactics and Comer's follow shots again put the Riders ahead.

GOOD TOBACCOS ARE NOT ENOUGH

Ex-Operative Headed 'Loyal' G. M. Workers

Former Pinkerton Employe Was Baltimore Leader, Committee Told.

By the Associated Press.

Senate investigators heard yesterday that a former Pinkerton Detective Agency operative, James T. Johnson, headed the "Loyal Employes Committee" organized in General Motors' Baltimore plant.

Johnson, a slight, mustached auto worker, told the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee he had once worked for Pinkerton on the Atlanta, Ga., fairgrounds, but denied he was on the agency's pay roll when he helped form the anti-union committee.

Earlier testimony showed that General Motors paid $839,000 to Pinkerton and other detective agencies for carrying on labor espionage in its plants. The service was "wiped out" January 31.

Another leader of the "Loyal Workers'" group, Harry Dorsey, testified that he had used the factory mimeograph, addressograph and pay roll in sending out post cards inviting employes to an anti-union rally.

The same equipment was used, he added, in preparing circulars to be sent to Maryland Congressmen, urging them to enact laws against "sit-down" strikes.

Admitting "I was doing something wrong," he said he had a key made to the plant stationery room, where the equipment was kept, without the knowledge of superiors.

Michael Gallo, an expert welder who had worked for General Motors 15 years, told the committee he was demoted for union activity, and that Roy N. Wismer, plant manager, had warned him union members were "going to be taken for a ride."

"Union men will never rule this plant," he quoted Wismer as saying, "the loyal workers are very hostile, and some of them are carrying guns."

"Wismer told them 'all right, if he belongs to the union, throw him out.'" Gallo asserted.

The "speed-up" was chiefly responsible for union sentiment in the plant, Gallo said, asserting that the men were under constant pressure to "step up production" without any increase in help.

Wismer told a somewhat different story of the "loyal workers' committee," which he said sprang up spontaneously in the Baltimore plant when "sit-downs" began in other General Motors factories.

The management did not sponsor the "back-to-work" movement, he declared, and did not discriminate against union members.

Union men were kept out of the plant only to protect their lives, he continued, because "the feeling against them was very high."

"We've never had any guns in our plant to my knowledge," he asserted.

Man Held as Woman Dies After Illegal Operation

A coroner's jury today will probe the death of Thelma Scherer, 30, 912 Seventh street southwest, who died in Gallinger Hospital Sunday from the effects of an illegal operation. Police arrested Frank Milton Rowley, 30, alias Frank Moore, a mechanic, 1400 block Eighteenth street southeast, in connection with the death. He will appear at the inquest.

According to police, Mrs. Scherer became ill at her home Saturday and was taken to the hospital. Rowley, police said, has been charged with criminal operations four times previously.

Crewe Policeman Is Freed in Killing

Nottoway Courthouse, Va., Feb. 22 (AP).—A charge against Policeman W. Brent Lee, of killing Joe Flowers, 29, in a restaurant scuffle at Crewe, February 14, was dismissed by Assistant Trial Justice W. S. Kincheloe here today.

Lee was named in a warrant sworn out by Commonwealth's Attorney T. Freeman Epes, and had been under $5,000 bond pending the hearing.

Three others charged with misdemeanors in connection with the shooting were fined and one given a jail sentence. Woodrow Jennings was fined $100 and sentenced to five days in jail, while Raymond Flowers, a brother of the victim, and Andrew F. Inge were fined $50 and $25, respectively.

Body of Eckert Found in Woods

The body of Albert Eckert, 75-year-old patient of the District Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains, was found yesterday in the woods near Oxon Hill, Md., by a fellow inmate, Charles Prohaska, 64.

Although it was thought the man succumbed to a heart attack, Dr. James I. Boyd, of Forrestville, will perform an autopsy to determine the cause of death.

Frank B. Haskell, superintendent, said Eckert's disappearance was first noted when he failed to appear for dinner Sunday.

"This wasn't unusual, because he often took rowing trips up the Potomac in a boat he had salvaged several years ago," Haskell said.

However, when the man failed to show up at bedtime, officials became apprehensive and began a search.

On the Air Today

In the midst of much discussion within the ranks of the motion picture industry, as to the desirability or lack of it of movie stars appearing on the air, comes word that "a sparkling new and informal series of radio presentations featuring the glamorous personalities of the movies" will be inaugurated Sunday, March 14. It will be a midnight show over the facilities of the Red network of NBC. WRC locally.

Ordinarily I do not trespass on the sacred precincts of Mr. Nelson Bell, whose drama desk is only a few feet away but whose interests are sometimes considered to be more or less competitive and hence—distant. In other words, the man who spends an evening in the theater doesn't hear any radio programs. And t'other way around.

However, since radio has been made a permanent editorial division in one of the film trade dailies, which comes regularly to my desk, I have learned that the motion picture industry faces the problem of radio most definitely. Many exhibitors complain that the very stars who play their houses on a given night are also featured that night in a radio program—and at the very period of the evening when their patronage should be at its peak.

Of course the star enjoys those brief periods with the radio audience. He already has been paid for the picture and as much as $10,000 an appearance is paid for a few minutes in the radio studio. Resentment occasionally is voiced by some radio personalities over this extravagant scale of pay for movie stars. Radio stars receive their pay with one less cipher.

Several of the producers on the West Coast are preparing radio productions of their own. If radio is to lure their stars on off nights, why not have the work all done for one employer?

This new show, which begins next month, is to come from the Paramount lot. It will exploit the "behind the scenes" idea in picture making. Stars, directors, writers and overalled workers will be presented. Each week the audience will hear the cast and directors "doing a scene" or a rehearsal in production.

W. C. Fields, Edward Arnold, Lew Ayres, Claudette Colbert, Charles Ruggles and Gladys Swarthout are a few of the familiar names under Paramount contract.

There is this much about the new Paramount radio parade. It will be heard in the East at midnight, which removes it from competition with the motion picture exhibitor.

Copper and Tin Climb With London Buying

Copper Jumps to 17 Cents; Tin Up to 61, Highest in Records.

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 22.—Copper and tin bounded upward vigorously on the Metal Exchange today under heavy demand from both speculative and industrial sources.

After a sharp morning rise, during which copper rushed up to £73 a ton and tin soared to £261 a ton, profit taking made its appearance before the close and final prices were somewhat under the best of the day.

Brokers reported unusually heavy buying in speculative quarters, where activity has been most pronounced since the government made public its huge armament program a little more than a week ago.

Copper closed officially at £69 15s a ton (about $342 at the prevailing rate of exchange), up £6 1s 3d (about $29) from Friday's final levels. Tin ended at £248 10s a ton (about $1,215), for a net gain over Friday of £8 7s 6d (about $39).

Domestic Copper.

New York, Feb. 22.—Although virtually all domestic copper smelters, refiners and fabricators observed the Washington's Birthday holiday today, all eyes in the industry turned to the jump of more than 1 cent a pound in the London price of the metal. Tin also soared in the British market, reaching the equivalent of 61 cents a pound, the highest since records have been kept, in 1927.

With the export base jacked up another notch to around the equivalent of 16.75 to 17 cents a pound, copper analysts here agreed another upward revision of the domestic price was a possibility. They said that while the current quotation was at 14 cents no producers were willing to sell at that figure.

In the opinion of one observer, "there exists today a purely nominal market at 15 cents a pound" for the red metal. A prominent domestic smelting interest, he added, purchased copper at 15 cents and was willing to take more at that figure.

Cotton Futures Rise at Liverpool

Liverpool, Feb. 22 (AP).—Cotton futures closed 4 to 5 points higher today. The market opened slightly above parity and continued to improve on local and straddle buying against late positions. Values eased slightly in the afternoon session on selling against actual.

Wheat futures closed lower, the market declining in sympathy with Saturday's weakness in the Winnipeg and Chicago pits, although liberal sales were made to Germany over the week-end. Closing prices were:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
March	1.23⅝	1.22⅝	1.23⅛	1.24⅜
May	1.26⅛	1.25⅜	1.25⅝	1.27⅛

Washington Chapter Is Now Conducting 13 Classes in 11 Banking Subjects With an Enrollment of 475.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, which held its thirty-second annual banquet on Saturday, is now more than 36 years old, having been organized December 19, 1901, with 62 charter members. More than 1,800 students from banks and other financial institutions of Washington have completed the chapter's courses.

Six hundred have been graduated from its standard courses, which now comprise eight different subjects, each requiring 42 hours of class work. More than 100 of its students have been promoted to official positions in banks and nine past presidents of the chapter have become bank presidents.

This year the chapter is conducting 13 classes in 11 subjects, and its faculty numbers 12 instructors. There are more than 475 class enrollments this school year and the present membership of the chapter is 530. The local chapter is one of 234, with a total membership of 54,844 and 33,157 class enrollments in the nation. Washington chapter stands twenty-fourth in membership, fifteenth in individual students enrolled and sixth in number of graduates from standard courses.

Announcement is made that the Bank Women's Club of Washington will celebrate its tenth anniversary Thursday. Club membership has grown from 25 charter members to 67. Mrs. Constance D. Jones is president of the club, and its past presidents have been Miss Lois A. White, Miss Mary Jane Winfree, Mrs. Mabel Royce Lantz, Mrs. Judith Fishburn Buck and Miss Alice Whitton. A recent admission to the club was Mrs. Edythe Vollmer, of McLachlen Banking Corporation.

Building in Washington.

An auspicious beginning for Washington's current building year is shown in figures of actual contracts awarded during January, for work now progressing, as announced by F. W. Dodge Corporation. Both private and residential building, which serve as important indicators of general business prosperity, made good gains in Washington in January, as compared with January, 1936. Private building was 9 per cent larger in January than in January, 1936, while residential building more than doubled in the similar period.

Private construction amounted to $5,975,500 in January this year as compared with $5,485,200 in January, 1936. Total construction contracts awarded in all classes in the Washington area amounted to $7,723,000 in January. These figures are drawn for the Washington area, which includes all of the District of Columbia, the counties of Arlington and Fairfax in Virginia, and the counties of Montgomery and Prince Georges in Maryland. This territory had a total 1930 population of 672,198 persons.

Home Owners' Catalogue division of F. W. Dodge Corporation reported that residential building amounted to $6,762,800 in January of this year as compared with $3,186,900 in January last year. This increase is regarded as especially promising to business in general because of the widespread influence home building has on both the material and labor markets.

This percentage of increase in Washington's residential building compares favorably with the percentage of increase in the entire 37 States east of the Rocky Mountains, where residential building just about doubled in January. Due to the slowing down of the Government's public works program, public works and utilities amounted to only $159,600 in January last.

Northwestern Savings.

At the annual meeting of the Northwestern Savings and Loan Association, held at the office of the association in Takoma Park, the following officers and directors were elected for 1937: Edgar V. Crittenden, president; W. S. Dewhirst, first vice president; R. L. Houston Jones, second vice president; Howard S. Gott, secretary-treasurer, and William Copenhaver, attorney. Directors are William Copenhaver, Dr. J. W. Chappell, Dr. G. F. Coulon, E. V. Crittenden, W. S. Dewhirst, Howard S. Gott, R. L. Houston Jones, Frederick L. Lewton, Jesse H. Powell, Dr. W. W. Stockberger and W. R. Tuckerman.

The Palais Royal is undertaking a very complete job of modernizing its entire system of vertical transportation, involving replacing of some of the old apparatus, reconditioning of others, and the installation of considerable new equipment. The contract, which was awarded the Otis Elevator Co., for nearly $200,000, covers four new passenger elevators, with self-leveling at 500-feet speed, two freight elevators and a service elevator. There will also be installed four Otis escalators, providing up and down service between the first and third floors.

Completion of this contract will very materially alter the entire situation as regards the store transportation and will provide greatly increased facilities for getting customers to the upper floors.

The monthly meeting of the safe deposit section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the board room of American Security & Trust Co. Mrs. Helen R. Sharpe, of the Bank of Commerce & Savings, as vice chairman, is now in charge of the section, the office of chairman being vacant due to the recent resignation of John F. Hillyard, from the National Bank of Washington, to enter the private practice of law.

Foreign Markets.

London, Feb. 22 (AP).—Copper and tin shares were active and strong in today's stock market, following the sharp advance in prices on the metal exchange. Armament issues and transatlantics were also in demand and sold at higher prices. Mexican Eagle Oil reacted sharply on reports that the Mexican government contemplates a gradual elimination of foreign oil companies from Mexico. This stock lost almost 5 shillings, finishing at 24s 6d. The remainder of the list was easier.

Paris—Price changes were mixed in the bourse as a result of Premier Blum's repeated denial of a further devaluation of the French franc. The general tendency was higher, with metal shares advancing sharply, following the brisk upward movement of prices in the London Metal Exchange.

Liverpool—Wheat futures closed lower on disappointing Argentine cables and in sympathy with Saturday's weakness in American and Canadian markets.

Wheat Prices Fall After Rise At Winnipeg

Dullness in Canadian Market Is Reflection of Holiday Here.

By the Associated Press.

Winnipeg, Feb. 22.—Lacking a definite lead, trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today reflected the holiday in American markets. Fractional gains at the opening were lost when traders deserted the pit for long periods.

The close was ¼ cent lower to ¼ cent higher, with May at 1.25½, July, 1.21½, and October, 1.10⅞@1.11.

Girl Drowned As Rains Swell Va.-Md. Rivers

Victim Is Swept From Car While Fording Stream; Property Damaged.

Heavy week-end rains caused one death and considerable property damage in Virginia, while southern Anne Arundel County, in Maryland, was swept by a severe storm early yesterday which ripped through the prosperous section, damaging or wrecking completely about 15 barns and a number of other farm buildings.

The Maryland storm, which swept along with a heavy rain, struck the section after midnight. Tobacco barns were hurled from their foundations. Many of them were filled with drying tobacco.

Virginia's casualty occurred yesterday before dawn, when a 16-year-old girl, Blanche Wetzel, was drowned as she and three companions tried to ford a stream west of Harrisonburg.

Their automobile was abandoned in the high water, and the girl, who could not swim, was swept down the swirling waters to death before help arrived.

Shenandoah Overflows.

Reaching the flood stage, the historic Shenandoah rose at several points in Shenandoah County as much as 15 feet beyond its banks.

Helpless before the rising water, many lowland farmers prepared to evacuate their homes should this become necessary. They helplessly watched the swollen stream damage early wheat crops. Many farm buildings were inundated. Power lines in several areas were affected.

The storm raged along the lower Potomac and Chesapeake Bay, and the Norfolk & Washington steamer, which arrived here yesterday, reported it was unable to make the customary stop at Old Point Comfort on the way north.

Down in the valley, the Shenandoah yesterday afternoon continued to rise, but the crest was believed near.

Richmond yesterday was cleaning up the debris in the wake of a high, freakish wind that rose to nearly 35-miles an hour as it whined through parks and streets. A few trees were uprooted and traffic was blocked in spots near the city.

Two cows were killed when a barn was wrecked near the Mechanicsville turnpike.

In Lynchburg, city officials awaited a fall in the 7-foot James River freshet to determine the damage caused to the cofferdam near Holcomb Rock, on the Pedlar River pipe replacement project.

The storm swept into the Old Domain from the Carolinas, where it had roared with gale-like proportions and little mercy.

While Virginia and Maryland suffered from violent winds and lashing rains, the District yesterday experienced a foretaste of spring. A bright sun shone from a clear sky. Winds eddied and billowed, reminiscent of a day in late March. The temperatures were crisp with a high of 44 and a low of 35.

Today will be cloudy here, with slight west winds sweeping the city, the forecaster said. Before dawn the mercury will sink to about 26 degrees.

Pilgrimages Made.

Among other observances in the Capital and vicinity were a D. A. R. radio program at dusk, Mount Vernon pilgrimages by the Disabled American Veterans, George Washington Post, No. 1, of the American Legion, and other units, a number of holiday balls last night, a program sponsored by the Jewish War Veterans, and a meeting of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants.

5 Dead in Midwest.

Zero or subzero weather descended on most of the Midwest yesterday following heavy snows, near-hurricane winds and week-end floods which claimed the lives of at least five persons and spread destruction over a wide area.

Iowa and southern Minnesota cleared highways buried under snow which was piled in great drifts, 20 to 25 feet high. From zero to 10 below zero were the readings in Minnesota, while North Dakota felt the bite of zero to 18 below.

Iowa dug out from under the worst snowdrift blockade of the winter, and in Illinois, where flood waters took three lives, residents saw new hope in the cold wave. Southern Wisconsin's flood danger also was alleviated by the freezing weather.

An aged farmer collapsed and died in a snowdrift near Atlantic, Iowa, and hundreds of motorists were marooned and several trains stalled in that State.

Warthen's Painting Wins Exhibition Vote

Lee R. Warthen's painting, "Schoharie County Farm," yesterday was declared to have been the most popular piece of art included in the forty-sixth annual exhibition of the Society of Washington Artists. The painting won the greatest number of votes cast by the thousands of visitors.

The announcement was made by Charles Bittinger, president of the society; C. Powell Minnigerode, director of the Corcoran Art Gallery, and Clifford Berryman. Yesterday was the last day of the exhibition.

Resident of W. Va. Uses Mail to Pay D.C. Parking Fine

A check for $2 was received by the financial clerk of Police Court yesterday to pay a parking fine for a violation committed February 16 by Frances W. Ellison, of Charleston, W. Va.

The woman sent the check with a ticket which accused her of parking between 4 and 6 p. m. on Sixth street northwest. The clerk turned the matter over to Sergt. John J. Agnew, police traffic collateral chief.

A contrasting case occurred several months ago when a letter from Shanghai, China, was received by Sergt. Agnew. This letter, however, contained an apology for violating a parking regulation, but no $2.

Farm Leaders Outline New Plan for 1937

Conservation Program Is Shaped to Meet Drought or Good Crops.

By the Associated Press.

Administration farm leaders said yesterday the soil conservation program this year was shaped to meet "whatever turn the weather may take"—drought or bumper crops.

H. R. Tolley, chief of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, said benefit payment measures would increase protection to farmers and consumers "against possible recurrence of drought."

By encouraging planting of grass and legume crops, Tolley said the AAA program assures some feed supplies because these consist mainly "of hay and forage whenever the weather is too dry to produce good yields of corn or small grains."

On the other hand, he contended that if this season produces large yields of corn, wheat and other major crops, the acreage planted to grasses and legumes "tends to hold down to some extent the size of grain surpluses."

The "AAA program encourages diversified farming instead of one-crop farming," he said, and this acted "as a stabilizer of supplies, and consequently to a considerable extent also a stabilizer of prices."

Tolley said in most Western States, where forage plantings were killed by drought or winterkilled, AAA regulations permit planting this year of "emergency forage" crops, such as millets, Sudan grass and barley. These ordinarily would be classed as "soil-depleting" under the benefit program, but are rated as "neutral" this year when used to replace crops classed as "soil conserving."

He said farmers would receive payments this year in drought areas for a wide variety of practices intended to store moisture in the soil and prevent erosion.

The limit on corn acreage, new feature of the 1937 farm program, was described as encouraging a "normal balance between corn and small grains."

Tolley said corn, harvested late, and small grains, threshed early in the season, seldom were affected by drought in the same season, so the corn limit "seeks to prevent expansion of corn acreage at the expense of small grain acreage."

Chairman Pope (Democrat), Idaho, of a Senate agriculture subcommittee meanwhile said hearings on the Administration's crop insurance bill would begin Thursday, with Agriculture Department experts as the first witnesses.

The measure, introduced by Pope, calls for a Federal crop insurance corporation with a $100,000,000 capital to write all-risk insurance on wheat crops. It could easily be extended to other products, he said, if experimental operation proves successful.

WANTED
An old established company, of highest financial integrity, is introducing a new product, priced for this price-conscious period and easily acquired, without carrying charges.

It is exclusive, needful, and its many novel features are covered by patents. It is the successor of the vacuum cleaner and the wide open field is unlimited.

A very long profit to the Dealer and rapid promotion to the man who can do a good job of distribution under Franchise. No investment of cash.

Several men for this and surrounding communities can be placed at once. Prefer men who have had electric cleaner sales experience, with good sales records, who can give reference and who are not afraid to canvass. Automobile helpful. Men with crews should also see us.

Can use a few men too who have had no selling experience along this line, but who are anxious to make money in a new field. Men of this type, who impress us, we will train at our own expense and get them into practically immediate production.

We invite your thorough investigation. The opportunity is rare. Men replying should be able to go to work at once.

Apply Room 101, Munsey Bldg., Tuesday, 10 a. m. or 2 p. m. and Wednesday, 10 a. m. only. Ask for manager.

A WALL OF PROTECTION
CERTAIN-TEED provides efficient insulation as well as great structural strength.
Applied to Interior walls, CERTAIN-TEED offers these important advantages: Insulates as it beautifies . . . Provides permanent decoration . . . Corrects acoustics . . . Reduces the passage of sound through walls and ceilings . . . And it is easily cleaned. Ordinary insulating materials lose much of their efficiency through the absorption of moisture. This cannot happen with CERTAIN-TEED. Use it inside your house—for new construction and for remodeling.
No Down Payment, 3 Years to Pay on the F. H. A. Plan.
COSTS NOTHING TO FIND OUT

India Congress Party May Balk Britain's Plans

By the Associated Press.

Bombay, India, Feb. 22.—The Indian Congress Party, demanding complete independence, loomed tonight as a formidable obstacle to fulfillment of Britain's plan of federal government for India as counting neared completion in one of the most picturesque elections in political history.

Charging elephants, hunger strikes and other peculiarly Indian features marked the contest in eleven provinces, in which voting ended yesterday, 33,000,000 voters having participated.

The Congress Party held at least 450 of the 1,585 seats in the lower chambers of the provincial Legislatures involved, with results still unannounced for 429 seats.

(Should the Congress Party gain control of the provincial Legislatures, it may prevent execution of that part of India's new constitution which would create a federation under British supervision.

(The party was led, until October, 1934, by Mohandas K. Gandhi, who recently renounced his title of "Mahatma"—which means "high-minded" or "great-souled"—on the ground he had no right to it.)

Although reports from Madras said three members of the Congress Party were beaten by unidentified assailants, the recent days of the election were quiet in comparison with the early voting, when there were seven riots, two murders, two airplane crashes and two defamation cases. Many meetings were broken up with stones, eggs and fruit.

A herd of elephants was made to charge a Congress Party meeting in Bihar. The Congress candidate replied by riding around his constituency on a local elephant known as a dangerous beast.

The Mason's tools which Washington used in laying the cornerstone of the Capitol in 1793 were employed for a similar purpose yesterday at ceremonies for Alexandria's new public library. Consisting of a square, level, plumb and trowel, they are now the possessions of the Alexandria-Washington Masonic Lodge of which Washington was a member.

The new library is a gift of Dr. and Mrs. Robert South Barrett as a memorial to Dr. Kate Walter Barrett.

Washington's farewell address was read to the Senate by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and to the House by Representative Edward O'Neill, of New Jersey, each representing an original state.

In a studio broadcast, Representative John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, described the Washington Monument as "a towering finger of rectitude continuously pointing heavenward, indicative of the unblemished character of the Father of His Country."

Body of Gangster Is Found in Chicago Alley

Chicago, Feb. 22 (AP).—Shot six times in the back, the body of John Dolf, 32, a robber and forger with a 14-year criminal record, was found Sunday in a West Side alley.

Two men and a woman were in custody of the police who began an investigation of the slaying, which they said had all appearances of a gangland assassination.

Roosevelt Ride To Alexandria Baffles Escort

Mystified Reporters Identify His Companion as Friend and Relative.

President Roosevelt, who is famous for doing the unexpected, yesterday precipitated a scramble by correspondents to learn the identity of the woman he drove from Mount Vernon to her home just outside Alexandria.

Leaving the Washington Tomb after having paid silent tribute, the President invited the lady in question to join him in the tonneau of the White House car. As she stepped in beside Mr. Roosevelt and his military aide, Col. E. M. Watson, tongues wagged.

"Who is she?"

The six-car motorcade, including four press and newsreel machines, sped up the Mount Vernon Memorial highway the way they had come, preceded by five motorcycle policemen. Reaching Alexandria, the President turned left on King street instead of continuing straight ahead.

Escort Flustered.

At the George Washington Masonic Memorial the party bore right. About half a mile further, the President's car turned left on a dirt road, unbeknownst to the Park Police vanguard, who were no little flustered to learn they were not being followed. Sheepishly, they about faced and eventually caught up.

Straight ahead went the White House car, the Secret Service contingent and the press until the trail led to a modest house at a crossroad. Over a muddy driveway the President's car chugged up to the door. There his guest took her leave, smilingly and with profuse thanks.

Back at the White House, no one could be found who could identify the "woman of mystery." Capt. P. H. Bastedo, who rode in the President's car, said she was a Hudson River friend of the Chief's and her name was Hamill or Hamlet or some such sounding name.

Difference in Names.

Col. Watson agreed with his fellow aide that the extra passenger was an old friend of the President's, but he thought her name was Wamley or Wambley. The White House usher could offer no help whatever and the Secret Service was equally informative.

By dint of many telephone calls, double checking and other sleuthish devices, eventually it was fairly well established that the modified hitchhiker was Mrs. L. C. S. Hambley, a distant relative of the President's and a former resident of his own Dutchess County, N. Y.

Mrs. Hambley is reported to have gone to Mount Vernon with her husband, an employe of the Agriculture Department, and their two daughters. They drove home in their own car.

Troopers Enact 'Torture Death' In Courtroom

Accused Officer Testifies He Was Attacked by Hotel Man.

him on the floor and I jumped on him. I threw him over my head with a jiu-jitsu hold.

"* * * he kicked me and I hit him twice in the face. Once on the jaw. * * * He staggered back against the wall and fell down.

"I got two glasses of water and threw it on him. I tried to get him up. * * * I got him up and put him in the washroom. I had hi mthere a couple of seconds to wash the blood from his face.

"He was standing by the wash bowl, leaning on it. * * * I went to the bed to get a towel, and he fell. He evidently fainted or something."

Defense Questions.

Chief Defense Attorney John Duggan, jr., asked him:

"When Monaghan grabbed you, what part of the body was it?"

"Around the neck. When I threw him his feet were pointing toward the bed. I jumped on him, my knees hit him in the ribs and chest.

"He rolled out from under me and I pinned him down on the hard surfaced floor. I kept on top of him.

"I picked him up. I grabbed him by the left arm and right ear."

Testimony for State.

Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, prosecuting the Monaghan case, previously had presented testimony that 11 fractured ribs, and fractures of the skull, nose and jaw contributed to Monaghan's death.

The State policeman said he didn't know any of Monaghan's bones were broken "unless it was the nose. It was bleding."

Earlier, Gunderman had testified to giving Monaghan an alkalized drink and forcing him to take a shower while he and Sanute were alone with the prisoner. He testified:

"He finally took it. I questioned him a little while and decided to give him a shower bath.

"* * * He finally came out. * * * He dried himself, sat down on the bed and started putting on his trousers and socks."

Testifies to Attack.

tI was then, Gunderman testified, that Monaghan attacked him. He said:

"He was not in a good humor, but he wasn't quarrelsome."

The attorney general asked him if he could have subdued Monaghan without throwing him. He answered:

"I didn't think of it then. I was nervous and excited. * * * If I had it to do over again, I wouldn't have done it that way."

"Then was it necessary to jump on him?"

"He was a vicious man. I wasn't taking any chances."

Slayer Offers Himself As 'Human Guinea Pig'

McAlester, Okla., Feb. 22 (AP).—Julius Bohannon, triple slayer and leader of a 23-man break from McAlester Penitentiary last May 13, offered tonight to become a "human guina pig," for medical science.

"I want to help my children get an education," said the square-jawed prisoner, now under two life sentences. Paul Colvert, member of the State board of affairs, said the State was ready to give him a trial. Colvert said, "if some medical organization is anxious to perform some experiments with new medicine or drugs, I think the way is open."

5 Are Convicted In Kansas City Voting Frauds

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, Feb. 22.—A Federal court jury today convicted five men of conspiracy to defraud voters, bringing to seven the number convicted in two such trials in less than a week here.

The jury deliberated less than three hours on the Government's charges of wholesale vote frauds in the November 3 election here and the defense contention that ghost voting and voter bribery do not violate Federal laws.

Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis deferred passing sentence.

The five convicted today presented no evidence, trusting their case to the jury on argument by counsel that "the Federal Government has nothing to do with elections. It is no violation of the United States law to stuff the ballot box. It is no violation of the law of the United States to bribe a voter, to allow ghosts to vote, to write on the names of poll books the names of voters who never vted."

The five convicted are Lorne E. Wells, Democratic judge; Frank H. Adams, Republican judge; Joe R. Wells, jr., Democratic clerk; John A. Luteran, Democratic precinct captain, and Leo B. Roach, policeman. Two others, Miss Pearl Sperry, Republican clerk, and Mrs. Callie Clark, Democratic judge, pleaded no defense and were government witnesses.

Government witnesses testified some voters were intimidated; that poll books were signed hours before the poll closed; that ballot boxes were stuffed; that marks on ballots were erased and that Luteran boasted things were "fixed from the Governor down:"

Tomorrow 6 more of the 75 persons indicted by a Federal grand jury ares cheduled to go to trial before Judge Otis.

Alfonso's Wife Avoids Meeting Ex-Monarch

Rome, Feb. 22 (AP).—While the former King Alfonso of Spain was away, Queen Victoria spent the time playing with her grandchildren here, but she departed when the former King returned to Rome.

Informed circles said today the estranged consort of former King Alfonso seized upon his absence in Lausanne last week as an opportunity to visit her two children, and at the same time avoid meeting the man with whom she once occupied the Spanish throne.

Death Penalty Imposed Upon Czech Traitor

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 22 (AP). For the first time since the founding of Czechoslovakia, death sentence was imposed today on a soldier convicted of espionage.

Josef Krejza, a noncommissioned officer was condemned to the gallows for military treason and also to military degradation and expulsion from the army.

California Evangelist Has 'Window' in Heart

San Francisco, Feb. 22 (AP).—Benn Moore, 28-year-old Vallejo evangelist, had a window cut in the petrified wall of his heart today. It was the first time the delicate operation had been performed in San Francisco by the surgeon who first dared to attempt it—Dr. Claude S. Beck, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Fifteen Bay region surgeons watched Dr. Beck literally cut a hole in the calcified pericardial sack, which was beginning to pinch Moore's heart as it hardened and gradually tightened its grip. The operation relieved pressure so the blood could flow freely again.

Counsel Seeks Delay

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 22 (AP).—Bernard Sandler, attorney for Peggy Garcia, said late today that he would attempt to have resumption of the blonde hat check girl's suit against David Rubinoff postponed tomorrow in order that he might gather additional evidence here.
